BENGAL CIVIL FUND.

At a Half-yearly General Meeting of Subscribers to the Bengal Civil Fund, held at the Town Hall, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 26th January 1876.

PRESENT:—The Hon'ble H. L. Dampier; The Hon'ble W. F. McDonell, V.C.; The Hon'ble H. Bell; R. Taylor, Esq.; T. J. C. Grant, Esq.; A. P. Howell, Esq.; D. Fitzpatrick, Esq.; J. O'Kinealy, Esq.; A. Mackenzie, Esq.; W. H. Grimley, Esq.; W. M. Souttar, Esq.; W. H. Verner, Esq.; A. P. MacDonnell, Esq.; J. G. Charles, Esq.; C. J. Lyall, Esq.; H. J. S. Cotton, Esq.; and J. A. Bourdillon, Esq.

The Hon'ble W. F. McDonell, in the chair.

Read the following report submitted by the Managers:—

REPORT.

I. The Managers submit their Proceedings for the past half-year for the consideration and sanction of the Meeting. Subject to the approval of subscribers, they have admitted to the benefits of the Fund the following families:—

Mrs. Wauchope ... £ 300 Two daughters ... " 200 £ 500		The widow and two daughters of the late Mr. S. Wauchope, who died in England on the 23rd July last.
Mrs. Young ... £ 300 Two children ... " 200 £ 500		The widow and two children (one daughter and one son) of the late Mr. William Gordon Young (an annuitant of 1869), who died on the 22nd August last.
Mrs. Montagu ... £ 300 Less ⅙ under Rule 7 ... " 50 £ 250		The widow of the late Mr. E. Montagu, who died at Allygurh on the 31st August last.
Lady Currie ... £ 300 Two children ... " 200 £ 500		The widow and two children (one daughter and one son) of the late Sir F. Currie (an annuitant of 1853), who died in England on the 10th September last.
Mrs. Brown ... ... £ 300		The widow of the late Mr. S. S. Brown (an annuitant of 1854), who died by falling overboard on a night passage to Boulogne on the 19th October last.
Mrs. Tucker ... ... £ 300 Three daughters ... " 300 £ 600		The widow and three daughters of the late Mr. H. C. Tucker (an annuitant of 1861), who died in England on the 9th November last.
Mrs. Money ... ... £ 300 Two daughters ... " 200 £ 500		The widow and two daughters of the late Mr. W. J. H. Money (an annuitant of 1853), who died in England on the 6th December last.

II. The Managers also submit to this Meeting the following statement in connection with the application of Mrs. Belli for pension:—Mr. Belli was a subscriber to the Fund under the old Rules, and at the time of his decease, 29th July last, left property worth £21,727, out of which he was bound, under Article 26 of the old Rules, to make a proper provision for his wife. That Article is as follows:—

"In case it shall be proved to the conviction of a General Meeting of Subscribers that a deceased member of this Fund has during his life-time, whether in immediate anticipation of his death or otherwise, made such a disposition of any part of his property, real or personal, as but for this rule would throw the entire or partial support of his widow or offspring upon the Fund, who would not have been so supported by the Fund had such part of his property not been so disposed of, with the intention thereby of benefiting any party at the expense of the Fund, then the widow or offspring of such a member or both shall forfeit all right to any part of the support which would have been claimable if no such disposition had been made. * * * * * * *

"It is hereby declared that a General Meeting of the latter (i. e., subscribers), duly held according to the Rules of the institution, shall have full power to reject the application for aid from the Fund in any instance in which it may appear that a subscriber having property at his death, and having the power to dispose of it, has made no due provision for his family."

The Managers in administering the affairs of the Fund have invariably considered all private income left by a subscriber at death as available for the support of his family without reference to appropriations by testament or otherwise. In the present case Mr. Belli made such a disposition of his property in his life-time, namely, a trust in favour of his children by his first wife, that but for Article 26 his widow would be chargeable on the Fund. Under these circumstances the Managers consider the widow not entitled to the Fund allowance, and they now submit the case to the General Meeting, and recommend that Mrs. Belli's application be disallowed.

III. The Managers, in accordance with Mr. Trafford's request, submit, for the consideration of this Meeting, his reasons for not reporting the birth of his daughter within the month prescribed in Article 5 of the Rules. He says that the reason why the birth of the child at Dalhousie was not reported earlier was that on a former occasion he was told to communicate the child's name, and that in the present instance, the child, though born on the 29th July 1875, was not baptized till the 8th September and till then he was not able to give the name. As he was misled by a former letter of the Secretary and by anxiety to conform to his instruction, he hopes that the fine of Rs. 50 will not be imposed. The Managers think that there was no good reason for Mr. Trafford being misled. In the previous case the Secretary in acknowledging the report of the child's birth asked in the usual way for the Christian name. They would recommend that the fine be not remitted.

IV. The Managers have notified that the case of Mrs. Morris, formerly Mrs. Drew, will be brought forward for discussion at this Meeting. Mrs. Morris, on applying to the Managers to be allowed to bequeath £ 50 per annum to her sole surviving daughter by her husband, the late Mr. Drew, without entailing a reduction in the pension of £ 100 allowed to her daughter from the Fund, a special ground for the application being her daughter's unsoundness of mind, was informed that under the old Rules Article 24 was a bar to her request being granted; but that if a satisfactory medical certificate of her daughter's mental infirmity were supplied, the Managers, under the special circumstances of the case, would be prepared to recommend her petition to a General Meeting. Mrs. Morris has submitted the certificate of the family medical attendant, showing that her daughter was placed 30 years ago in an asylum, and has since that time and until recently been under restraint; that she is still suffering from mental infirmity, which renders her unable to maintain herself; and that the expense of her care and maintenance are necessarily great.

V. The Managers have received the following answer to their letter addressed to the Secretary, Home Department, regarding the admission of natives in India to appointments hitherto held by subscribers to the Fund:—

THE SECRETARY, BENGAL CIVIL FUND.

Simla, the 27th July 1875.

SIR,

With reference to your letter dated the 9th ultimo, No. 213, I am directed to forward the papers marginally noted for the information of the Managers of the Bengal Civil Fund.

Letter from Messrs J. O'Kinealy, W. M. Souttar and W. Verner, dated 12th March 1875, and enclosed memorial to the Secretary of State for India in Council.
Despatch from Secretary of State, No. 68, dated 27th May 1875.
Letter to Messrs. J. O'Kinealy, W. M. Souttar and W. Verner, No. 1162, dated 14th July 1875.

I have the honor to be, &c.,
(Signed) T. C. PLOWDEN,
Offg. Under Secy. to the Govt. of India.

No. 68.

India Office, London A, 27th May 1875.

To

HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HON'BLE THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD,

1. The despatch of your Excellency in Council, dated the 25th of March, No. 19 of 1875, transmitting a memorial by certain Members of the Bengal Civil Service, on the subject of the proposed admission, under Section 6 of the 33 Vic., Chapter 3, of natives to the Covenanted Civil Service, has been considered by me in Council.

2. On this memorial I have to observe that when the pleasure of Parliament has once been declared on a matter of Indian administration, the action of the Indian Government in both its branches becomes simply ministerial, and thus an imperative duty has been thrown on the Secretary of State in Council and on the Government of India to frame rules under Section 6 of the Statute 33 Vic., Chapter 3; at the same time I have no reason whatever to suppose, and I should myself be sorry to think, that Parliament intended by these provisions to inflict any material injury on the interests of the distinguished Service to which the memorialists belong. On the contrary, the enactment to which they call my attention may have the effect of putting an end to much cavil and complaint.

3. The memorialists must be aware that great and remarkable as have been the service rendered to the State by the privileged body of which they are Members, yet there has always existed a feeling that the position of that body was in some degree antagonistic to what many regarded as the just claims of natives of proved merit. I trust that they will, on reflection, consider that the measure passed by Parliament was as little hostile to their interests as a due appreciation of conflicting claims could permit, and that in effect their position will be strengthened by its enactment. The Rules which have received my sanction secure that position by sufficient safe-guards, and I believe the practical result will be that the admission of natives to the Covenanted Civil Service, otherwise than by competition, will not affect in any material degree the interests of the existing Members of the Bengal Civil Service. The interests of future Members may be further guarded by a proper adjustment of the number of appointments thrown open to public competition.

I have the honor to be, &c.,
(Signed) SALISBURY.

VI. The Managers have received a communication No. 4377, dated 28th October 1875, from the Government of India, Financial Department, and with it a despatch No. 391, dated 28th October 1875, from the Government of India to the Secretary of State.

It will be seen—

First.—That the Government announce they have only undertaken to subsidise, or, in other words, to grant a favorable rate of interest to that portion of the assets which is said to represent the liabilities of the original Fund.

Second.—That a favorable rate of exchange will be given to the privileged branch of the Fund only.

Third.—That the support of Government to the Fund is during pleasure.

In reply, the Managers have addressed the Government of India, and requested that the Secretary of State's final decision on the despatch of Government be deferred so as to allow the Managers to forward an expression of their views on the subject. The correspondence has been circulated to the Service.

VII. Having regard to the notification which appeared in the Gazette of India of the 19th November last, No. 2519, exempting travelling allowance generally from deduction towards annuity, the Managers desire to exempt the travelling allowance of Rs. 5 per day from contribution to the Civil Fund.

VIII. The Managers have heard from the Agents that the first portion of the statistical tables prepared by the Actuary has been despatched, and that the second instalment will speedily follow, and after that the report. They will, on receipt of the whole, cause printed copies to be sent to all subscribers.

IX. The accounts of the past year 1874-75 are submitted.

Amendment of certain sections of Act XXI of 1856.

10. Act XXI of 1856 shall be read as if, for sections thirty-three, fifty, seventy-four, seventy-five and seventy-six of the said Act, the following sections were substituted:—

Board may prescribe rules to regulate the supply of fermented liquors to licensed vendors, and the cultivation, preparation, storing, possession, and transport of intoxicating drugs.

"33.—The Board of Revenue may, with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, from time to time prescribe rules consistent with this Act, for regulating the mode in which fermented liquors shall be supplied to licensed vendors of the same;

for subjecting the cultivation of plants from which intoxicating drugs are produced, and the preparation of the said drugs, to such restrictions and supervision as may be deemed necessary to secure the duty leviable thereon;

and for granting licenses or passes to persons cultivating, preparing, storing, possessing, purchasing, or transporting the said plants or drugs.

All such rules shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and when so published, shall have effect as if they were contained in this Act.

Every person who refuses, or neglects to obey, or contravenes any rule issued and sanctioned under the provisions of this section, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees."

Provisions of the two last preceding sections not to apply to the sale or possession of taree used in making sugar; nor to the sale or possession of intoxicating drugs by licensed cultivators.

and the provisions of the said sections relating to the sale and possession of intoxicating drugs, do not apply to the sale or possession of such drugs by any person duly authorized under this Act to cultivate the plants which produce these drugs;

Penalty for sale or transfer by cultivators to unlicensed person, or for failure to account for stock of plant in possession.

provided that every such cultivator selling or parting with any such plant, or any preparation made therefrom, to any person other than a licensed vendor, or person duly authorized to purchase the same by pass or license from the Collector, or failing to account for any quantity of such plant, or of any preparation thereof, which shall have been in his possession, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees."

Imprisonment may be in the civil or criminal jail.

"74.—Every person who shall be imprisoned under the last preceding section, or on account of the non-payment of any fine levied under this Act, if the offence of which he has been convicted be one with respect to which the information of the Collector or an Abkaree officer is required by section seventy-one of this Act, may be confined either in the civil or in the criminal jail."

Disposal of confiscated articles.

"75.—All articles confiscated under this Act, except opium, shall be disposed of by public sale under such rules as the Board of Revenue may prescribe in that behalf. Confiscated opium shall, after examination by a competent officer, be disposed of as the said Board may direct by a special or general order."

"76.—Whenever any fine or forfeiture is levied from a person convicted of the unlawful manufacture of spirituous or fermented liquors, or intoxicating drugs; or of the unlawful sale, purchase or possession of such liquors or drugs; or of the unlawful cultivation of plants from which intoxicating drugs are produced, the Magistrate who adjudicates the case shall direct the amount of fine or forfeiture to be divided in such proportions as he may think fit between any persons (whether they be Akbaree or Police officers or otherwise) who were instrumental in the detection of the offence, the seizure of the articles in respect of which the offence was committed, or the capture of the offender. The Magistrate shall also determine the proportions in which the proceeds of the sale of the confiscated articles, except in the case of opium, shall be distributed among the said persons; and in the case of opium confiscated, shall direct that, if such opium be declared fit for use by competent authority, a reward of one rupee and eight annas for each seer so confiscated shall be similarly distributed.

Procedure when confiscated article is sold for a price which includes duty leviable.

Provided that if any confiscated article shall have been sold or may be sold by the Collector for a price which includes the duty leviable on the said article, such amount as the Collector may determine to represent such duty shall be deducted from the sale proceeds and credited to Government, and the remainder only of the price realized by the sale shall be deemed to be sale proceeds, to be distributed under the order of the said Magistrate.

The Board of Revenue, with the sanction of the Local Government, may lay down rules for the prompt payment of rewards to officers of such Government and others who have been instrumental in the detection of offences, seizure of illicit articles, or capture of offenders under this Act, and any sum which may have been paid to any person under such rules may be taken into account as a part or the whole of the payment which may be awarded by a Magistrate to such person under this section."

Board of Revenue may lay down rules for prompt payment of rewards.

11. All the provisions of the said Act XXI of 1856, which relate to puchwai, shall apply to any fermented liquor other than those specified in the said Act.

Imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

15. Notwithstanding anything in this or in any other Act contained, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, to assign to the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta, or to any other Municipality, such functions and powers as he shall think fit in respect to the granting, withholding, and withdrawal of licenses for the sale of spirituous or fermented liquors and intoxicating drugs (being functions and powers which, but for such assignment, might legally be exercised by any officer of Government), to be exercised by such Justices or by such Municipality within the limits of their respective jurisdictions under such conditions and subject to such rules as the said Lieutenant-Governor may impose; and the Lieutenant-Governor may at any time withdraw and revoke any functions and powers which he has assigned under the provisions of this section.

PART IV.

Bills of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the compulsory registration of possessory titles in revenue-paying estates and revenue-free lands, together with the Bill as discussed in Council, is, by order of the President, published for general information:—

WE, the undersigned, to whom the Bill to provide for the compulsory registration of possessory titles in revenue-paying estates and revenue-free lands was referred, have the honor to make the following report.

From Commissioner of the Presidency Division, dated 24th January 1876.
From Commissioner of Burdwan, dated 29th January 1876.
From Collector of Burdwan, dated 25th January 1876.
From Collector of Nuddea, dated 27th January 1876.
From Collector of Midnapore, dated 27th January 1876.
From Collector of Gya, dated 24th January 1876.
From Officiating Collector of Dacca, dated 29th January 1876.
From Collector of Cuttack, dated 29th January 1876.
From Collector of Patna, dated 31st January 1876.
From Collector of Shahabad, dated 3rd February 1876.

We have considered the communications noted in the margin.

We have made alterations in the definitions of "estate" and "manager," and have added a definition of "extent of interest."

We have omitted as unnecessary for the purposes of the Bill the clause which required the existence of tenures secured against Government or against purchasers at sales to be entered in the registers under this Bill, and which required particulars of the origin of each estate to be so entered.

Instead of the provision that the first registers under the Bill shall be prepared within five years, we have left it to the Board to direc when such registers shall be prepared, the registers now in use, as prescribed by previous Acts, which the Bill repeals, being in the meanwhile deemed to be the registers prescribed by this Bill.

We have omitted as unnecessary the provisions as to the numbering of the pages ofthe registers the attestation of such pages by the Collector, the mode of making corrections in entries which are found to be erroneous or incomplete, and the deposit of copies of the registers in the Board's office.

On account of the practical difficulty which has been experienced in working similar provisions in an effective and useful manner, we have omitted the provisions requiring the Civil Courts, and the Registrars and Sub-Registrars of Assurances to furnish copies of certain decrees to Collectors.

We have made an important change in Chapter IV of the Bill relating to the registration and mutation of names of proprietors and managers, having imposed on proprietors and managers the obligation to register, not only the fact of their being in possession as proprietors and managers, but also the extent of the interest of which each is in such possession.

In order to prevent the influx of business which would overwhelm the revenue offices if the proprietors of all estates and revenue-free properties in a district were required to register their names and the extent of their interests before one fixed date, we have empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to fix different dates for different classes of estates and properties.

We have empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to exempt proprietors and managers of small estates and properties from the obligation to register their names.

In cases in which an applicant's possession of, succession to, or acquisition by transfer of a certain extent of interest in an estate or property is not disputed, and is proved to the satisfaction of the Collector, we have provided that the Collector may admit his name to registration in respect of such extent of interest, although it may be necessary, at the same time, to refer for the decision of the Civil Court a dispute regarding any further extent of interest in respect of which the applicant has applied to be registered.

We have omitted as unnecessary the provision imposing a disability to sue on any proprietor who has failed to apply for registration as required by the Bill.

We have provided that the parties shall pay the costs of enquiries under the Bill.

We have made other verbal alterations and changes in the arrangement of the Bill.

We recommend that the Bill, as now presented, be published for general information, and that, if necessary, it be referred back to this Committee to make in it any additions or modifications which may be suggested and may appear worthy of adoption.

44. Any application for registration under this Act may be presented by the applicant or by some person duly authorized by him in that behalf.

Notice to objectors.

45. If the application be for registration otherwise than as manager appointed as aforesaid, and if it sets forth circumstances which would justify the Collector in registering the name of the person whose name is required to be registered, or if after further enquiry the Collector considers that such circumstances exist, he shall issue a notice requiring all persons who object to the registration of the name of the person whose name is required to be registered, or who dispute the extent of the interest in respect of which it is required to be registered, to give in a written statement of their objections, and to appear on a day to be therein specified, not being less than one month from the date of the publication of such notice.

Notice to transferor.

47. If the application alleges that the applicant has acquired possession of the interest in respect of which he applies to be registered by transfer from any living person, a copy of such notice shall be served on the alleged transferor by tendering to the person to whom it may be directed a copy thereof attested by the Collector, or by delivering such copy at the usual place of abode of such person, or to some adult male member of his family; or in case it cannot be so served, by posting such copy upon some conspicuous part of the usual or last known place of abode of such person.

In case such notice cannot be served in any of the ways hereinbefore mentioned, it shall be served in such way as the Collector issuing such notice may direct.

Irregularity in publication or service of notice not to affect validity of proceedings.

48. No irregularity or omission in the publication or service of notices as required by the three last preceding sections shall affect the validity of any proceedings under this Act, unless it is proved to the satisfaction of the Collector that some material injury was caused by such irregularity or omission.

Inquiry by Collector.

49. On the day fixed in the notice issued under section 45, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Collector shall consider any objections which may be advanced, and make such further inquiry as appears necessary to ascertain the truth of the alleged possession of, succession to, or transfer of the estate, revenue-free property, or interest therein, in respect of which registration is applied for; and if it appears to the Collector that the possession exists, or that the succession or transfer has taken place, and that the applicant has acquired possession in accordance with such succession or transfer, but not otherwise, the Collector shall order the name of the possessor, successor, or transferee (as the case may be), to be entered in the proper Registers.

Provided that any person to whom any proprietary right in an estate has been mortgaged, may be registered as mortgagee, whether he be in actual possession or otherwise.

Payment of costs.

51. All costs of any enquiry or proceeding held before the Collector under this Act shall, except as provided in section 46, be payable by the parties concerned, and the Collector may pass such orders as he shall think fit in respect of the payment of such costs.

Reference to Civil Court.

52. If the applicant's possession of, succession to, or acquisition by transfer of the extent of interest in respect of which he has applied to be registered, is disputed by or on behalf of any person making a conflicting claim in respect thereof, and if the possession of the applicant in accordance with his application is not proved to the satisfaction of the Collector, the Collector shall refer the matter in dispute to the principal Civil Court of the district for determination as hereinafter provided.

Provided that if the applicant's possession of any extent of interest in accordance with his application be not disputed, or if such possession be proved to the satisfaction of the Collector, the Collector may register the said applicant's name in respect of such extent of interest, and may at the same time make a reference as hereinafter provided to the Civil Court for determination of any dispute as to any further extent of interest in respect of which the applicant has applied to be registered, but in respect of which the right of the applicant to be registered is disputed, and is not proved to the satisfaction of the Collector.

Procedure on making a reference under last section.

53. In making a reference under the last preceding section, the Collector shall state for the information of the said Court in writing under his hand

The said Court, or the Court to which the matter is transferred, shall cite the parties concerned, and give notice of the time at which the matter will be heard; and after expiration of the time so fixed, shall determine summarily the right to possession in respect of the interest in dispute (subject to regular suit), and shall deliver possession accordingly.

Judge may appoint curator.

55. If it shall appear to the Judge of the Court by which the matter is heard that danger is to be apprehended of the misappropriation or waste of the property before the summary suit can be determined, such Judge may appoint curators for the care of the property, and may exercise all or any of the powers mentioned in sections five to thirteen (both inclusive) of Act XIX of 1841.

Costs.

56. The said Court may make such order as it shall think fit with regard to the payment by the parties of the cost of the enquiry and proceedings.

Provided that no costs shall be recoverable from the parties on account of the issue of notices citing the parties and fixing a date for the first hearing of the case.

57. The summary decision of the Court under section 54 shall have no other effect than that of settling the actual possession; but for this purpose it shall be final, not subject to any appeal or order for review.

Civil Court to certify its determination to Collector.

58. The Court shall certify to the Collector its determination as to the right of possession, and the Collector shall thereupon make the necessary entries in the proper Registers.

Fees for mutations and entries.

59. The Lieutenant-Governor may prescribe proper fees for changes or entries in the Registers; provided that no fee for a single change or entry shall exceed one hundred rupees.

Such fees shall be levied from the person in whose favor the change or entry is made.

Any two or more persons may join in one application for the registration of their names under this Act in respect of one estate or revenue-free property; and such joint application shall, for the purpose of levying fees under this section, be deemed to be one application.

All fees levied under this section shall be expended in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor may think fit.

Penalty for omitting to comply with provisions of Act.

60. Whoever, being required by this Act to apply for the registration of his name and the extent of his interest in any estate or revenue-free property, voluntarily or negligently omits to make such application within the prescribed time, shall be liable to such fine as the Collector may think fit to impose, not exceeding one hundred rupees for such omission, and to such further daily fine as the Collector may think fit to impose, not exceeding fifty rupees, for each day during which such person shall omit to apply for such registration after a date to be fixed by the Collector in a notice requiring such person to apply for registration. Such notice shall be served in the manner prescribed in section 47, and the date before which such person is required to apply for registration shall not be less than one month after service of such notice.

The Collector may proceed from time to time to levy any amount which has become due in respect of any such fine, notwithstanding that an appeal against the order imposing such fine may be pending.

Provided that whenever the amount levied under any such order shall have exceeded five hundred rupees, the Collector shall report the case specially to the Commissioner of the Division, and no further levy in respect of such fine shall be made otherwise than by authority of the said Commissioner.

From the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, dated 7th September 1875, and enclosures.

We have considered the communications noted in the margin.

The principal additions which we have made to the Bill consist of a chapter on towns, a chapter on stations, and a number of conservancy regulations taken for the most part from the Calcutta Municipal Bill.

Act XX of 1856 provided for the raising of funds by taxation for the support of the chowkidars in what were known as Chowkidari Unions. The objects of the Act were extended by subsequent Acts, and the numerous sections relating to the Police were repealed by other subsequent Acts, which also applied to and amended other existing Municipal laws. In order to consolidate the existing law, we have repealed Act XX of 1856 and the subsequent modifying Acts; and have re-enacted the existing provisions, as far as they related to the old Chowkidari Unions, in Chapter III

For the same reasons we have repealed Act XXVI of 1850, and have re-enacted its provisions in Chapter IV.

We have divided the conservancy regulations into two heads. The first head comprises those simple regulations which are generally applicable to municipalities in the mofussil. But as some municipalities may not be sufficiently advanced even for all of these, we have provided that the Lieutenant-Governor may at any time, on the recommendation of the Commissioners, order that any of them do cease to be in force in any municipality. The second head includes provisions with respect to drains, obstructions on roads, building regulations, sanitation of blocks of huts, sale of food, drink, and drugs, offensive and dangerous trades, &c., which, although necessary in large and advanced municipalities, such as the suburbs of Calcutta, are certainly not required in most of the places affected by this Bill. None of these provisions, therefore, will apply to any municipality, until they have been expressly extended thereto by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of the Commissioners.

We have introduced a section prohibiting the extension of the Act to any cantonment without the consent of the Governor-General in Council.

We have altered the definitions of "carriage," "cart," and "Magistrate of the district," and have amplified the definitions of "holding," "Magistrate," and "owner."

We have provided that no tract of country shall be declared to be a second class Municipality unless it contains at least three thousand inhabitants and an average number of not less than one thousand inhabitants to the square mile of area. The requirements of the original Bill in this respect were only one thousand inhabitants and an average of five hundred to the square mile.

We have precisely defined the powers of the Lieutenant-Governor as to uniting places for the purpose of forming Municipalities, and have provided that no such places may be united which are not situated within one mile of the tract which forms the nucleus of the Municipality.

We have decided that the number of Commissioners be not less than seven, or more than thirty, in a first class municipality, and not less than four, or more than twenty, in a second class municipality.

We have empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to remove a Commissioner who has been guilty of misconduct in the discharge of his duties, or of any disgraceful conduct; and we have provided that a Commissioner who fails to attend six consecutive meetings, or who has been convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment, shall cease to be a Commissioner.

We have, in accordance with the opinion of a majority of the members of the Committee, omitted the clauses which required municipalities to contribute towards the expense of special establishments entertained by the Magistrates of districts and by Commissioners of divisions for work connected with municipalities.

We have made no change in the rate on the annual value of holdings, except in the case of the municipality of Dacca, where we have fixed the limit at 10 per cent., at which the limit is already fixed by the special Act applicable to that place.

We have provided that even in places in which the tax on persons occupying holdings according to their circumstances and property is in force, no such tax shall be levied in respect of the occupation of public buildings, but that such buildings shall pay a rate of 7½ per cent. on their annual value.

We have exempted hospitals, police stations, and buildings used for the purposes of the municipality, from municipal taxation.

We have introduced a section empowering the Commissioners to cancel the lease of a ferry, and make proper provision for the safety and convenience of the public, if the lessee of the ferry has failed to do so.

We have provided that the expenses incurred by a deputation of municipal police beyond the limits of a municipality shall be borne by the local Government and not by the municipality.

We have defined more clearly the powers of the Commissioners with respect to the recovery of expenses incurred by them on behalf of the owners and occupiers of land; and have provided that disputes in respect of the recovery of such expenses, and disputes in respect of the amount and apportionment of any compensation or damages payable by the Commissioners, may, in case of dispute, be settled by a reference to a civil court.

We have provided for the creation of a "Market Fund" distinct from the Municipal Fund, to which all sums received in respect of any market will be credited.

For the sake of convenience, we have distributed the sections relating to penalties, which were collected at the end, throughout the Bill. Every section imposing a penalty now follows the section which specifies the offence.

We have made considerable alterations in the form of the Bill. Thus Chapters XI to XII of the original Bill are now, with the exception of the Schedules, included in one chapter, which deals solely with municipalities. The two following chapters deal with towns and stations, while the last chapter contains some provisions which are applicable alike to municipalities, towns, and stations.

We have made many other minor alterations, and considerable changes in the arrangement of the Bill.

As the Bill is now arranged, the first chapter is preliminary;

the second chapter relates exclusively to municipalities which may be said to take the place of municipalities under the District Municipalities' Improvement Act, and also of towns under the District Towns' Act, both of which are repealed by the Bill;

the third chapter relates solely to towns, which, as has been said, take the place of the Chowkidari Unions under Act XX of 1856 (now to be repealed);

the fourth chapter relates solely to stations, and takes the place of Act XXVI of 1850 (now to be repealed); and the fifth chapter contains general provisions applicable alike to municipalities, towns, and stations.

We recommend that the Bill be passed as now presented by us.

In case such whole number is not evenly divisible by three, the one-third shall be ascertained by taking the number next below the whole number which is evenly divisible by three, as the number to be divided.

The Commissioners who shall retire at the end of the first and second year respectively shall be selected by lot out of those who have held office for more than three years at the end of such years respectively; and should the number of persons who have held office for three years fall short of one-third of the whole number of Commissioners, the number required to make up the one-third shall be selected by lot out of those Commissioners who have held office for less than three years.

When Commissioner may be re-appointed or re-elected.

28. Any person who has resigned the office of Commissioner, or has retired therefrom under sections 23, 24, or 27, or who has ceased to be a Commissioner in consequence of his failure to attend meetings as provided in section 22, may be at any time re-appointed or re-elected a Commissioner; but no person removed by the Lieutenant-Governor from his office under section 21, or who has ceased to be a Commissioner in consequence of his being convicted of an offence which is punishable with imprisonment as provided in section 22, may be elected or re-elected a Commissioner without the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Such Vice-Chairman, on election or re-election, shall be held to be appointed a Commissioner under this Act during his term of office.

Such Vice-Chairman may at any time be removed from the office of Vice-Chairman by a resolution of the Commissioners, in favor of which not less than two-thirds of the Commissioners shall have given their votes either personally or in writing:

84. If the annual value of any house or land as assessed under Chapter V, shall in any case exceed the amount of rent payable by the occupier to the owner, the owner may in such case recover from the occupier the difference between the sum assessed upon him and the sum at which he would have been assessed had he been rated only upon the amount of rent actually payable to him, and such difference shall be added to the rent payable by the occupier, and shall be recoverable by the owner from him.

Remission of house-rate when house vacant.

85. Where any house or land, whereon the rate is assessed under section eighty-two has been vacant for sixty consecutive days during any year, the person assessed to the said rate shall be entitled to a remission of so much thereof, not exceeding one-half of the rate for that year, as shall be proportionate to the number of days such house or land has been vacant, if notice shall have been given in writing to the Commissioners of such house or land being vacant; and the date of vacancy shall be calculated from the date of the delivery of such notice at the office of the Commissioners.

86. No remission shall be made under the last preceding section, unless the same shall be applied for within six months from the date of cessation of occupation of the house or land on account of which the remission is applied for.

PART III.—Of the Occupier's Rates.

Refund of Water-rate when house ceases to be occupied.

87. Whenever any quarterly instalment of Water-rate shall have been paid in respect of any house or land, and such house or land shall, during the quarter for which such instalment shall have been paid, cease to be occupied, the person who shall have paid such Water-rate shall be entitled to be repaid by the Commissioners three-fourths of such sum as shall bear to the amount paid by him the same proportion which the residue of the quarter bears to an entire quarter, if notice shall have been given in writing to the Commissioners of such house or land being vacant; and the date of vacancy shall be calculated from the date of the delivery of such notice at the office of the Commissioners.

In any case of an appeal to the Court of Small Causes under this section the said Court may follow the procedure laid down in sections three hundred and forty-eight and three hundred and forty-nine.

Notice to be given by person appealing.

109. Any person desiring to appeal against any assessment made under this chapter, shall, within fifteen days of the notice referred to in section one hundred and six, deliver at the office of the Commissioners a notice in writing, stating the grounds of appeal, and also informing the Commissioners whether he intends to appeal under clause (a) or (b) of the last preceding section.

No appeal shall lie as hereinbefore provided unless the amount of the house-rate for one quarter, under the assessment about to expire, has been deposited with the Commissioners; and unless the appeal is preferred by the person who, at the time the appeal is made, shall be recorded in the said book as the owner of the house or land to which the appeal refers, or by the occupier thereof, or by the agent of either of them.

Notice of day for hearing appeals.

110. The Commissioners shall give notice of a day, not being less than fifteen days from the publication of such notice, when they will proceed to hear the appeals under clause (a) of section one hundred and eight.

112. The assessments made by the Commissioners in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred and three, subject to such alterations as may from time to time thereafter be duly made on appeal, shall be entered in the assessment book, and the rate calculated on the said assessment shall, subject to such alterations as aforesaid, be deemed to be the rate for the whole period for which the assessment is made, and this period shall be calculated from the commencement of the quarter succeeding that in which any such amendment shall be so authenticated; and until such date the old assessment shall continue in force, notwithstanding that the period for which the old assessment was made may have expired.

Alteration or amendment of assessment.

113. The Chairman or Vice-Chairman may at any time amend the assessment book by inserting therein the name of any person whose name ought to be so inserted, or by inserting any house or land liable to the rate, after giving notice, to any person interested in the making of the amendment, of a day, not being less than fifteen days from the date of the service of such notice, when such amendment is to be made; or by striking out the name of any person or any house or land not liable to the rate, or reducing the amount of the assessment, without notice:

and if any amendment shall be made, in cases where notice is required, the same shall be deemed to have been made on the expiration of fifteen days after service of the said notice; and any person interested in such amendment may appeal by application in writing to the Commissioners, to be left at their office three clear days before the day fixed in the said notice for such amendment; and the provisions of sections one hundred and eight and one hundred and nine, shall, so far as may be practicable, apply to such appeal.

New assessment book need not be prepared every six years.

114. It shall not be necessary to prepare a new assessment book at the expiration of each period of assessment, but the Commissioners in meeting, other than an ordinary meeting, may adopt the valuation or measurement and assessment contained in any assessment book for any previous period, with such alterations as may in particular cases, be deemed necessary, as the valuation, or measurement and assessment for the period next following;

Provided that sections one hundred and four to one hundred and twelve (inclusive) shall, as far as may be practicable, be applicable to such valuation or measurement and assessment, and to the assessment book or books in which it is contained.

CHAPTER VI.

OF LEVYING THE RATES.

Bills to be presented.

115. When any rate is due, the Commissioners shall cause to be presented, to the person liable to the payment thereof, a bill for the sum due, which shall also contain a statement of the period, and a description of the property for which the rate is charged.

Provided that whenever any rate is payable by the owner of the land, and the said owner is not the owner of the house situated on the said land, the assessment on the land and on the house shall be separately entered in the said bill.

Notice of demand.

116. If the bill is not paid by the person liable to pay the same within seven days from the presentation thereof, the Commissioners may cause to be served upon such person a notice of demand, in the form contained in the fourth schedule, or to the like effect; and if he shall not, within seven days from the service of such notice of demand, pay the sum due, or show sufficient cause, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, for non-payment of the same, such sum, with all costs, may be levied by distress and sale of the moveable property of the defaulter, or if the defaulter be the occupier of any house or land in respect of which a rate is due, by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the house or land, under a warrant in the form contained in the fifth schedule, or to the like effect, to be issued for that purpose by the Commissioners.

Distress.

For every notice of demand under this section which the Commissioners shall cause to be served upon any person, a fee, not exceeding one rupee, shall be paid by such person.

Such fee shall be added to the amount of the rate in respect of which the notice is given, and, if not duly paid, shall be levied in the same manner as such rate may be levied.

117. The officer charged with the execution of a warrant of distress under the last preceding section shall make an inventory of the moveable property seized under such warrant, and shall at the time give a notice in writing, in the form contained in the sixth schedule, to the person in possession thereof at the time of the seizure, that the said moveable property will be sold as therein mentioned.

Inventory—notice of distress.

118. If the warrant is not in the meantime discharged or suspended by the Commissioners, the moveable property seized shall be sold under the orders of the Commissioners, who shall apply the proceeds, or such part thereof as may be necessary, in discharge of the said arrears and costs; and the surplus, if any, shall be returned, on demand, to the person in possession of the moveable property at the time of the seizure.

Sale.

All sales of property under this section shall, so far as may be practicable, be regulated by the procedure now in force or hereafter to be in force in the Court of Small Causes with respect to sale after distress.

Fees shall be payable upon distraints under this Act according to the rates set forth in the Table of Fees in the sixth schedule.

119. The moveable property of any person from whom any rate is due may be distrained, wherever the same may be found, for default in payment of the money due from him.

Goods of defaulter, wherever found, may be distrained.

120. If the sum due on account of any rate from the owner of any house or land remains unpaid after notice of demand has been duly served, the Commissioners may demand the amount from the occupier for the time being of the house or land, and, on non-payment thereof, may recover the same by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the house or land, and, in such case, the occupier may deduct, from the next and following payments of his rent, the amount which may be so paid by, or recovered from, him.

Rate due from owner may be recovered from occupier, and deducted by him from his rent.

Provided that no arrear of rate, which has remained due from the owner of any house or land for more than one year, shall be so recovered from the occupier thereof.

121. No distress levied under this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the notice, schedule, summons, notice of demand, warrant of distress, inventory, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser on account of any irregularity committed by him; but all persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for any special damage sustained by them in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Distress not unlawful for want of form.

122. Instead of proceeding by distress and sale, or in case of failure to realize by distress and sale the whole or any part of the sum due in respect of any rate, the Commissioners may sue the person liable to pay the same in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Commissioners may sue, instead of proceeding by distress.

CHAPTER VII.

123. The Commissioners shall provide a supply of water within the Town, and shall for that purpose cause such mains and pipes to be laid, and such tanks, reservoirs, or other works to be made and constructed, as shall be necessary for the supply of filtered water in all the chief public streets of the Town, and shall also erect, in all such streets, sufficient and convenient stand-pipes or pumps for the gratuitous use of the inhabitants of the Town for domestic purposes.

The occupier of every house shall be entitled to have, free of further charge, fifteen hundred gallons of filtered water for every rupee paid to the Commissioners as Water-rate on account of such house, to be supplied from the service pipes of the Commissioners for domestic use through a ferrule of such size as the Commissioners may determine. Water may be cut off on neglect to pay the rate.

PART II.

OF EMIGRATION.

Emigration Agents, Medical Inspectors and Depôts.

Appointment of Emigration Agent. 4. At every port of embarkation the Chief Commissioner shall, with the consent of the Local Government, appoint an Emigration Agent, to whom such remuneration shall be assigned as the Government of India may from time to time direct. Such Agent may be suspended or removed at the pleasure of the Chief Commissioner.

Appointment of Medical Inspector. At every such port the Local Government shall appoint a competent person to be Medical Inspector of Emigrants, and such remuneration shall be assigned to him as the Governor General in Council may from time to time direct. Such Medical Inspector may be suspended or removed at the pleasure of the Local Government.

Emigration Agent and Medical Inspector to be deemed public servants. 5. Every such Emigration Agent and Medical Inspector shall be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Duties of Agent. 6. In addition to the special duties hereinafter assigned to him, every such Emigration Agent shall—

Every Emigration Agent, and all persons in charge of, or employed in, any depôt or in any vessel licensed to carry emigrants as hereinafter provided, shall give the Medical Inspector every facility for making such inspections, examinations and surveys as may be necessary or proper under this Act, and shall afford him all such information as may be reasonably required by him.

Establishment of depôts for emigrants. 8. At each port of embarkation the Emigration Agent shall establish a suitable depôt for emigrants.

Recruiters.

Licensing of recruiters. 9. Each Emigration Agent shall license as many fit persons (whether servants of Government, of individuals or of companies) as he thinks necessary to be recruiters of labourers for British Burma.

If any officer who has countersigned a license afterwards finds reason to think that the licensee is by character or other cause unfitted to be a recruiter under this Act, he may require the licensee to produce the license and may cancel his signature; or he may, if he thinks fit, impound the license and send it to the Emigration Agent for cancellation.

Every such officer refusing to countersign a recruiter's license, or cancelling his signature, shall, without delay, report his refusal or cancellation and the grounds of it to the Emigration Agent to whose authority the recruiter is amenable.

Contracts and Registration and Journey to Depôts.

13. Any person desiring to emigrate under this Act may enter into a contract with a recruiter to proceed to British Burma and there serve for a fixed period of not more than three years from the date of his arrival at the port of debarkation.

(b) the name of the village or place in which he resides:

(c) the port of embarkation to which it is intended that he shall proceed:

The recruit shall thereupon be deemed an emigrant under this Act.

If the Magistrate thinks that the recruit does not understand the nature of his contract, or has been induced to enter into it by fraud or misrepresentation, he shall refuse to register him, and record his reasons for such refusal.

17. On the appearance of any person claiming to be dependent on an emigrant, the Magistrate, after inspecting the medical certificate, shall, apart from the recruiter, examine such person if able to give intelligent answers to questions as to his dependence upon the emigrant whom he is about to accompany, and as to his willingness to accompany such emigrant.

Examination of dependents on emigrants.

If the Magistrate is satisfied as to the said dependence and willingness, he shall register the dependent as a dependent on such emigrant.

But if the Magistrate sees reason to doubt such dependence or willingness, he may refuse to register the alleged dependent, and, if so, shall record his reasons for such refusal.

Registration of emigrants.

18. The Magistrate shall furnish to every emigrant an authenticated copy on substantial paper of the matters registered under sections sixteen and seventeen.

Such copy is hereinafter called "the emigrant's instrument" or the "immigrant's instrument."

and whoever wilfully neglects to supply any emigrant or dependent under his care with proper and sufficient food and lodging, or otherwise ill-treats such emigrant or dependent on his journey to the depôt;

Any person so suffering may, if the Medical Inspector thinks fit, be removed to a proper hospital for treatment.

Emigration Agent to pay return expenses of rejected emigrants.

26. If the Medical Inspector has reason to think that any emigrant is in such a state of health that his journey to British Burma, or detention in the depôt, would be dangerous to himself or others, or that he is unfit for labour in British Burma, he shall so certify to the Emigration Agent; and in case any emigrant is in such a state of health as aforesaid, the Emigration Agent shall pay to such emigrant such sum as is necessary to enable him to return to the place at which he was registered:

And any emigrant who, from his state of health, is, in the opinion of the Medical Inspector, unfit to undertake such journey, shall be entitled to be fed, lodged and attended to at the port of embarkation at the expense of the Emigration Agent, until he is reported by the Medical Inspector fit to undertake such journey.

Return expenses of dependents.

27. If a dependent has accompanied such emigrant, the Emigration Agent shall pay such sum as is necessary to enable him to return to the place at which he was registered, as well as to feed and lodge him during the detention (if any) of the emigrant in the depôt.

Procedure where dependent is dangerously ill.

28. If the Medical Inspector sees reason to think that any dependent is in such a state of health that his journey to British Burma or his detention in the depôt would be dangerous to himself or others, he shall so certify to the Emigration Agent; and thereupon the emigrant to whom such dependent is attached shall be entitled, if he so wishes, to return as if he himself had been certified to be unfit to proceed under section twenty-six.

If the emigrant still desires to proceed, then the dependent shall be kept and be returned to the place at which he was registered as if he were an emigrant falling under section twenty-six.

Countersignature by Medical Inspector where emigrant or dependent is passed by him.

29. If the Medical Inspector sees no reason to certify in the manner provided in section twenty-six or section twenty-eight of any emigrant or dependent, he shall countersign the copy of the emigrant's instrument which is in the possession of the Emigration Agent.

Procedure in case of ill-treatment on journey.

30. If, upon the arrival of any emigrant or dependent at the depôt, it appear that he has suffered any ill-treatment, or that the recruiter has failed to provide him with proper and sufficient food and lodging during the journey to the depôt, the Local Government or such officer as it may from time to time appoint in this behalf may order the Emigration Agent to pay him a reasonable sum by way of compensation.

Ratification of contracts of emigrants passed by Medical Inspector.

31. When the copy of an emigrant's instrument has been countersigned by the Medical Inspector under section twenty-nine, the Emigration Agent shall ratify the contract into which the emigrant has entered, by countersigning the emigrant's instrument and the authenticated copy thereof forwarded to the Emigration Agent under section eighteen.

Any emigrant who, without reasonable cause, refuses to produce his instrument when required by the Emigration Agent, or in any respect to comply with the terms of his contract, shall be punished with a fine equal in amount to the cost incurred in engaging, registering and conveying him to the depôt, and in default of payment of such fine with imprisonment which may extend to two months, and such emigrant may forthwith be discharged from the depôt.

A certificate signed by the Emigration Agent that reasonable cause for refusing to produce the emigrant's instrument has not been shown, shall be admissible as primâ facie evidence in any proceeding taken under this section.

A certificate signed by the Emigration Agent, stating the cost incurred in engaging, registering and conveying the emigrant to the depôt, shall be conclusive evidence of the amount of such cost.

Every fine levied under the provisions of this section shall be paid to the Emigration Agent.

Procedure if Agent neglects to ratify contract.

34. If within thirty days after the arrival at a depôt of any emigrant, the Emigration Agent does not offer to ratify such contract in manner aforesaid, or if the Emigration Agent, without the consent of the Local Government, refuses to be bound by the contract made with the emigrant, the Local Government, or such officer as it may from time to time appoint in this behalf, may order the Emigration Agent to pay to such emigrant such sum of money as is necessary to enable him, together with the dependents (if any) upon him, to return to the place where he was registered, and also to pay him a reasonable sum by way of compensation, and in such case the emigrant shall be released from his contract.

Consequence of ratification.

35. When the contract, not being a contract to serve a particular employer, has been ratified by the Emigration Agent, the emigrant shall be deemed to have contracted with the Secretary of State for India in Council to proceed to British Burma, and there to labour according to the terms of his contract in any place and mode which, consistently with such terms and with the provisions of this Act, the Chief Commissioner or any officer appointed by him in that behalf may from time to time direct.

On expiry of sentence immigrant to be made over to employer.

and no conviction under this Act, or imprisonment under such conviction, shall, save as aforesaid, operate as a release to any immigrant from the terms of his contract:

77. If, upon such enquiry, the Inspector finds that the complaint is untrue or frivolous or vexatious, he shall enter in his book the particulars of such complaint, and a short statement of the grounds of his finding respecting it, and shall dismiss the complaint; and in such case shall endorse on the employer's instrument the number of days during which the complainant has been absent from work in consequence of such enquiry, and such number of days shall be added to the period for which the complainant had contracted to serve,

If the Inspector is not a Magistrate, he shall without delay send the complainant and his witnesses to the nearest Magistrate, and such Magistrate shall thereupon dispose of the case in due course of law.

Recovery of wages.

79. If, upon the complaint of any immigrant, it is proved to the satisfaction of the Magistrate that the wages of such immigrant are in arrear to an amount exceeding the total of his wages for two months, such Magistrate may award to the complainant the amount which appears to be then due to him; and also, by way of compensation, such further sum, not exceeding that amount, as appears to the Magistrate to be just; and in case of default, the entire sum shall be recovered in manner provided by section ninety-one, and shall be paid to the complainant.

Compensation if wages are due for more than two months.

Cancellation of assignment.

80. If any employer, or any person placed in authority over any immigrant by such employer, is convicted of any offence causing injury to the person or property of such immigrant and triable under the Code of Criminal Procedure by the Court of Session; or if any such employer, or other person as aforesaid, is twice convicted of any such offence against such immigrant triable under the said Code by a Magistrate;

or if it be proved before a Magistrate that the wages of such immigrant are in arrear to an amount exceeding the total of such wages for three months;

or if a Magistrate, on the report of the Inspector, and after due enquiry in the presence of the parties, is satisfied that any immigrant has been subjected to ill-usage by such employer or any other person placed in authority over the immigrant by such employer, or has been compelled by such employer or person to perform any labour when known to such employer or person to be unfit for it, the Magistrate may, if he think fit, on the application of the immigrant, in each of such cases, cancel the assignment of such immigrant, and award to him, in addition to the wages (if any) due for service performed, compensation not exceeding thirty rupees.

Every such cancelment shall be certified by the Magistrate on the back of the immigrant's instrument, or if such instrument be not forthcoming, by writing under the Magistrate's hand delivered to the immigrant.

The compensation may be recovered in manner provided by section ninety-one.

Determination of Assignments and Contracts.

Immigrant who has completed his assignment may have such completion endorsed.

81. Every immigrant assigned under this Act, on completing the term of his assignment or on the avoidance of the same may appear before the Inspector or Immigration Agent, who shall, on being satisfied that the term has come to an end, make an entry to that effect on the immigrant's instrument.

Penalty for forcibly detaining immigrant after completion of assignment, or for omitting to give notice of such completion.

82. Any employer or agent forcibly or fraudulently detaining an immigrant after the completion or avoidance of his assignment, or wilfully failing to give notice of such completion in accordance with rules prescribed under section eighty-seven, shall be liable to fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Immigrant not assigned under Act may redeem unexpired term of contract.

83. Any immigrant who is not assigned under this Act may redeem the unexpired term of his contract of service by paying to the Immigration Agent such sum of money as will repay the expense incurred by Government under this Act and chargeable to such immigrant after taking into account any repayment already made by him; and the certificate of the Immigration Agent shall be conclusive evidence of the sum so chargeable.

Power to redeem contract.

84. Any immigrant who is assigned under this Act, and who is desirous to redeem the unexpired term of his contract, may demand to be taken or allowed to go before the Inspector of Immigrants within the local limits of whose authority he may be employed.

The Inspector shall then inform him what is the price at which his contract may be redeemed;

and on his depositing that price in the hands of the Inspector, the Inspector shall give notice to the employer that such immigrant requires him, within one week, to show cause why such immigrant should not redeem his contract for the sum so deposited;

and if no sufficient cause be shown within that time or such enlarged time as the Inspector deems reasonable, he shall require the production of the immigrant's instrument and endorse thereon a certificate of redemption, and out of the sum in deposit the employer of such immigrant shall be paid the value of the unexpired term of assignment.

From and after the date of such endorsement the immigrant's contract shall be deemed to have determined.

Value of unexpired term of assignment.

The value of the unexpired term of assignment shall be such as is provided for by the terms of the assignment, or as may be fixed by any rules made under section eighty-seven, clause (g), and in force at the date of the assignment.

REGISTRATION OF POSSESSORY TITLES.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, in presenting the report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the compulsory registration of possessory titles in revenue-paying estates and revenue-free lands, said that the title of the Bill was altered, and it now stood as a Bill to provide for the registration of revenue-paying estates and revenue-free lands, and of the proprietors and managers in possession thereof. The enacting provisions of the Bill might be divided into two portions. The first portion, ending with Part III, merely re-enacted such of the existing provisions as were now required regarding the forms of the registers and the particulars which were to be recorded in them. This part of the Bill imposed obligations on the Collector. In it the Select Committee had made but small changes, and it would be unnecessary for MR. DAMPIER to repeat what was already fully set out in the printed report in the hands of the members.

He should therefore proceed at once to the fourth Part of the Bill, which imposed obligations on the public. The heading of this Part was, "Of the Registration and Mutation of Names of Proprietors and Managers." In that Part the Committee had made most important changes, having imposed on proprietors and managers the obligation to register, not only the fact of their being in possession as proprietors and managers, but also the extent of the interest of which each proprietor and manager was in such possession. The subject of registering the extent of interest had often been under consideration, and it was taken up again by the Select Committee. The advantage which a complete registration of interests would afford could not be denied, but it had always been considered that any attempt to secure such registration would immediately entail a mass of work which would overwhelm the courts and officers concerned; that it would cause an enormous amount of harassment and vexation to those who were called upon to register, and would create an amount of litigation with which it would be impossible almost to cope. In view of the great importance of the question, the Select Committee had taken the views of practical officers on the subject. He would read extracts from letters written by three of those gentlemen. Mr. Whinfield, Collector of Burdwan, wrote:—

"I do not think the requisition to register the extent of each proprietor's share would entail a prohibitive amount of litigation on the proprietors or of labour on the Collector.

"In the vast majority of cases there is no dispute at all as to the amount of shares; and where there are disputes, it is clearly best for the proprietors to have the matter brought to issue, and settled at the earliest possible date, before the merits of the question become obscured by lapse of time. Undoubtedly, there will be an increase of litigation just at first, while existing titles are being registered, but afterwards I think this provision will tend to decrease litigation as to extent of shares, because each dispute will be nipped in the bud."

Then Mr. Stevens of Nuddea said:—

"In my opinion the utility of the Bill will be enormously increased if the Collector be required to register the extent of the interest of which each proprietor is in possession. It would certainly increase work considerably in this particular direction, but in others it would probably diminish it, provided that the Collector's decision had the effect of binding the parties until it might be reversed by a competent Civil Court. It would prevent co-sharers from prolonging disputes to the annoyance of their tenants, and to the general detriment of the country; and in this way, too, the labours of the police and Magistrates would be not unfrequently lightened."

That was, MR. DAMPIER thought, a most important remark. Then Mr. Lyall, writing from Eastern Bengal, said:—

"I am of opinion that the registration of the extent of the interest of each proprietor would be an unmixed gain, and that the procedure suggested in your paragraph 3 is simple and feasible, and would not cause any great increase of work.

"There are, after all, not a great many estates in which any dispute as to shares arises; and it would be a distinct gain to the owners if they could get an easy and summary decision.

"At present, when a dispute arises, it is the interest of the man who is in the right to go at once to court and have the matter settled; but he thereby throws on himself the whole onus of proof, and fears to go to court unless absolutely compelled.

"Under the proposed Act the Collector would make a summary inquiry in which his decision would at least nine times out of ten be correct, and thereby the party in the wrong would either be forced into court as plaintiff, or have to accept the Collector's decision.

"I have seen so much of the evils of deferred litigation that I am in favour of anything that will compel parties to settle their disputes as soon as they arise, which the plan suggested certainly would do.

"Even if it be allowed that the work in the first six months would be heavy, it would soon fall off, and the law would ultimately be a great prevention of litigation."

Now, these gentlemen were very strongly in favour of the registration of the extent of shares. Another great advantage had not been mentioned in these extracts, viz. the advantage to ryots in estates. We could not profess in a Bill of this sort to secure the ryots against further demands from proprietors whose names were not registered, but it would certainly be of some help in assisting ryots when they bonâ fide wished to know how much of their rent they ought to pay to what proprietors. As things now stood, the ryots were subjected to much doubt and harassment from the conflicting claims of their joint landlords to collect rents from them.

Let the case of an estate be supposed in which there were two joint owners, each of whom was admitted by the other to be owner of a six-annas share, the remaining four-annas share being claimed by both; and if both of them were powerful proprietors, they would both collect the portion of rent representing the disputed four annas share; many ryots who were not prepared to do battle in the courts would put up with the double payment. So that an Act under which the extent of interest should be registered, as now proposed in this Bill, would give the ryots a hand-book to which they might turn in cases of that sort. The doubting ryot would at any rate see the extent of interest for which any claiming zemindar was registered in the Collector's books. Of course afterwards disputes might be settled in the Civil Court, and the result might be different; but in the meantime the ryot would have a compass by which to steer in the actual payment of rent.

The arguments against the proposed measure were—that a vast amount of litigation, as he had already said, would be stirred up; that disputes would be forced into court which would otherwise be amicably settled in the course of time; and that this work would be fruitless, and would lead to no result, because a regular suit to establish the right would, as a matter of course, follow the summary proceeding.

He had purposely omitted to mention one argument which had been urged in favour of the proposal, and which at first sight was immeasurably more important and more weighty than, he supposed, all the rest put together, and that was that one of the benefits of this registration of the extent of interest would be to enhance the selling value of property by tending to remove doubts as to title.

Now it was absolutely necessary that all who were considering this Bill should clearly see the exact force of that argument in all its bearings. A Bill based on that argument, and very similar to the present Bill, was framed by the Board of Revenue so long ago as 1852, and sent up to the Government of India. Sir Barnes Peacock, then a Member of the Council of the Governor-General, wrote a minute on that Bill, from which the following was an extract—

"If it is intended that any reliance shall be placed on the register by persons about to purchase lands or to lend money upon the security thereof, (and unless the register is to be so used, I do not see how it can render land a surer investment for money,) I think it will be worse than useless, as it will frequently record persons to be the owners of rights which do not belong to them, and may thus be made an instrument of fraud."

The objection was this. The Bill proposed to register the possession of proprietory interests; it did not profess to bar the future assertion of rights by a person who did not appear to contest the registration of another person's name. Nor could such a Bill do so; for it might be that the rightful proprietor was not in possession, and had no right to be in possession, and therefore did not care to dispute the registration of the applicant's name by the Collector. It was immaterial to him whose name was registered as in present possession, when he, the rightful proprietor, had no right to enter into possession until some future time, so that even putting aside cases of fraud, the register would be misleading to any one who consulted it for the purpose of ascertaining how the title stood. Then it was easy to imagine that, if the register were so used, great opportunities for fraud would be given. A and B acquire an estate jointly. With the intention of defrauding C, A and B collude. A gets his name registered as proprietor in possession of the whole estate; B colluding, keeps in the background, and does not oppose the registration of A's name. Then A sells the entire estate to C, getting out of him the full value; and as soon as C attempts to take possession, B comes out of retirement and establishes his claim to one-half of the estate for which C has paid the full value to A.

MR. DAMPIER had gone into detail on this matter, because, amongst the opinions given in favour of the measure, and some of them by very high officers whose opinions were entitled to the greatest respect, this argument was used without any fear being expressed as to the possibility of fraud or misleading. It must be most thoroughly understood that the registration of the extent of interest under this Bill could be nothing more than an auxiliary to assist persons in their inquiries as to titles. He considered this one of the greatest objections to the registration of the extent of interest in this way,—the fear that this danger to which he had been alluding would be lost sight of by the public.

Those were the arguments on the two sides of the question; and with all these considerations before them, the Select Committee had determined to recommend that the extent of interest be registered as well as the fact of possession. They considered that on the whole the advantages would outweigh the disadvantages of such a course.

The registration would be of possession where possession existed; but it, remained to notice those cases in which no possession had been made good—in which the applicant claimed to have succeeded to a certain interest, but was opposed by some other person claiming a right in the same interest, neither party having possession. In cases of that sort in the North-Western Provinces, the Collector was allowed to try the question of right to possession summarily, and to put in possession the party whom he considered to have that right. In the Lower Provinces, however, the Committee had thought it best to let the Bill stand as it was. It provided that the question of disputed possession should not be settled by the Collector himself on a summary trial, but should be referred to the Civil Court, which would try summarily the question of right to possession, and nothing else. That decision would be open to no appeal, but would be subject to a regular suit.

There was only one provision of sufficient importance to detain the Council besides these. As the Bill was sent to the Committee, it contained a clause providing that any person required by the Act to register his name, who omitted to do it, should be what the Hon'ble Member opposite (Baboo Kristodas Pal) had called "outlawed;" that was to say, he should be disabled from suing for rent, or taking advantage of any law for the recovery of rent. The Select Committee had omitted that section. It was considered by the majority that the power which the Bill gave to the Collector of imposing a daily fine was sufficient; and if it was sufficient, MR. DAMPIER for one was against any such unpopular and irritating measure as debarring zemindars from exercising their legal rights.

With these remarks he begged to present the report of the Select Committee; and as the time at the disposal of Government for legislative work was running very short, and as it was desirable that, when this Bill was published for the information of the public, any remarks of hon'ble members on the subject, which they might like to make, should also be before the public, he would ask His Honor the President to suspend the Rules for the conduct of business, in order that the report of the Select Committee might be taken into consideration, and the clauses of the Bill be provisionally settled.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT having declared the Rules suspended—

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that the report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and that the clauses of the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was agreed to.

Sections 4 to 36 were severally agreed to.

Section 37 provided, amongst other things, that the extent of interest of proprietors and managers should be registered.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said, as he had ventured to suggest the propriety of embodying a provision in the Bill for the registration of shares, he desired to take this opportunity to thank his hon'ble colleagues of the Select Committee for taking that suggestion into their careful consideration and providing for such registration in the Bill. The tendency of modern legislation seemed to be to bring into record rights and interests connected with the land as much as practicable, and it was in conformity with that policy he thought it highly desirable, when registration of title was provided for in a new law, that due provision should be made for the registration of shares, that was to say, the extent of the interests of proprietors.

The hon'ble mover of the Bill had explained the advantages which such registration was calculated to produce, and BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would not therefore repeat what had already been said. But he might remark that, although the existing law did not provide for the registration of shares, practically the applications which were made for the registration of names contained generally all necessary information about the extent of the share of each proprietor. The Bill would simply sanction the registration of that which the applications for registration generally indicated. He believed that in four cases out of six there would be no dispute whatever as to the extent of shares. In those cases which might be disputed, a summary inquiry would meet all the requirements of justice for the purposes of the Act, leaving the parties to fight out the battle, if they wished, in a regular suit in the Civil Court. He was inclined to think that such a summary investigation might prevent considerable litigation. Those who were deeply interested in the land had told him that the present Bill, without permitting any registration of shares, would be simply a Bill for the benefit of the Government, and would not, in the remotest degree, benefit the public at large. The Government thought that it could not, under existing circumstances, in many cases identify the proprietors who were responsible for the performance of certain public duties, and that it was therefore necessary to compel proprietors to register their names. He admitted that it was desirable to compel registration of that kind, though he was not prepared to say that the Government was not now able to identify, or find out the parties responsible for the discharge of certain obligations to the State. Those who paid in revenue to the Collector were well known to him; and the road cess machinery had also put means in the hands of the Collector for easily finding out the persons responsible for the discharge of those duties to the State.

But it was certainly desirable to have a complete record of the proprietors having a particular interest in the land, and for that purpose the Bill was unobjectionable. At the same time BABOO KRISTODAS PAL thought that the present was a fitting opportunity for giving the public at large—he meant the landed classes—the benefit of such a measure by allowing the registration of shares. Two objections of rather a serious character were raised to this provision. One was this, that the Collector would not have sufficient time for inquiring into disputes connected with the registration of shares. Now the hon'ble mover of the Bill had informed the Council that most of the Collectors whom he had consulted were of opinion that there was ample time for work of the kind proposed. But the Bill did not contemplate throwing much work on the Collector. As the Bill had been framed, the Collector was required simply to record or register the shares of those persons who were in possession. But if the Collector found that there was any question of right involved, he was to refer the case to the Civil Court for summary investigation, and so, practically, much work would not be thrown on the Collector.

The second objection was that such registration would give a fictitious security of title, and people might be induced to purchase property under the fancied security which this registration would confer. The Bill distinctly declared that this registration was intended for the purposes of the Act only; but if the collateral results were what some persons apprehended, he for one thought that it ought not to lead the Council to deny the people the benefits of the law, because some collateral or incidental misapprehension might arise. When Sir Barnes Peacock, for whose opinion of course this Council could not but have the highest respect, objected to the registration of shares, the Bill, as then framed by the Board of Revenue, had a different object in view. It in fact intended to create that security of title which this Bill did not in the remotest degree aim at. The objections which Sir Barnes Peacock had taken to that

Bill were certainly very cogent; but reading this Bill along with the minutes of the Board and Sir Barnes Peacock's minute on the original Bill, Baboo Kristodas Pal found that this Bill was not open to the objections taken to the original one.

The benefits of this measure would not extend only to zemindars; ryots would also derive material advantages from it. As already pointed out by the hon'ble mover, there were cases in which the separate management of joint estates led to great oppression to the ryots by reason of the exact extent of the respective shares of several proprietors not being known to the ryots. Now, if under this Bill the extent of the share of each proprietor were recorded, and notification issued in the villages for the information of the ryots, as Baboo Kristodas Pal had ventured to recommend, the ryots would know how much they were bound to pay to each sharer; and if the sharer did not receive the amount due from the ryots in proportion to his share, they would be at liberty to deposit the amount with the Collector, as under the existing law. The great disadvantage under which the ryots now labored would be removed.

So all things considered, Baboo Kristodas Pal humbly submitted that the registration of shares would be beneficial to the zemindars and ryots alike, whilst it would not in the least affect the interests of the Government. It might be said that if the Bill allowed proprietors to institute a regular suit in the Civil Court for the determination of their respective shares in case of dispute, why drive them to a preliminary suit, and compel them to take a decision which would not be final? Now, he admitted that there was much force in that argument. But taking human nature as it was, he was inclined to think that this preliminary suit might, in many cases, prove to be final. In fact, when the parties saw that their rights had been once determined, and that further litigation would lead only to increased expenditure, trouble, and harassment, in nine cases out of ten, perhaps, they would be content with the decision given by the court in the first instance. At any rate, no one could definitely say now whether this summary investigation would tend to increase of litigation. As far as he had been informed—and he had consulted some of the most experienced zemindars on the subject—they were of opinion that it would reduce litigation.

On these grounds he ventured to express a hope that the Council would agree to the clause providing for the registration of shares.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said it was desirable that this matter should be fully ventilated, and therefore, to prevent misapprehension, he ventured to lay before the Council two remarks which suggested themselves to him in the course of the hon'ble member's speech. The hon'ble member attributed to Mr. Dampier the statement that the Collector would have ample time to try these disputed cases. He had failed to bring to the notice of the Council what was exactly said by the Collectors who were of opinion that these disputed cases should be left to revenue officers to try. They said that it must be distinctly understood that these cases must be tried by Deputy Collectors, with no appeal to the Collector. If once you allowed an appeal to the Collector from the summary investigations held by Deputy Collectors, the Collector would be flooded with work, and it would be quite impossible for him to grapple with it. If you allowed a Deputy Collector to decide summarily, then this work could be met by increasing the number of Deputy Collectors to meet any great influx of business. As an answer to that, it occurred to Mr. Dampier that if it should be determined that the decision of these cases should be left to the revenue authorities, and not to the Civil Court, as now provided in the Bill; if the increase of original work might be met by additional Deputy Collectors, the increase of appellate work might also be met by special officers of the rank of Joint-Magistrates being appointed to try such appeals: the rush of work would be when the Act was passed, and every one now in possession came to have the extent of his interest registered.

Then, as to increase of litigation, possibly the summary trial would bring up many suits which would otherwise never have been brought into court at all; many of them would probably be of a frivolous nature, which would be preferred because the procedure would be so cheap and summary. On the other hand, it seemed to him that the decision of the Collector would prevent many cases going into court which would otherwise have formed the subject of expensive and tedious regular suits. At the same time it had been remarked that the proposed measure would have the effect of reducing the revenue derived from stamps in the shape of court fees; because, if these suits were brought in the Civil Court, these men would have to bear the cost of the proper stamps for regular suits; and under the procedure proposed, they would not be required to do so. Disputes would be referred by the Collector to the court, which would cite the proper parties before it, so that neither party would have to pay the stamp fee for the institution of the suits.

Section 37 was then agreed to, and the remaining sections of the Bill were also provisionally settled without amendment.

The Bill, as provisionally settled, was then ordered to be published in the Gazette, and was referred back to the Select Committee for the purpose of considering certain communications on the subject of the Bill which it was understood would shortly be received.

MOFUSSUL MUNICIPALITIES.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to municipalities. This Bill had been almost doubled in length in Select Committee. This was caused principally by two reasons: in the first place the introduction of detailed municipal regulations for conservancy, and the second place by a consolidation measure. The Committee had repealed Act XX of 1856, which was known as the old Chowkeedaree Act, and had re-enacted such of its provisions as were now extant; and the Committee had similarly repealed Act XXVI of 1850, and re-enacted it in Chapter IV. These were the causes of the increased length of the Bill.

As the Committee's report gave in considerable detail the changes made by the Select Committee, it was unnecessary for him to repeat them, and he would therefore only mention the alterations made in the form of the Bill.

The Bill had been divided into five Chapters, the first of which was preliminary and the last was general, and applied to all places to which any Part of the Bill might be extended. Chapters II, III, and IV, applied to different classes of places. Chapter II was a long one, and related to municipalities, and might now be said to take the place of the old municipalities under the District Municipal Improvement Act III of 1864, and also the old District Towns' Act VI of 1868, of this Council. These two Acts were repealed as well as all the Acts amending them, and the place of the two Acts was taken by Chapter II of this Bill, which dealt with municipalities.

Then Chapter III simply dealt with what were now called "towns," and were formerly known as old chowkeedaree unions. But Act XX of 1856 originally provided for two things—the levy of taxes for the support of town police; and secondly, for the organization of such police, who were then called chowkeedars. Numberless Acts had since been passed which had cut Act XX of 1856 to pieces. The Police Acts had done away with all the sections relating to chowkeedars, and had provided that the police in those places, which were known as chowkeedaree unions, should be members of the general police force. As there were several Acts on other subjects which affected other Sections of Act XX of 1856, and the amending Acts also affected other Municipal Acts in force in other places, the whole thing had become an intricate mesh, which it was desirable to reduce to simplicity.

Chapter III took the place of the old chowkeedaree unions, and it was a reproduction of Act XX of 1856, with words changed here and there; but the whole Act had been absolutely reproduced. There had been no attempt to draft these provisions as Sections were drafted in modern legislation. The only change was as to the levy of taxes: not the mode of imposing and assessing taxes, but the mode of levying them from persons who did not pay. With regard to Municipalities, the Committee had provided very careful and detailed provisions as to how taxes not paid on demand should be levied. They had made these provisions applicable for the levy of arrears of taxes in those towns which were now called chowkeedaree unions under Chapter III.

Chapter IV was similarly a reproduction of Act XXVI of 1850. That Act allowed the Lieutenant-Governor, at the request of the inhabitants of any place, to let them tax themselves. It had not been largely made use of, but it had been found very useful for the purpose of growing railway stations and places of that sort, and the Government objected to altogether striking it out. Therefore the Committee had re-enacted it in this Chapter.

Other alterations made in the Bill were set out in the report of the Committee.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER postponed the motion which stood in the list of business for the consideration of the report of the Select Committee in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and moved that the report of the Committee, together with the Bill as amended, be published in the Gazette.

The motion was agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 19th February.

ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ART-GALLERY IN CONNECTION WITH THE SCHOOL OF ART AT CALCUTTA.

Minute by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, dated 15th February 1876.

In my Minute of the 14th January last, regarding the general administration of Bengal, I had occasion to write the following remarks :—

"The School of Art at Calcutta for natives is now attracting some pupils, "the attendance having much increased within the last two years. All the "students are anxious to qualify themselves in drawing, many of them show a "fair aptitude; and some of them evince considerable ability in painting, "especially in portraiture. After leaving the school many find employment "in lithography or engraving, and it is hoped that the demand for this kind of "artistically skilled labour will increase.

"We are endeavouring to establish an art-gallery in connection with the "institution, to be filled with copies of good pictures in Europe; the importance "of such a gallery for the enlightenment of the native youth is manifest.

"There is a great want of even the most rudimentary training in art "among the native youth generally. The art culture, once indigenous in the "country, has for the most died out in the course of ages, and nothing new has "been substituted. It were much to be desired that inexpensive pictures, engrav-"ings, and other illustrative works, should be largely introduced in the schools "of all descriptions, so that the eyes of the young might become accustomed "to the observation of what is beautiful in the form and the colour of all objects."

I have now to record what has been, and is being done for the enlargement of the School of Art, and for the establishment of an art-gallery in connection with the school.

In such a place as Calcutta the establishment of an art-gallery must be interesting from any and every point of view. But the interest is heightened when the gallery can be the means of daily instruction; will become a lecture-room for classes of native students; may impart additional vigour to an institution designed to elevate the taste, refine the skill, and enlighten the ideas of the native youth who are learning art as a means of livelihood; and may thus serve an important educational purpose.

Fortunately we have been able to secure the occupation of three buildings (at Boitakhana, in continuation of Bow Bazar,) immediately adjacent to the School of Art, which buildings are being rapidly prepared by the Public Works Department for the reception of pictures. Some paintings have been presented to the institution by His Excellency the Viceroy; others have been purchased for this purpose by the Government of Bengal; many also have been promised to be lent for temporary exhibition in the gallery by native chiefs and gentlemen, among whom may be mentioned the Maharajah of Burdwan, the Raja Jotendro Mohun Tagore, the Raja Hurendra Krishna, the Raja Sutyanund Ghosaul, the zemindar of Paikpara, and others; also copies are being made from private pictures now in Calcutta; one picture, too, has been presented by Mr. Palmer. It is probable that other native gentlemen, owners of good pictures, may see fit to lend their works, either to be copied or to be exhibited for a time, until pictures shall arrive for permanent deposit in the gallery. We have ordered a few copies from works of old masters, by Signor Pompignoli of Florence, which are expected to arrive shortly. We have purchased Colonel Hyde's collection of electrotypes from ancient Greek coins in the British Museum.

If original pictures of merit in Europe shall prove to be expensive beyond our means, we may hope to obtain comparatively inexpensive copies of such works which shall give to the native youth an idea of men and things in Europe, both as regards the present and the past.

Another object of the institution would be to set before the native youth a vivid and comprehensive representation of all that is most instructive and attractive in the extraordinary varied features of India, chiefly as regards natural scenery, architectural remains, national costume, and ethnological features. For such a purpose signal advantages are available, and ought to be forthcoming.

It will not be difficult to collect plan-drawings of great engineering works in all parts of the world. It would be hard to imagine anything better calculated to improve the minds of native youth than the sight of such a collection.

Some specimens of statuary, and especially castes of antique works, will, we hope, be obtained.

It is hoped that the gallery may be sufficiently ready by the middle of March to be opened for the classes and the students of the School of Art. His Excellency the Viceroy has consented to be present at the inauguration. The interest which the Viceroy has taken in projects of this description was evinced by his speech at the opening of the Art Exhibition at Calcutta in December 1874.

If any one shall be kindly disposed to render assistance by sending any work of art to the institution, the work will be taken charge of by the Principal of the School of Art, Mr. H. Locke.

RICHARD TEMPLE.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE CHARITABLE HOSPITALS AND DISPENSARIES IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1874.

MEDICAL.

Calcutta, the 11th February 1876.

READ—

The Report by the Surgeon-General, Indian Medical Department, on the Charitable Hospitals and Dispensaries in Bengal for the year 1874.

Read again—

The Report for 1873, with the orders of Government passed thereon.

UNDER the system lately introduced, and which was referred to in the resolution in the previous year, the detailed reports on each dispensary in these provinces are submitted to the Surgeon-General through the responsible medical and executive officers of each district and division. Every officer therefore who has any concern in the administration of these institutions is thus afforded a full opportunity of acquainting himself with their history and working, and of offering his own remarks and suggestions. The detailed reports having thus been dealt with, their submission to Government has now been discontinued. The present report submitted by the Surgeon-General contains a general summary and digest of the reports received, and particular mention of such details only as it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Government. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe from Dr. Beatson's remarks that the system has worked well; that the remarks recorded and action taken by the local officers have evinced both care and interest in the subject; and that all matters of petty detail have been thoroughly considered and dealt with.

2. Excluding from consideration certain dispensaries which have been transferred, with the districts in which they are situated, to the control of the Chief Commissioner of Assam, the total number of permanent charitable hospitals and dispensaries open in the interior of the Lower Provinces at the close of the year 1873 was 182. In the year under report 23 new institutions were added to the number and 2 were closed; consequently the total number open at the beginning of 1875 was 203. These results, the Lieutenant-Governor considers, speak favorably for the public spirit and benevolence of the native community, by whom the necessary funds for the establishment of these new dispensaries have been for the most part provided. The yearly additions which are made to the number of these charitable institutions afford, moreover, as observed by the Surgeon-General, practical testimony of the appreciation in which these institutions are held by the people of Bengal, and that the rules lately adopted, with a view to determining the conditions under which Government aid shall be granted to persons desirous of establishing dispensaries, are sufficiently liberal. The terms on which many of the older institutions were founded have rendered it unadvisable to insist upon a strict conformity in all cases to the former rules, but in time the number of institutions thus exceptionally treated will diminish, and the confusion in classification, to which the Surgeon-General alludes as arising from this cause, will gradually disappear from the returns.

3. From nine dispensaries, which, with two exceptions, were established during the year under report, no reports or returns were received. In 134 of the remaining 194 institutions in-door patients were received and treated. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with the remark made by the Surgeon-General that in all, except branch dispensaries in towns, accommodation should, if possible, be provided for persons requiring constant medical care, and unable to obtain such for themselves at their own homes, and hopes that the matter will engage the immediate attention of all local officers and dispensary committees. Though much has been done towards the establishment of dispensaries throughout the province, much yet remains to be done. The statement given in paragraph 11 of the report shows that in the notoriously unhealthy districts of Chittagong and Purneah only one dispensary has been hitherto opened out, and that in the Dinagepore district also, in which much fever prevails, two dispensaries only have been established. These are all large and wealthy districts, and the Lieutenant-Governor is confident that if the district officers were to exert themselves, and showed a greater interest in the matter, the wealthy native residents would not be found backward in subscribing the funds necessary for the establishment of new dispensaries.

4. Public health.—In his 14th paragraph the Surgeon-General calls attention to the causes which render the dispensary returns a fallacious index of the state of health of the general community in either particular parts or in the province as a whole. Dispensary patients, it is true, generally belong to the poorer classes, while at the same time there are certain sections of native society which do not take advantage of the existence of dispensaries at all. Still it is inevitable that any great change in the public health, whether for better or for worse, will have its effect in the dispensary returns, and to a certain, though a limited, extent the course of disease and the extent and prevalence of special forms of disease will be thus traceable, as well as the rate of mortality of the different diseases. In the medical history of the year under review the diminution of epidemic fever was a noticeable feature, and this circumstance is also confirmed by the figures now submitted. Similarly, an inference may be drawn, though with less certainty, as to the straitened circumstances of the people, due to the late scarcity, from the increase in the number of cases of disease attributable to a weakened constitution. There is little else in the returns, however, indicative of an exceptional season; the proportion which the number of cases of the various diseases treated bear to each other having been preserved from year to year with a remarkable sameness.

5. Sick treated.—The fact that the figures for the dispensaries now transferred to Assam have been excluded from the totals for 1874, while they have not been thus excluded from the totals for the previous years, somewhat detracts from the value of the comparative statements which have been incorporated with the present report. Notwithstanding this circumstance, however, the figures for 1874, showing the number of sick treated, indicate a large increase as compared with the numbers treated in previous years. Including both in-door and out-door patients, the total number of persons who were either received into the dispensaries or afforded out-door relief during the year under review was 660,131, against 618,710 in the previous year. In 1869 the number was 385,812 only, so that in the course of five years the figures have nearly doubled. It is to be borne in mind that patients treated in the Calcutta and suburban hospitals and dispensaries, and in the special endemic dispensaries in the districts of the Burdwan division have been excluded from these totals. Adding 263,027 patients who were treated at the former, and 917,664 who were treated at the latter institutions, the grand total of persons prescribed for was 1,840,822, against 1,804,984 in the year 1873. As has been repeatedly pointed out, these figures do not pretend to any great accuracy as indicating the number of individuals who attended the several institutions, each separate attack of disease being treated as a distinct case. Still the Lieutenant-Governor accepts them as satisfactorily indicating the extent to which the people are beginning to realise the advantages of superior medical treatment, and as bearing testimony to the increasing confidence with which the several practitioners in charge of the various institutions are regarded.

6. The increasing extent, as indicated by the returns, to which provision is being made in the local dispensaries for the treatment of in-door patients is a matter for satisfaction. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the efforts which have been thus made by several committees to utilise the balance of funds at their credit will be sustained and more generally followed. In the past year the average number of in-door and of out-door patients treated daily was 1,201 and 6,774 respectively, against 974 and 6,683 in the previous year. Of the whole number who attended 64·11 were males, 19·69 females, and 16·19 children, the proportion of women and children being slightly greater than in the previous year. Of the results of the treatment the details given refer only to in-door patients. These show that 69·71 per cent. were cured and relieved, 13·44 per cent. were otherwise accounted for, and 16·85 died. The mortality was thus slightly greater than in previous years, the death-rate having been 16·22 in 1873, 16·07 in 1872, and 18·41 in 1871. With respect to the very high death-rate observable in certain dispensaries, the Surgeon-General very properly calls attention to the fact that the absence of pauper asylums leads to a large number of hopeless cases being admitted for treatment, simply because there is no place but the dispensary where the wants of the unfortunate sufferers can be attended to. In every dispensary where such cases are of frequent occurrence it would be advisable, as noticed by the Surgeon-General, to set apart a moribund ward, the statistics of which might be separately shown. By some such expedient only will it be possible to render the dispensary returns of real value, as showing the success or otherwise of the treatment of ordinary diseases.

7. Surgical operations —The total number of major surgical operations performed was 2,401, against 2,045 in the previous year. Of minor surgical operations the number was 29,554, against 25,889. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Surgeon-General in thinking that the relief of injury or disease by surgery is much appreciated by the native community, and that the advance indicated by the above figures is the more satisfactory on this account. The great increase in the number of operations connected with the eye is very noteworthy, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that a fair proportion of them were successful.

8. Supply of medicines —Of the contributions made by Government towards medical relief, no inconsiderable portion consists in the gratuitous supply of European drugs and other medical stores to the various hospitals and dispensaries. The total value of what was thus supplied during the year under review was Rs. 2,51,260, against Rs. 2,26,634 in the previous year. Of the whole amount, Rs. 61,689 only represents the ordinary supply of medicines, &c., to permanent dispensaries in the interior. The balance consists of the value of stores supplied to the Calcutta hospitals, to the temporary dispensaries established in the fever-stricken districts, and in those where famine was anticipated. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the anticipation of the Surgeon-General that in future years a large saving may be effected by the substitution of the cinchona febrifuge for quinine will be realised. Meanwhile, a very appreciable diminution in the demand on the resources of Government will result from the abolition of most of the endemic fever dispensaries in the Burdwan division.

9. Income of dispensaries —Excluding the cost of medicines supplied by Government, the total income of all dispensaries in the interior was Rs. 3,36,198, against Rs. 3,10,886 in the previous year. Of this total income Government still contributes somewhat more than one-third. Still in the year under review there was a slight improvement in the extent to which native subscribers came forward to support the several institutions, while the contributions received from local funds were also somewhat more liberal than in the previous year. The proportion borne by subscriptions received from the European community to the total income decreased from 7·93 per cent. in 1873 to 7·09 in 1874. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to learn that the number of municipalities which contribute towards the support of dispensaries increased to 65, against 52 only in 1873, and that the amount of their contributions has ranged higher than heretofore. The arrangement adopted in certain instances of appointing the town committees to have the control of the dispensaries is favorably reported on, and should be extended. With a view to guard Government against loss, consequent on the extension of the number of charitable dispensaries, a system of guaranteed subscriptions was introduced under the new dispensary rules. This system is reported to have worked well. In the majority of cases the whole amount of the guaranteed income was realised, and in many cases considerably more. The net result was a surplus of Rs. 35,495, against a deficiency of Rs. 8,158. The Lieutenant-Governor expects that the Magistrates of the districts where the 39 institutions which fell short of their guaranteed income are situated will give their attention to the more punctual realization of the subscriptions. He trusts that subscribers will remember the conditions on which the Government aid is afforded; and that, if failure of private resources were to become chronic, the Government contribution might have to be withdrawn. The success with which, in the majority of cases, the guaranteed income is realized is creditable to the officers concerned.

10. Expenditure of dispensaries.—Excluding the value of medical stores supplied by Government without charge, the total expenditure of all dispensaries during the year under review amounted to Rs. 3,32,840, against Rs. 3,18,024 in 1873 and Rs. 2,99,738 in 1872. The income of the dispensaries taken together was thus sufficient not only to cover all expenses, but to admit of the investment of a small surplus. The mean cost of each patient was annas 9-4, against annas 8-10 in 1873.

11. Inspection.—The number of dispensaries visited by administrative medical officers was somewhat less than in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts the explanation offered of the result. He trusts, however, that future reports will show that any shortcoming in this respect has been made good. Generally, civil surgeons have performed a fair amount of inspection duty. The Lieutenant-Governor does not, however, consider the failure to visit the dispensaries at Gurbetta, Barh, and Behar creditable to the officers concerned.

12. The services rendered by the several district medical officers have not been confined to supervising the working of permanent dispensaries. In districts where epidemics have prevailed, the establishment of temporary institutions, and the deputation of medical subordinates with medicines for free distribution in the interior, has occupied much of their attention. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure the testimony which is borne by the Surgeon-General to the diligence and care with which the work of the officers under his control has been generally discharged. To the Surgeon-General himself the acknowledgments of Government are due for the ability with which he has entered upon the administration of his department, and in particular the Lieutenant-Governor has to thank Dr. Beatson for the care with which the present report has been drawn up.

	4	Midnapore, " 12, "	Nil.	Weather—Fine and dry. Rubbee crops have been sown over a larger area than usual, but the outturn will only be moderate. There is sporadic cholera in many places.
	5	Hooghly, " 12, "	Nil	Weather—Very cold on the 4th and 5th February, but getting warmer subsequently. Borro rice in the south is going on well. Early potatoes are being dug up; mangoe trees are now in flower. Rubbee crops are doing well, and a good outturn is expected. Very late amun rice (kalesh and maghi) is still being harvested from swamp lands in the south. Gram, pulses, motur and musooree, are being cut. Yield is very good. Vegetables are abundant, except brinjals.
		Howrah, " 12, "	Nil.	Weather is still fine. State and prospects of the crops remain unchanged.

	8	Jessore, " 12, "	Nil.	Weather—Bright and clear. No rain. The cutting of winter crops continues. No change in the state and prospects of the crops. Rain is wanted.
	9	Moorshedabad " 12, "	Nil.	Weather—Fairly cool and seasonable. Prospects of crops are fair. Boro dhan is still being sown and transplanted. 24	Noakholly, " 10, "	Nil.	Weather—Cold and fair. The winter crops are promising well, but little rain would do much good. Cases of cholera and small-pox still prevail in certain parts of the district.

27	Gya, " 12, "	Nil.	Weather—Warmer. High westerly winds during the day. Highest reading of thermometer 89° 4' in the shade. Rubbee crops are fair throughout the district. Very little injury from want of rain. Public health is good.

30	Mozufferpore " 12, "	Nil.	Weather is getting rather warmer. There is no material change in the prospects of the crop throughout the district.
31	Sarun, " 12, "	Nil.	Weather—Cold; sky clear, with west wind prevailing. Cold weather crops are generally very fair, and a good outturn may be expected. Mustard and peas are being harvested. Wheat, barley, and ruhur pulse, are doing well, and fast reaching maturity. Poppy is flowering. Indigo prospects indifferent. Slight injury to peas and ruhur from frost within the jurisdiction of thana Buragaon, in the Sewan sub-division, has been reported by the police. Prices are favorable General health is good.
32	Chumparun, " 11, "	Nil.	Weather—There is no change from previous week. The crops are flourishing, though except in the north, where the land has been irrigated. There will not be a full rubbee crop if rain does not fall shortly.

* Telegrams of the 14th February, received on the same day, show rainfall during the seven days immediately preceding.

	No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BEHAR.—(Contd.)
Bhagulpore Divn.	33	Monghyr, Feb. 12, '76	Nil.	Weather—Seasonable. State and prospects are much the same as last week.
	34	Bhagulpore, „ 14.* „	Nil.	Owing to continued drought the rubbee is drying up on high lands. It is still very good in many places, especially near the Coosy. Prices of rice and murwah are not rising in Soopool, though the sub-divisional officer reports the condition of the people in Naradigur, outside Court of Wards' jurisdiction, to be getting very bad. The Collector leaves for Soopool this week. In Mudehpoorah, where grain is just as dear, the sub-divisional officer says he hears of no complaints of prices, and the condition of the people is very good. General health of the district is very good.
	35	Purneah, „ 12, „	Nil.	Weather was very cold during the first part of the week, but to-day the wind has changed to the east, and it has become warmer. The gram and pulses are still looking fair. Wheat and barley are in ear, but the crop is a poor one. Ploughing for bhadoi sowings is going on. Prices continue the same as last week.
	36	Sonthal Perghs. „ 12, „	Nil.	Weather—Nights cold. Days getting warmer. Prospects of rubbee are not improved. General health is good.

	38	Pooree, „ 10, „	Nil.	Weather—Clear, and very little cold. Harvesting of the sarad, or the main rice crop, is completed. Sugarcane is being gathered. Some pulses are in pods and some are ripe. Mustard seeds are being harvested. Tobacco, cotton, and daloon paddy crops are fairly progressing.
	39	Balasore, „ 11, „	Nil.	Weather—Fine and dry throughout the district. The rice harvest is finished, and agricultural operations are for the most part at a standstill. Health of the district is somewhat improved.
CHOTA NAGPORE.
		South-Western Frontier Agency.
	40	Hazareebagh. Feb. 11, '76	Nil.	Weather—Cold, with high very drying west winds. There can be no change in the state and prospects of the crops till some rain falls. The rubbee crops will be very short. The high winds are damaging the opium, and while the ground continues in its present hardened condition, the ryots cannot plough. Mohooa and mangoe are coming into blossom.
	41	Lohardugga, „ 12, „	Nil.	Weather—Warmer than last week. High west winds. No rain. The graim and makai crops have suffered to some extent in some parts of the Sudder division for want of rain. From Palamow the Assistant Commissioner reports that the outturn will be short owing to no rain. The westerly winds still continue to blow. General health is good. A few cases of small-pox still reported from Palamow.
	42	Singbhoom, „ 11, „	Nil.	Weather is seasonable. State and prospects of the crops, &c., in every respect the same as last week.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain-gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

2. The Municipal Commissioners shall, on the receipt of such requisition in writing, make arrangements for the removal of night-soil from private premises and privies the owners or occupiers of which shall desire their services: provided that no soil will be removed from any premises or privy unless the owner or occupier thereof shall make payment at the office of the Municipal Commissioners of the cost of such removal at the following rates :—

5. Every person shall construct his privy above ground, and shall provide his privy or premises with a suitable movable receptacle of tin, iron, or earthenware. Unless such charge be paid, the soil will not be received.

16. Every Municipal mehter shall be numbered and registered, and shall be furnished with a badge bearing his number and depôt number.

The 21st February 1876.

No. 92.—Notification.—The following draft Rules, having reference to the Main Western Canal, first section; the Arrah Canal; the Buxar Canal, first section; the Main Eastern Canal, first section; and the Patna Canal, are hereby published under the provisions of Sections XI and XII of the "Canals' Act, 1864," (No. V, B.L.C.) :—

I. Every vessel on entering any of the above canals shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the canal.

II. The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals' Act, 1864," and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

(a.) The product of half the length of the vessel, from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b.) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c.) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on vessels exceeding 100 maunds tonnage, any fraction of 100 maunds less than 25 maunds is to be omitted; exceeding 25 and not exceeding 50 maunds, is to be charged as 25 maunds only; exceeding 50, and not exceeding 75 maunds, to be charged as 50 maunds only; and exceeding 75 maunds as 75 maunds only. Above 1,000 maunds no fraction of 100 maunds tonnage is to be charged. Toll will be charged on vessels under 100 maunds tonnage on the actual measurements of the vessels, omitting fractions of tens of maunds.

III. Every vessel entering any of the above canals shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date the vessel entered the canal, the point to which it may proceed in the canal, the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, and the number of days for which the vessel may remain in the canal, and the date of such last day. The number of days which the vessel may remain in the canal, without additional payment, shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed.

IV. Toll may be paid at the first station either for the entire number of toll stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

V. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll station the vessel has to pass as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The ticket shall be delivered up at the last toll station.

VI. Owners of vessels may compound by the payment of a fixed sum for the use of the whole or a portion of any of the above canals for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the canal within which the vessel may pass; such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule V, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

VII. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and the dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by officers in charge of toll stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

VIII. Vessels remaining in the canals for a period exceeding that allowed under Rule III, will pay a demurrage of eight annas per 100 maunds per diem for each day or part of a day that they may remain in excess.

IX. No boats above 18 feet beam over all, and no rafts or floats of more than 10 feet width and 150 in length, will be allowed to enter the canals.

X. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

XI. Vessels must have their masts fitted so that they can be let down with ease and speed; and when under sail, vessels must always keep in the middle of the canal; when being tracked, vessels are, as far as practicable, to keep to their port or left side of the canals.

XII. All vessels anchoring at night are to keep to their port or left bank of the canals.

XIII. Only one vessel shall be allowed to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a Canal Officer. No vessels shall, however, be placed in such a position

Act of the Bengal Council.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

THE following Act, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, received the assent of His Honor on the 28th August 1875, and having been assented to by the Governor-General on the 5th February 1876, is hereby published for general information:—

ACT NO. II OF 1876.

An Act to amend Act XI of 1849, Act XXI of 1856, and Act IV (B.C.) of 1866.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act XI of 1849 (for securing the Abkaree Revenue of Calcutta), Act XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Abkaree Revenue in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), and Act IV (B.C.) of 1866 (for regulating the Police of the Town of Calcutta, &c.)

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Local extent and commencement.

1. This Act shall take effect in all the territories under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal from the date on which it may be published with the assent of the Governor-General.

Repeal of Acts.

2. The Acts mentioned in the Schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

AMENDMENT AND EXTENSION OF ACT XI OF 1849.

Amendment of certain sections of Act XI of 1849.

3. Act XI of 1849 shall be read as if, for sections four, eight, sixteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-five, twenty-six, thirty-three, and thirty-four of the said Act, the following sections were substituted:—

Prohibition of unlicensed manufacture or sale of spirits, liquors, or drugs.

"4.—Every person who shall manufacture, or sell by retail any spirituous or fermented liquors or intoxicating drugs specified in this Act, within the Town of Calcutta, without a license from the Collector of Calcutta, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every such sale; but this enactment shall not apply to the sale by wholesale dealers of such small quantities of beer, wines, or spirits, as may appear to the Collector to be used only as samples.

Provided that nothing contained in this section shall affect the arrangements under which taree is supplied to retail vendors, or the sale of such article, or any preparation of the same, when supplied or used for the manufacture of goor or molasses."

Licensees to execute a counterpart engagement.

"8.—Every person taking out a license for the manufacture or sale of spirituous or fermented liquors, or intoxicating drugs as aforesaid, shall execute a counterpart engagement in exact conformity with the tenor of such license."

Additional penalties for illicit manufacture, sale, or possession of spirits, liquors, or drugs.

"16.—Besides the penalties above specified for the illicit manufacture, sale, possession, and carrying of spirituous or fermented liquors or intoxicating drugs, all the materials and implements used, or intended to be used in the manufacture of the same, and all the liquors or drugs so manufactured, and all such liquors and drugs found in the possession of any offender contrary to the provisions of this Act, shall be seized and confiscated; and the vessels, packages, and coverings in which such liquors and drugs are found, and the animals and conveyances used in carrying them, shall also be liable to seizure and confiscation."

Power to arrest persons in possession of contraband liquors or drugs, and to seize the same.

"19.—Any Abkaree or Police Officer may stop, detain, or arrest any person in whose possession may be found any spirituous or fermented liquors or intoxicating drugs not covered by such a pass as is required by this Act, or otherwise liable to confiscation, and may seize the liquors and drugs, with the vessels, packages, and coverings in which the liquors or drugs are found, and the animals and conveyances (if any) used in carrying them."

Powers of search, seizure, and arrest vested in Abkaree Officers, under the authority of the Collector, in cases of illicit manufacture, sale, or possession of spirits, liquors, or drugs.

"20.—Whenever the Collector has good reason to believe, either from information given by any person, which shall be taken down in writing, or from his own knowledge, or from the proceedings in any case, that spirituous or fermented liquors or intoxicating drugs are being unlawfully manufactured or sold in any place, or that any such liquors or drugs which are liable to confiscation under this Act, are kept or concealed in any place, the Collector may, by warrant under his hand, empower any Abkaree officer, above the rank of jemadar, by day or by night, but always in the presence of an officer of police not being under the grade of a head constable, to enter into any such place, and to seize and carry away all such liquors or drugs, and all the implements or materials used in the manufacture thereof, and in case of resistance, to break open any door, and to force and remove any other obstacle to such entry, search, seizure, or removal as aforesaid, and to arrest and detain the owner or occupier of the premises, with all parties whom he suspects to be concerned in the unlawful manufacture or sale, or in the unlawfully keeping or concealing of such liquors or drugs, whom he shall find on the premises:

provided that, where there is ground to suspect that such liquors or drugs are unlawfully concealed in any zenana, the officer charged with the execution of the warrant shall follow, as closely as may be, the rules for the seizure of property so concealed adopted by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William."

Penalty for Abkaree and Police Officer delaying to carry person arrested or articles seized to Collector or Magistrate.

"25.—Any Abkaree Officer, who shall delay carrying to the Collector, and any Police Officer, who shall delay carrying to a Magistrate of Police, any person arrested or any illicit articles seized under this Act, and any Abkaree or Police Officer who shall neglect to report the particulars of an arrest, seizure, or search, within twenty-four hours thereafter, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees."

Penalty for Abkaree or Police Officer vexatiously seizing goods or arresting any person.

"26.—Any Abkaree or Police Officer who shall vexatiously and unnecessarily seize the goods or chattels of any person on the pretence of seizing or searching for illicit spirituous or fermented liquors, or intoxicating drugs, or who shall vexatiously and unnecessarily arrest any person, or commit any other excess not required for the execution of his duty under this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees."

Disposal of confiscated articles.

"33.—All articles confiscated under this Act except opium, shall be disposed of by public sale under such rules as the Board of Revenue may prescribe in that behalf. Confiscated opium shall, after examination by a competent officer, be disposed of as the said Board may direct by a special or general order."

Division of fine or forfeiture among Abkaree and Police Officers.

"34.—Whenever any fine or forfeiture is levied from a person convicted of the unlawful manufacture of spirituous or fermented liquors, or intoxicating drugs; or of the unlawful sale, purchase, or possession of such liquors or drugs; or of the unlawful cultivation of plants from which intoxicating drugs are produced, the Magistrate who adjudicates the case shall direct the amount of the fine or forfeiture to be divided in such proportions as he may think fit between any persons (whether they be Abkaree or Police officers or otherwise) who were instrumental in the detection of the offence, the seizure of the articles in respect of which the offence was committed, or the capture of the offender. The Magistrate shall also determine the proportions in which the proceeds of the sale of the confiscated articles, except in the case of opium, shall be distributed among the said persons; and in the case of opium confiscated, shall direct that if such opium be declared fit for use by competent authority, a reward of one rupee and eight annas for each seer so confiscated shall be similarly distributed.

Procedure when confiscated article is sold for a price which includes duty leviable.

Provided that if any confiscated article shall have been sold or may be sold by the Collector for a price which includes the duty leviable on the said article, such amount as the Collector may determine to represent such duty shall be deducted from the sale proceeds and credited to Government, and the remainder only of the price realized by the sale shall be deemed to be sale proceeds to be distributed under the order of the said Magistrate.

Board of Revenue may lay down rules for prompt payment of rewards.

The Board of Revenue, with the sanction of the Local Government, may lay down rules for the prompt payment of rewards to officers of such Government and others who have been instrumental in the detection of offences, seizure of illicit articles, or capture of offenders under this Act, and any sum which may have been paid to any person under such rules may be taken into account as a part or the whole of the payment which may be awarded by a Magistrate to such person under this section."

Powers of seizure, &c., exercised by Abkaree officers may be conferred upon certain Police officers.

4. The powers of seizure, search, and arrest given to Abkaree officers by section twenty of the said Act XI of 1849, shall also be exercised by any Police officers who may be specially selected by the Commissioner of Police for such purpose; and the powers which are conferred upon the Collector by the said section, as regards the issue of warrants directed to Abkaree officers, shall also be vested in the Commissioner of Police, in respect of the issue of warrants directed to Police officers, selected in the manner aforesaid; provided that, under the said section, it shall not be competent to the Collector to issue a warrant directed to a Police officer, nor shall it be competent to the Commissioner of Police to issue a warrant directed to an Abkaree officer.

Police officer to carry the person arrested and the articles seized to the Magistrate of Police, and to report to the Commissioner of Police.

5. Whenever any Police officer, under the provisions of section nineteen or of section twenty of the said Act XI of 1849, shall arrest any person, or shall seize any spirituous or fermented liquor or intoxicating drugs, he shall carry the person arrested, or the illicit articles seized, or both, as the case may be, with all convenient despatch, to a Magistrate of Police, and shall, within twenty-four hours thereafter, make a full reprot to the Commissioner of Police, and the Commissioner of Police shall at once inform the Collector of the fact of the arrest or seizure, and of the circumstances of the case; and the Magistrate of Police shall proceed to adjudicate the case according to law.

Commissioner to inform Collector.

Commissioner of Revenue to have the powers of the Commissioner of Abkaree.

6. The Commissioner of Revenue of the division within which the Town of Calcutta is or may be situated shall possess the powers and perform the duties vested by Act XI of 1849 in the Commissioner of Abkaree.

Penalty on chemist, etc., allowing liquors to be drunk on the premises.

7. Any chemist, druggist, apothecary, or keeper of a dispensary, within the Town or Suburbs of Calcutta, or in Howrah, who shall, between sunset and sunrise, allow spirituous or fermented liquors, which have not been bonâ fide medicated, to be drunk on his business premises by any person not employed in his business, and any such person who shall, between sunset and sunrise, drink such liquors on such premises, shall be liable to a fine of two hundred rupees, in addition to any other penalty to which he may be liable under this or any other Act; and any Abkaree or Police Officer above the rank of peon or chuprassee, who may have reason to believe that the provisions of this section are being infringed, may enter upon such premises and seize and carry away such liquors, and, in case of resistance, break open any door, and force and remove any other obstacle to such entry or seizure, and arrest and detain the owner or occupier of the said premises, with all parties whom he suspects to be concerned in such unlawful drinking; and upon such seizure or arrest as aforesaid, the Abkaree Officer and Collector shall deal with such liquors or persons as provided in section twenty-two of Act XI of 1849, and the Police Officer and a Magistrate of Police shall deal with them as provided in section five of this Act.

Abkaree or Police Officer may arrest persons drinking and seize liquors.

Petty debts for liquors and drugs not recoverable by action.

8. No person shall be entitled to maintain any action or suit for, or recover in any court of law, any sum or sums of money, debt, or demand whatsoever, for or on account of any spirituous or fermented liquor, or intoxicating drug not supplied for medicinal purposes, sold within the Town or the Suburbs of Calcutta, or in Howrah, unless such debt shall have been bonâ fide contracted at one time, to the amount of ten rupees or upwards; and no item in any account or demand in any such suit for such articles of drink or such drug shall be allowed or maintained in any court of law as aforesaid, where the said articles delivered at one time, and mentioned in such item, shall not amount to the value of at least ten rupees, and that without fraud or collusion; provided that nothing herein contained shall affect any action brought to recover any sums for such spirituous or fermented liquors sold to be consumed elsewhere than on the premises in quantities not less at any one time than a reputed quart; provided also that nothing herein contained shall affect any action brought by a hotel-keeper to recover any sums for any articles of drink consumed by persons who were, at the time when such articles were supplied, residing on the premises.

Prohibition to take articles in pledge for liquor or drugs.

9. Board may prescribe rules to regulate the supply of fermented liquors to licensed vendors, and the cultivation, preparation, storing, possession, and transport of intoxicating drugs.

"33.—The Board of Revenue may, with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, from time to time prescribe rules consistent with this Act, for regulating the mode in which fermented liquors shall be supplied to licensed vendors of the same;

for subjecting the cultivation of plants from which intoxicating drugs are produced, and the preparation of the said drugs, to such restrictions and supervision as may be deemed necessary to secure the duty leviable thereon;

and for granting licenses or passes to persons cultivating, preparing, storing, possessing, purchasing, or transporting the said plants or drugs.

All such rules shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and when so published, shall have effect as if they were contained in this Act.

and the provisions of the said sections relating to the sale and possession of intoxicating drugs, do not apply to the sale or possession of such drugs by any person duly authorized under this Act to cultivate the plants which produce these drugs;

Penalty for sale or transfer by cultivators to unlicensed person, or for failure to account for stock of plant in possession.

The Magistrate shall also determine the proportions in which the proceeds of the sale of the confiscated articles, except in the case of opium, shall be distributed among the said persons; and in the case of opium confiscated, shall direct that, if such opium be declared fit for use by competent authority, a reward of one rupee and eight annas for each seer so confiscated shall be similarly distributed.

Provided that if any confiscated article shall have been sold or may be sold by the Collector for a price which includes the duty leviable on the said article, such amount as the Collector may determine to represent such duty shall be deducted from the sale proceeds and credited to Government, and the remainder only of the price realized by the sale shall be deemed to be sale proceeds, to be distributed under the order of the said Magistrate.

The Board of Revenue, with the sanction of the Local Government, may lay down rules for the prompt payment of rewards to officers of such Government and others who have been instrumental in the detection of offences, seizure of illicit articles, or capture of offenders under this Act, and any sum which may have been paid to any person under such rules may be taken into account as a part or the whole of the payment which may be awarded by a Magistrate to such person under this section."

Board of Revenue may lay down rules for prompt payment of rewards.

But the Chairman may postpone the discussion of any question that may be raised at any such meeting, and refer the determination thereof to a special or special general meeting to be convened within fourteen days thereafter.

Special, and special general meetings may be called.

38. The Chairamn or, in his absence, the Vice-Chairman, may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition made in writing by any ten Commissioners, call a special or special general meeting of the Commissioners.

45. If a poll be demanded as in the last preceding section mentioned, the votes of all the Commissioners present who desire to vote shall be taken under the direction of the President, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the Commissioners at such meeting.

Unless so executed it shall not be binding on the Commissioners.

The Commissioners may compound with any contractor or other person in respect of any penalty or damages incurred by reason of the non-performance of any contract entered into as aforesaid, whether such penalty be mentioned in any such contract or otherwise, for such sums of money or other recompense as to the Commissioners may seem proper.

48. The Commissioners in meeting may from time to time appoint, from among the Commissioners, such and so many Committees, either of a general or of a special nature, and consisting of such number of persons as they may think fit, for the purpose of inquiring into, and reporting upon, any matter connected with the conservancy or improvement of the Town, or of advising and aiding the Chairman in the discharge of any portion of his executive duties, which in the discretion of the Commissioners would be better regulated or managed with the advice and aid of any such Committee:

Commissioners may appoint Committees.

Provided that the Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall be a member of every such Committee, and that the proceedings of every such Committee shall be submitted to the Commissioners at a meeting;

113. The Chairman or Vice-Chairman may at any time amend the assessment book by inserting therein the name of any person whose name ought to be so inserted, or by inserting any house or land liable to the rate, after giving notice, to any person interested in the making of the amendment, of a day, not being less than fifteen days from the date of the service of such notice, when such amendment is to be made; or by striking out the name of any person or any house or land not liable to the rate, or reducing the amount of the assessment, without notice:

and if any amendment shall be made, in cases where notice is required, the same shall be deemed to have been made on the expiration of fifteen days after service of the said notice; and any person interested in such amendment may appeal by application in writing to the Commissioners, to be left at their office three clear days before the day fixed in the said notice for such amendment; and the provisions of sections one hundred and eight and one hundred and nine, shall, so far as may be practicable, apply to such appeal.

Bills to be presented.

115. When any rate is due, the Commissioners shall cause to be presented, to the person liable to the payment thereof, a bill for the sum due, which shall also contain a statement of the period, and a description of the property for which the rate is charged.

Provided that whenever any rate is payable by the owner of the land, and the said owner is not the owner of the house situated on the said land, the assessment on the land and on the house shall be separately entered in the said bill.

Notice of demand.

116. If the bill is not paid by the person liable to pay the same within seven days from the presentation thereof, the Commissioners may cause to be served upon such person a notice of demand, in the form contained in the fourth schedule, or to the like effect; and if he shall not, within seven days from the service of such notice of demand, pay the sum due, or show sufficient cause, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, for non-payment of the same, such sum, with all costs, may be levied by distress and sale of the moveable property of the defaulter, or if the defaulter be the occupier of any house or land in respect of which a rate is due, by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the house or land, under a warrant in the form contained in the fifth schedule, or to the like effect, to be issued for that purpose by the Commissioners.

Distress.

For every notice of demand under this section which the Commissioners shall cause to be served upon any person, a fee, not exceeding one rupee, shall be paid by such person.

Such fee shall be added to the amount of the rate in respect of which the notice is given, and, if not duly paid, shall be levied in the same manner as such rate may be levied.

Inventory—notice of distress.

117. The officer charged with the execution of a warrant of distress under the last preceding section shall make an inventory of the moveable property seized under such warrant, and shall at the time give a notice in writing, in the form contained in the sixth schedule, to the person in possession thereof at the time of the seizure, that the said moveable property will be sold as therein mentioned.

Sale.

118. If the warrant is not in the meantime discharged or suspended by the Commissioners, the moveable property seized shall be sold under the orders of the Commissioners, who shall apply the proceeds, or such part thereof as may be necessary, in discharge of the said arrears and costs; and the surplus, if any, shall be returned, on demand, to the person in possession of the moveable property at the time of the seizure.

All sales of property under this section shall, so far as may be practicable, be regulated by the procedure now in force or hereafter to be in force in the Court of Small Causes with respect to sale after distress.

120. If the sum due on account of any rate from the owner of any house or land remains unpaid after notice of demand has been duly served, the Commissioners may demand the amount from the occupier for the time being of the house or land, and, on non-payment thereof, may recover the same by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the house or land, and, in such case, the occupier may deduct, from the next and following payments of his rent, the amount which may be so paid by, or recovered from, him.

Provided that no arrear of rate, which has remained due from the owner of any house or land for more than one year, shall be so recovered from the occupier thereof.

Distress not unlawful for want of form.

121. No distress levied under this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the notice, schedule, summons, notice of demand, warrant of distress, inventory, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser on account of any irregularity committed by him; but all persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for any special damage sustained by them in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Commissioners may sue, instead of proceeding by distress.

122. Instead of proceeding by distress and sale, or in case of failure to realize by distress and sale the whole or any part of the sum due in respect of any rate, the Commissioners may sue the person liable to pay the same in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

PART II.

OF EMIGRATION.

Appointment of Emigration Agent.

4. At every port of embarkation the Chief Commissioner shall, with the consent of the Local Government, appoint an Emigration Agent, to whom such remuneration shall be assigned as the Government of India may from time to time direct. Such Agent may be suspended or removed at the pleasure of the Chief Commissioner.

Appointment of Medical Inspector.

At every such port the Local Government shall appoint a competent person to be Medical Inspector of Emigrants, and such remuneration shall be assigned to him as the Governor General in Council may from time to time direct. Such Medical Inspector may be suspended or removed at the pleasure of the Local Government.

Emigration Agent and Medical Inspector to be deemed public servants.

5. Every such Emigration Agent and Medical Inspector shall be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Duties of Agent.

6. In addition to the special duties hereinafter assigned to him, every such Emigration Agent shall—

(a) protect and aid with his advice all emigrants;

(b) cause, so far as he can, all provisions of this Act to be complied with;

(c) inspect on arrival all vessels bringing return emigrants to the port at which he is Agent;

(d) receive and enquire into the complaints (if any) of the treatment of such emigrants during the voyage and (if necessary) report thereon to the Local Government;

(e) aid and advise such returned emigrants when requested by them to do so.

Emigration Agent, &c., to give information to Medical Inspector.

7. Every Emigration Agent, and all persons in charge of, or employed in, any depôt or in any vessel licensed to carry emigrants as hereinafter provided, shall give the Medical Inspector every facility for making such inspections, examinations and surveys as may be necessary or proper under this Act, and shall afford him all such information as may be reasonably required by him.

Establishment of depôts for emigrants.

8. At each port of embarkation the Emigration Agent shall establish a suitable depôt for emigrants.

Recruiters.

Licensing of recruiters.

9. Each Emigration Agent shall license as many fit persons (whether servants of Government, of individuals or of companies) as he thinks necessary to be recruiters of labourers for British Burma.

Every recruiter shall be licensed to obtain labourers from one or more districts to be named in the license.

Form of license.

10. The license granted to a recruiter, under section nine, may be in the form set forth in Schedule A hereto annexed.

Period for which it shall remain in force.

No license shall be in force for a longer period than one year, and in case of misconduct on the part of the recruiter the Emigration Agent may cancel his license before the expiration of the period for which it was granted.

Countersignature of Magistrate to recruiter's license.

11. A recruiter shall not be deemed to have obtained authority in any place other than a Presidency Town to engage or attempt to engage a Native of India to become an emigrant until his license has been countersigned by the Magistrate of the district or of the division of the district, or to have obtained such authority in any Presidency Town until his license has been countersigned by the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Police.

License not to be countersigned until recruiter's fitness is ascertained.

12. No such officer shall countersign a recruiter's license unless and until he has satisfied himself, by such enquiry as he thinks fit, that the licensee is not by character or from any other cause unfitted to be a recruiter under this Act.

If any officer who has countersigned a license afterwards finds reason to think that the licensee is by character or other cause unfitted to be a recruiter under this Act, he may require the licensee to produce the license and may cancel his signature; or he may, if he thinks fit, impound the license and send it to the Emigration Agent for cancellation.

Every such officer refusing to countersign a recruiter's license, or cancelling his signature, shall, without delay, report his refusal or cancellation and the grounds of it to the Emigration Agent to whose authority the recruiter is amenable.

Contracts and Registration and Journey to Depôts.

Contract to be entered into with intending emigrant.

13. Any person desiring to emigrate under this Act may enter into a contract with a recruiter to proceed to British Burma and there serve for a fixed period of not more than three years from the date of his arrival at the port of debarkation.

Every such contract shall be in writing and shall specify—

(a) The recruit's term of service:

(b) The number of days and hours which he is to work per week:

(c) His monthly wages in money:

(d) The persons (if any) intending to accompany him as his dependents:

(e) Where the contract is made on behalf of a particular employer, the name of such employer.

No recruit shall be required to work more than six days in one week, or more than six consecutive hours, or more than nine hours a day. The obligation to provide on holidays for the care of animals, and the necessities of daily life, shall not be considered as work.

No deduction shall be made from the wages of a recruit on account of the rest for one day in each week.

No emigrant shall be bound by the provisions of this Act unless he has entered into a contract in accordance with this section.

Medical examination of intending emigrant.

14. Every recruit who has entered into such a contract as aforesaid shall be brought by the recruiter before the Civil Surgeon of the district or such other medical officer as the Local Government appoints in that behalf or, in default of such appointment, before such medical officer as the Magistrate directs.

The medical officer shall thereupon examine the recruit, and shall either reject him or shall certify that he is in a fit state of health and able in point of physical condition to proceed to British Burma and to work there.

If it is intended that any persons shall accompany the recruit as his dependents, the recruiter shall also bring them before the medical officer for the purpose of obtaining certificates that they are in a fit state of health and able in point of physical condition to perform the journey to British Burma; and the medical officer shall examine the dependents and shall give or refuse certificates according to his opinion as to their fitness and ability.

Certificates shall be in the form set forth in Schedule B hereto annexed, and the recruiter shall pay to the medical officer such fee for each person examined as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

Recruiter and emigrant to appear before Magistrate.

15. Every certified recruit and every accompanying dependent shall appear with the recruiter before a Magistrate in the district or Presidency Town within which the contract with the recruit was entered into.

Examination by Magistrate of emigrants under contract.

16. The Magistrate shall thereupon inspect the instrument of contract and the medical certificate of the recruit, and shall, apart from the recruiter, examine the recruit with reference to his contract, and if it appears that the recruit understands the nature of the contract he has entered into as regards the particulars specified in section thirteen, and that he is willing to fulfil the same, the Magistrate shall register—

(a) the name, the father's name, and the age of such recruit:

(b) the name of the village or place in which he resides:

(c) the port of embarkation to which it is intended that he shall proceed:

(d) the several particulars specified in the instrument of contract made under section thirteen.

The recruit shall thereupon be deemed an emigrant under this Act.

If the Magistrate thinks that the recruit does not understand the nature of his contract, or has been induced to enter into it by fraud or misrepresentation, he shall refuse to register him, and record his reasons for such refusal.

Examination of dependents on emigrants.

17. On the appearance of any person claiming to be dependent on an emigrant, the Magistrate, after inspecting the medical certificate, shall, apart from the recruiter, examine such person if able to give intelligent answers to questions as to his dependence upon the emigrant whom he is about to accompany, and as to his willingness to accompany such emigrant.

If the Magistrate is satisfied as to the said dependence and willingness, he shall register the dependent as a dependent on such emigrant.

But if the Magistrate sees reason to doubt such dependence or willingness, he may refuse to register the alleged dependent, and, if so, shall record his reasons for such refusal.

Registration of emigrants.

18. The Magistrate shall furnish to every emigrant an authenticated copy on substantial paper of the matters registered under sections sixteen and seventeen.

Such copy is hereinafter called "the emigrant's instrument" or the "immigrant's instrument."

Another authenticated copy of the matters so registered, together with the original certificate of the medical officer, shall be forthwith forwarded by the Magistrate to the Emigration Agent at the port of embarkation to which the emigrant is about to proceed.

Registration fee.

For each registration of a recruit under this Act, the recruiter shall pay to the officer making it a fee of eight annas.

Journey to depôt.

19. When the registration under this Act is completed, the emigrant and his dependents may be moved to the depôt at their port of embarkation.

Care of emigrants on journey to depôt.

20. The recruiter himself, or a competent person appointed by him with the approval of the Magistrate by whom such emigrants have been registered, shall accompany and take care of all emigrants and their dependents while journeying to the depôt.

The Magistrate shall give to every person so appointed a certificate under his signature, stating that he has been appointed to accompany and take care of certain emigrants during their journey to the depôt.

Every recruiter by whom any emigrant or dependent is forwarded to a depôt shall, throughout the journey, provide him with proper and sufficient food and lodging.

Penalties for infringing provisions as to recruitment.

21. Whoever, being a duly licensed recruiter, removes for the purpose of emigration any recruit before the completion of such registration as aforesaid; and whoever by means of intoxication, violence, fraud, false pretences or misrepresentation induces any Native of India to enter into a contract for labour to be performed in British Burma, or to proceed to or towards any seaport for the purpose of proceeding to British Burma without having entered into any contract;

and whoever wilfully neglects to supply any emigrant or dependent under his care with proper and sufficient food and lodging, or otherwise ill-treats such emigrant or dependent on his journey to the depôt;

and whoever forwards, sends or conveys any such emigrant or dependent with intent to contravene the provisions of this Act; shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Procedure on arrival of Emigrants at Depôt.

Notice of arrival of emigrants at depôt to be given to Medical Inspector.

22. The Emigration Agent shall, within twenty-four hours after the arrival at the depôt of any emigrant, give to the Medical Inspector notice in writing of such arrival.

Medical Inspector to examine emigrants.

23. The copy of the matters so registered and the medical certificate of every emigrant forwarded to the Emigration Agent as provided by section eighteen, shall be shown to the Medical Inspector at the port of embarkation, and all emigrants and their dependents shall be examined by the Medical Inspector immediately after he receives notice of their arrival at the depôt.

Inspection of depôts.

24. The Medical Inspector of Emigrants shall also, at least once in every week, inspect the emigrants in the depôt, and examine into the state of the depôt and the manner in which the emigrants are therein lodged, fed, clothed and otherwise provided for and attended to.

Treatment of emigrant or dependent suffering from infectious disease.

25. It shall be the special duty of the Medical Inspector to take care that no emigrant or dependent is suffering from any disease calculated to be dangerous to his neighbours, and to isolate or to exclude from the depôt and from embarkation persons who are so suffering.

Any person so suffering may, if the Medical Inspector thinks fit, be removed to a proper hospital for treatment.

Emigration Agent to pay return expenses of rejected emigrants.

26. If the Medical Inspector has reason to think that any emigrant is in such a state of health that his journey to British Burma, or detention in the depôt, would be dangerous to himself or others, or that he is unfit for labour in British Burma, he shall so certify to the Emigration Agent; and in case any emigrant is in such a state of health as aforesaid, the Emigration Agent shall pay to such emigrant such sum as is necessary to enable him to return to the place at which he was registered:

And any emigrant who, from his state of health, is, in the opinion of the Medical Inspector, unfit to undertake such journey, shall be entitled to be fed, lodged and attended to at the port of embarkation at the expense of the Emigration Agent, until he is reported by the Medical Inspector fit to undertake such journey.

Return expenses of dependents.

27. If a dependent has accompanied such emigrant, the Emigration Agent shall pay such sum as is necessary to enable him to return to the place at which he was registered, as well as to feed and lodge him during the detention (if any) of the emigrant in the depôt.

Procedure where dependent is dangerously ill.

28. If the Medical Inspector sees reason to think that any dependent is in such a state of health that his journey to British Burma or his detention in the depôt would be dangerous to himself or others, he shall so certify to the Emigration Agent; and thereupon the emigrant to whom such dependent is attached shall be entitled, if he so wishes, to return as if he himself had been certified to be unfit to proceed under section twenty-six.

If the emigrant still desires to proceed, then the dependent shall be kept and be returned to the place at which he was registered as if he were an emigrant falling under section twenty-six.

Countersignature by Medical Inspector where emigrant or dependent is passed by him.

29. If the Medical Inspector sees no reason to certify in the manner provided in section twenty-six or section twenty-eight of any emigrant or dependent, he shall countersign the copy of the emigrant's instrument which is in the possession of the Emigration Agent.

Procedure in case of ill-treatment on journey.

30. If, upon the arrival of any emigrant or dependent at the depôt, it appear that he has suffered any ill-treatment, or that the recruiter has failed to provide him with proper and sufficient food and lodging during the journey to the depôt, the Local Government or such officer as it may from time to time appoint in this behalf may order the Emigration Agent to pay him a reasonable sum by way of compensation.

Ratification of contracts of emigrants passed by Medical Inspector.

31. When the copy of an emigrant's instrument has been countersigned by the Medical Inspector under section twenty-nine, the Emigration Agent shall ratify the contract into which the emigrant has entered, by countersigning the emigrant's instrument and the authenticated copy thereof forwarded to the Emigration Agent under section eighteen.

Registration of contracts.

32. A copy of every such instrument shall be entered in a register to be kept by the Emigration Agent for the purpose, and a copy of such entry authenticated by himself shall be forwarded by him to the Immigration Agent at the port of debarkation.

Procedure if emigrant refuses to produce instrument.

33. Any emigrant who, without reasonable cause, refuses to produce his instrument when required by the Emigration Agent, or in any respect to comply with the terms of his contract, shall be punished with a fine equal in amount to the cost incurred in engaging, registering and conveying him to the depôt, and in default of payment of such fine with imprisonment which may extend to two months, and such emigrant may forthwith be discharged from the depôt.

A certificate signed by the Emigration Agent that reasonable cause for refusing to produce the emigrant's instrument has not been shown, shall be admissible as primâ facie evidence in any proceeding taken under this section.

A certificate signed by the Emigration Agent, stating the cost incurred in engaging, registering and conveying the emigrant to the depôt, shall be conclusive evidence of the amount of such cost.

Every fine levied under the provisions of this section shall be paid to the Emigration Agent.

Procedure if Agent neglects to ratify contract.

34. If within thirty days after the arrival at a depôt of any emigrant, the Emigration Agent does not offer to ratify such contract in manner aforesaid, or if the Emigration Agent, without the consent of the Local Government, refuses to be bound by the contract made with the emigrant, the Local Government, or such officer as it may from time to time appoint in this behalf, may order the Emigration Agent to pay to such emigrant such sum of money as is necessary to enable him, together with the dependents (if any) upon him, to return to the place where he was registered, and also to pay him a reasonable sum by way of compensation, and in such case the emigrant shall be released from his contract.

Consequence of ratification.

35. When the contract, not being a contract to serve a particular employer, has been ratified by the Emigration Agent, the emigrant shall be deemed to have contracted with the Secretary of State for India in Council to proceed to British Burma, and there to labour according to the terms of his contract in any place and mode which, consistently with such terms and with the provisions of this Act, the Chief Commissioner or any officer appointed by him in that behalf may from time to time direct.

When the contract, being a contract to serve a particular employer, has been ratified by the Emigration Agent, the emigrant shall be deemed to have contracted with the Secretary of State for India in Council to proceed to British Burma and there to labour for such employer; and such employer shall be bound to repay to the Immigration Agent all expenses incurred under this Act in respect of the immigrant and his dependents up to the time when the immigrant is delivered to his employer.

When contract is ratified, emigrant may be forwarded to British Burma.

36. When the contract of any emigrant has been duly ratified as aforesaid, he may be forwarded to British Burma, together with his registered dependents (if any).

No vessel to carry emigrants without a license.

37. It shall not be lawful to receive any emigrant on board any vessel unless a license to carry emigrants in such vessel has been obtained from the Local Government of the port of embarkation.

The granting or withholding of any such license shall be in the discretion of the Local Government.

38. Every person obtaining a license under the last preceding section shall be bound to comply with the provisions of this Act and the rules made hereunder, so far as such provisions and rules relate to him.

Before leaving the port of embarkation, the Emigration Agent shall furnish the master of any vessel licensed to carry emigrants with a list specifying as accurately as may be the names, ages and occupations, and the names of the fathers of the emigrants on board, and the names of their dependents (if any);

and the master shall obtain from the Emigration Agent and the Medical Inspector of Emigrants certificates under their respective hands, to the effect that they have in respect of the emigrants and dependents proceeding in such vessel done all that is hereinbefore required to be done on the part of such Emigration Agent and Medical Inspector respectively, and that, to the best of their knowledge, all the directions herein contained for ensuring the health, comfort and safety of the emigrants and dependents have been duly complied with, as well as all rules for the time being in force under section eighty-six.

Certificates from Emigration Agent and Medical Inspector.

40. If any emigrant without sufficient cause refuses or neglects to embark when called upon by the Emigration Agent so to do, it shall not be lawful to compel such emigrant or his dependents (if any) to embark, or to put him or them on boardship against his will, or to detain him or them against his or their will at the depôt or elsewhere; but nothing in this section shall diminish or affect the civil or criminal liabilities which such emigrant incurs by reason or in respect of his refusal or neglect aforesaid.

Procedure if emigrant refuses to embark.

Explanation.—The arbitrary refusal of any such dependent to embark shall not be deemed 'sufficient cause' within the meaning of this section.

Every case in which an emigrant is charged under this section before a Magistrate of Police in a Presidency town shall be heard and determined in a summary manner; and every such emigrant shall on conviction, whether by such Police Magistrate or any other Magistrate, be punished in the manner provided in section 492 of the Indian Penal Code for the punishment of offences under that section.

41. The Emigration Agent shall, before the embarkation of any emigrant, ascertain that he has in his possession the instrument mentioned in section eighteen.

Procedure as to emigrant's instrument.

If it appear to the satisfaction of the Emigration Agent that any emigrant has lost such copy, the Agent may furnish him with another copy of such instrument to be made from the copy forwarded by the Magistrate under section eighteen, and shall thereupon allow such emigrant to embark.

42. The offices of Emigration Agent and of Medical Inspector of Emigrants may be held by the same person; but in such case he shall perform only such of the duties hereinbefore prescribed for the two offices as are necessary for carrying out in substance the provisions of this Part.

or if it be proved before a Magistrate that the wages of such immigrant are in arrear to an amount exceeding the total of such wages for three months;

or if a Magistrate, on the report of the Inspector, and after due enquiry in the presence of the parties, is satisfied that any immigrant has been subjected to ill-usage by such employer or any other person placed in authority over the immigrant by such employer, or has been compelled by such employer or person to perform any labour when known to such employer or person to be unfit for it,

the Magistrate may, if he think fit, on the application of the immigrant, in each of such cases, cancel the assignment of such immigrant, and award to him, in addition to the wages (if any) due for service performed, compensation not exceeding thirty rupees.

83. Any immigrant who is not assigned under this Act may redeem the unexpired term of his contract of service by paying to the Immigration Agent such sum of money as will repay the expense incurred by Government under this Act and chargeable to such immigrant after taking into account any repayment already made by him; and the certificate of the Immigration Agent shall be conclusive evidence of the sum so chargeable.

Power to redeem contract.

84. Any immigrant who is assigned under this Act, and who is desirous to redeem the unexpired term of his contract, may demand to be taken or allowed to go before the Inspector of Immigrants within the local limits of whose authority he may be employed.

The Inspector shall then inform him what is the price at which his contract may be redeemed;

and on his depositing that price in the hands of the Inspector, the Inspector shall give notice to the employer that such immigrant requires him, within one week, to show cause why such immigrant should not redeem his contract for the sum so deposited;

and if no sufficient cause be shown within that time or such enlarged time as the Inspector deems reasonable, he shall require the production of the immigrant's instrument and endorse thereon a certificate of redemption, and out of the sum in deposit the employer of such immigrant shall be paid the value of the unexpired term of assignment.

From and after the date of such endorsement the immigrant's contract shall be deemed to have determined.

Value of unexpired term of assignment.

The value of the unexpired term of assignment shall be such as is provided for by the terms of the assignment, or as may be fixed by any rules made under section eighty-seven, clause (g), and in force at the date of the assignment.

PART VI.

Bills of the Legislative Council of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 15th February 1876, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a month :—

No. 2 of 1876.

A Bill to enable the Government of India to declare certain coins of Native States to be a legal tender in British India.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to enable the Governor-General in Council to declare that a tender of payment of money, if made in certain coins made for or issued by Native States, shall be a legal tender in British India; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. Local extent. Commencement.

1. This Act may be called "The Native Coinage Act, 1876:" It extends to the whole of British India; And it shall come into force at once.

Interpretation-clause.

2. In this Act "Native State" means any Prince or State in India in alliance with Her Majesty.

Power to declare that the coins of a Native State shall be legal tender.

3. Subject to the provisions of section four, the Governor-General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that a tender of payment of money, if made in the coins, or the coins of any specified metal, made for or issued by any Native State, shall be a legal tender in British India; and the provisions of the Indian Coinage Act, 1870, shall apply to the coins to which such notification refers, so far as such provisions are applicable thereto, and save as expressly provided by such notification.

When such power may be exercised.

4. The power conferred by the first clause of section three shall be exercisable only when the coins referred to in such notification comply with the following conditions (that is to say)— in the case of coins of gold, silver or bronze,

(a) their fineness is identical with that for the time being prescribed by law for coins of the Government of India of the same metal;

in the case of coins whether of gold, silver, bronze or copper,

(b) they are identical in weight with some coins of the Government of India of the same metal, which may for the time being be legally coined at any mint of the Government of India, or bear such relation thereto as is approved by the Governor-General in Council;

(c) the devices upon their obverse and reverse differ from the devices on coins now made or issued by any such Native State, and have been approved by the Governor-General in Council;

(d) upon each of such coins its value in money of the Government of India is inscribed in the English language;

(e) the Native State for which they are coined has undertaken to abstain, during a term of not less than thirty years, from coining in its own mint gold, silver, bronze or copper, as the case may be, and has also undertaken that no coins resembling coins for the time being a legal tender in British India shall, after the expiration of the said term, be struck under its authority or with its permission at any place within or without its jurisdiction;

(f) such State has formally declared that a tender of payment of money, if made in coins of the Government of India of the same metal, shall be a legal tender in the territories subject to such State;

(g) such State has also agreed that the law and rules for the time being in force respecting the cutting and breaking of coin of the Government of India reduced in weight by reasonable wearing or otherwise, or counterfeit, or called in by proclamation, shall apply to the coins made for or issued by such State under this Act, and that it will defray the cost of cutting and breaking them; and

(h) such State has also agreed not to issue the same coins below their nominal value, and not to allow any discount or other advantage to any person in order to bring them into circulation.

Native States authorised to send metal to British Indian mint for coinage.

5. It shall be lawful for any such State to send to any mint in British India metal to be made into coin under this Act; and, subject to the Mint rules for the time being in force, and to the provisions hereinafter contained, the Mint Master shall receive such metal and convert it into coin, provided that it be fit for coinage.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to entitle any such State to have coins made under this Act at any mint of the Government of India of any metal which is not for the time being legally coined at such mint.

Power to impose a charge for coinage.

6. The Governor-General in Council may impose on the coinage of any metal under this Act a charge sufficient to defray the expenses of coinage over and above the expenses of assay and refining; and the Mint Master shall coin such metal at the charge so imposed.

Power to limit number of coins to be made under this Act for any Native State.

7. The Governor-General in Council may from time to time, with reference to the reasonable requirements of the population of any Native State, fix the maximum number of any particular coins that shall be coined under this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The establishment of a uniform coinage throughout the Indian Peninsula has long been recognized as politically and socially expedient, and the present Bill is intended to be a first step in this direction. It proposes to enable the Governor-General in Council to declare that a tender of payment of money, if made in the coins, or the coins of any specified metal, made for or issued by any Native State shall (subject to the provisions of the Indian Coinage Act, 1870) be a legal tender in British India.

2. The power is limited by the following restrictions:—

(a.) The fineness of the coins of the Native State in question must be identical with the fineness legally prescribed for the coins of the Government of India of the same metal:

(b.) They must be identical in weight with some coins of the Government of India of the same metal, which may for the time being be legally coined at any of its mints, or bear such relation thereto as is approved by that Government:

(c.) The devices upon their obverse and reverse must differ from the devices on coins now made and issued by any Native State, and have been approved by the Government of India:

(d.) Upon each of such coins its value in money of the Government of India must be inscribed in English:

(e) The Native State for which they are coined must have undertaken (1) to abstain during a term of not less than 30 years from coining in its own mint gold, silver, bronze, or copper, as the case may be, and (2) that no coins resembling coins which are for the time being a legal tender in British India shall, after the expiration of the said term, be struck under its authority or with its permission at any place within or without its jurisdiction:

(f.) Such State must have formally declared that a tender of payment of money, if made in coins of the Government of India of the same metal, shall be a legal tender in the territories subject to the same State:

(g.) Such State must have also agreed that the rules for the time being in force respecting the cutting and breaking of worn or counterfeit or called-in coin of the Government of India shall apply to the coins made or issued by such State, and that it will defray the cost of cutting and breaking them.

(h.) Such State must also have agreed not to issue the same coins below their nominal value, and not to allow any advantage to any person in order to bring them into circulation.

3. In the case of gold coins the power to be conferred by the proposed Act will not of course be exercised unless a tender of payment in gold coined under Act XXIII of 1870 has been made a legal tender in British India.

4. The Bill authorises the Native States to send proper metal to any British Indian mint to be coined under the proposed Act, and enables the Government of India to impose a reasonable charge for coining it. But no such State will be entitled to have coins made at any mint of the Government of India of any metal not for the time being legally coined at such mint.

5. Lastly, the Governor-General in Council is empowered to limit the number of any particular coin to be made under the proposed Act for any Native State.

6. The Act will not be brought into force with regard to the coins of any Native State which has not now a mint in active operation, unless the right of such State to re-open a mint is specially recognised by the Government of India.

Calcutta, 27th January 1876.

WHITLEY STOKES.
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following further Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 15th February 1876:—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to extend certain parts of the Code of Criminal Procedure to the Courts of the Police Magistrates in the Presidency towns was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

Telegram from Government of Bombay, dated 22nd February 1875.
From Government of Bengal, No. Z, dated 1st March 1875.
From Magistrate of Police, Madras, dated 19th February 1875.
Remarks by Major Weldon, Chief Magistrate, Madras, dated 24th December 1875.
From Government of Madras, No. 101, dated 19th January 1876, and enclosures.
Further remarks by Major Weldon, Chief Magistrate, Madras, dated 26th January 1876.

2. In compliance with suggestions received from several quarters, we have placed in the body of the Bill the sections which, as it was last settled, were only referred to in the first schedule.

3. We have added a few sections from the Police Acts now in force in the Presidency towns. And we have incorporated the substance of Act LII of 1860, and made similar provisions as to offences against the Acts relating respectively to Telegraphs, the Post Office and Arms and Ammunition.

4. We have provided for the record of the important particulars in each case and for the record of evidence in all cases in which such record is expedient.

5. The circumstances of the Presidency towns are such that it is unnecessary to require that the punishment of whipping is to be inflicted in the presence of a medical officer.

6. The subject of local nuisances is sufficiently provided for by the several Municipal Acts. We have therefore dispensed with the chapter relating to that subject.

7. We find that the Court of Petty Sessions at Bombay has fallen almost entirely into disuse. The powers conferred on it by Bombay Act IV of 1866, have never been availed of; and in the year 1874 the only work done was 12 opium cases and 13 municipal appeals. Under these circumstances, and considering that no such Courts exist at Calcutta and Madras, we have provided for the abolition of the Court, reserving, however, the hearing of municipal appeals to the Senior Magistrate, who is already the "Revenue Judge" at the Presidency.

8. We have made considerable additions to the schedule of repeals.

9. We recommend that the Bill as now amended be republished in the Gazette of India, and that no further steps be taken in the matter until after the lapse of one month.

The 11th February 1876.

Dismissal of complaint.

32. The Magistrate before whom such complaint is duly made may, if, after examining the complainant, there is in his judgment no sufficient ground for proceeding, dismiss the complaint.

When a complaint is made before a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, that any person has committed, or is suspected of having committed, any offence triable by such Magistrate and punishable with fine only, or with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months, or with both, the Magistrate may issue his summons directed to such person, requiring him to appear at a certain time and place before such Magistrate as may then be there, to answer to the complaint.

the Magistrate may issue his warrant to apprehend the accused person.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of accused.

36. In cases, of whatever nature, in which the Magistrate thinks fit to issue a summons, he may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused person, and permit him to appear by an agent duly authorized to act in his behalf.

The accused person or his agent shall be permitted to examine and re-examine his own witnesses, and to cross-examine the complainant and his witnesses.

Accused may cross-examine.

67. The Magistrate may, at any stage of the proceedings, summon and examine any person whose evidence he considers essential to the inquiry, and recall and re-examine any person already examined.

Power of Magistrate to summon and examine any person.

68. If, from the absence of a witness or from any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary or advisable to defer the examination, or further examination, of witnesses, the Magistrate may, by a written order, from time to time adjourn the inquiry and remand the accused person for such time as is deemed reasonable, not exceeding fifteen days.

Adjournment of inquiry and remand.

During the time that the accused person is so remanded, the Magistrate shall deal with him in accordance with the provisions of chapter XVII.

EXPLANATION.—After commencing the inquiry, if sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the person accused may have committed an offence, and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by a remand, this is a reasonable ground for a remand.

69. When a Magistrate finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused person to take his trial before the High Court, or for remanding him, he shall discharge him, unless it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be put on his trial before himself, in which case he shall proceed accordingly.

When accused person to be discharged.

EXPLANATION I.—The absence of the complainant, except when the offence may lawfully be compounded, shall not be deemed sufficient ground for a discharge, if there appear other evidence of a nature rendering a trial desirable.

EXPLANATION II.—A discharge is not equivalent to an acquittal, and does not bar the revival of a prosecution for the same offence.

EXPLANATION III.—An order of discharge shall not ordinarily be made until the evidence of the witnesses named for the prosecution has been taken.

70. When evidence has been given before a Magistrate, which appears to justify him in sending the accused person to take his trial for an offence which is triable exclusively by the High Court, or which, in the opinion of the Magistrate, is one which ought to be tried by such Court, the accused person shall be sent for trial by such Magistrate before the High Court.

When accused to be committed for trial.

71. When the Magistrate determines to send the accused person before the High Court for trial, he shall, after the evidence for the prosecution has been recorded, make a written instrument under his hand and seal, declaring with what offence the accused person is charged, and shall direct him to be tried by such Court on such charge.

Framing of charge on which accused is to be tried.

Such instrument, the record of the original enquiry, and any weapon or other article of property necessary to produce in evidence shall be sent to the Clerk of the Crown or other officer appointed in this behalf by the High Court.

Charge, &c., to be forwarded to High Court.

72. As soon as the charge on which the accused person is to be tried has been prepared, it shall be read and explained to him; and a copy thereof shall be furnished to him, if he so require.

Charge to be explained, and copy furnished, to accused.

73. The accused person shall be required at once to give in, orally or in writing, a list of witnesses whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on his trial before the High Court.

List of witnesses for defence on trial.

The Magistrate may, if he thinks proper, summon the persons so named to attend and give evidence at the enquiry; and if he does so, the commitment shall not be considered to have been made until such evidence has been taken.

Further list. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to allow the accused person to give in any further list of witnesses at a subsequent time.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE TRIAL OF CASES BY MAGISTRATES.

Cases may be tried summarily. 74. The following procedure shall be observed in the trial of cases by Magistrates under this Act.

In every such case the Magistrate shall record the following particulars:

(a) the serial number,

(b) the date of the commission of the offence,

(c) the name of the complainant,

(d) the name of the accused person,

(e) the offence complained of or proved,

(f) the prisoner's plea,

(g) the final order,

(h) the date of such order.

Record of evidence. 75. The Magistrate need not record the evidence of the witnesses in any case tried by him under this Act.

But if he think fit to record such evidence, it shall be sufficient either to take it down with his own hand or to cause it to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court. All evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate and shall be part of the record.

Evidence so taken down shall ordinarily be taken in the form of a narrative, but the Magistrate may in his discretion take down or cause to be taken down any particular question or answer.

Every Magistrate recording the evidence of a witness shall record such remarks as he thinks material respecting the demeanour of such witness while under examination.

Object and effect of complaint. 76. No formal charge need at any time be made against the accused person, and neither the complaint nor the process issued thereon shall be regarded otherwise than as notice to the accused person of the facts to be inquired into. The Magistrate may convict the accused person of any offence he is competent to try, and which, from the facts proved, the accused person appears to have committed, whatever may be the nature of the complaint or process. If a formal charge be made it shall be drawn up in accordance with the provisions contained in chapter XX.

Effect on proceedings of defect in complaint or process. 77. No defect in the complaint or process shall affect the validity of the proceedings, unless it appears that the accused person was actually misled by such defect; and, in considering whether or not he was so misled, the Magistrate shall have regard to the manner in which the accused person conducted his defence.

Accused person may be admitted to bail, or allowed to be at large on his personal recognizance. 78. If, upon the day appointed, the accused person appears voluntarily in obedience to the summons in that behalf served upon him, or is brought before the Magistrate by virtue of a warrant or otherwise, the Magistrate shall deal with him in accordance with chapter XVII.

Dismissal or adjournment on non-appearance of complainant. 79. If upon the day appointed for the appearance of the accused person, or any day subsequent thereto on which the case may be called on, the complainant does not appear, the Magistrate shall dismiss the complaint, unless for some reason he thinks proper to adjourn the hearing of the same to some other day. Such adjournment shall be made upon such terms as the Magistrate thinks fit.

Procedure on appearance of parties. 80. On the appearance of both parties on the day fixed for the trial, the substance of the complaint shall be stated to the accused person, and he shall be asked if he has any cause to show why he should not be convicted.

Conviction on admission of truth of complaint. If the accused person admit the truth of the complaint, his admission shall be recorded, and if he shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate may convict him accordingly.

Procedure when no such admission is made. 81. If the accused person does not admit the truth of the complaint, the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant and such witnesses as he produces in support of his complaint, and also to hear the accused person and such witnesses as he produces in his defence.

Adjournment. 82. Before or during the hearing of any complaint, the Magistrate may, in order to secure the attendance of witnesses or for any other reason, adjourn the hearing of the same to a day to be then appointed and stated in the presence and hearing of the party or parties.

If on the day to which such hearing or such further hearing has been so adjourned, the accused person does not appear, the Magistrate may issue his warrant for the arrest of such person.

If the complainant does not appear, the Magistrate may dismiss the complaint.

Compensation to person informed or complained against. 83. In every case in which any person is given in charge to any Police-officer, or in which any information or complaint of any offence is laid or made before any Magistrate and is not further prosecuted, or in which, if further prosecuted, it appears to the Magistrate by whom the case is heard that there was no sufficient ground for making the charge, the Magistrate may award such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, to be paid by the informer or complainant to the party informed or complained against, for his loss of time and expenses in the matter, as to the Magistrate seems meet.

In such cases, if more persons than one are accused in the complaint, the Magistrate may, in like manner, award compensation not exceeding fifty rupees to each of them.

All compensation awarded under this section may be recovered as if it were a fine.

Withdrawal of complaint. 84. If a complainant, at any time before a final order is passed in any case, satisfies the Magistrate that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw his complaint, the Magistrate may permit him to withdraw it.

A complaint withdrawn under this section shall not again be entertained.

Acquittal.

85. If the Magistrate, in any case tried under this chapter, finds the accused person not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal.

Sentence.

If the accused person is convicted, the Magistrate shall pass sentence upon him, and, in cases appealable under this Act, shall record a brief statement of the reasons for the conviction, together with the substance of the evidence on which the conviction was had, unless he has already recorded the evidence itself in the manner described in section 75.

When the personal attendance of the accused person during the trial has been dispensed with, the sentence of the Magistrate, if the sentence be for fine only, may be pronounced in the presence of such accused person's agent, if he has been permitted to appear by agent; or the accused person may be required to attend to hear such sentence.

How the Magistrate is to proceed when, after commencement of trial, he finds the case beyond his jurisdiction.

86. In any trial before a Magistrate, in which it may appear at any stage of the proceedings that from any cause the case is one which the Magistrate is not competent to try, or one which, in the opinion of such Magistrate, ought to be tried by the High Court, the Magistrate shall stop further proceedings under this chapter, and shall, either submit the case to the Magistrate having jurisdiction, or commit the accused person to the High Court in accordance with the provisions contained in chapter IX.

Procedure in cases not of a criminal nature.

87. In all cases not of a criminal nature, if no sufficient cause be shown for the non-appearance of the person against whom complaint has been made, the Magistrate upon proof of the service of the summons, may proceed to hear and determine the case in his absence, or may, if he think fit, issue his warrant for apprehending and bringing the said person before him or some other Magistrate.

Provided that the prosecution in any such case shall be commenced within three months after the commission of the offence.

CHAPTER XI.

APPEALS.

No appeal in case of acquittal, except on behalf of Government.

88. The Local Government may direct an appeal by the Public Prosecutor or other officer specially or generally appointed in this behalf, from a Magistrate's order of acquittal, or of dismissal, or of leave to withdraw operating as an acquittal; but in no other case shall there be an appeal from a judgment or order.

Such appeal shall lie to the High Court. No appeal shall be presented under this section after six months from the date of the order complained of.

The High Court may, in any case so appealed, direct a new trial by another Court, or may pass such order as may be warranted by law.

Appeal.

89. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Magistrate, may appeal to the High Court if the sentence complained of involves imprisonment for a term exceeding one year or a fine exceeding five hundred rupees:

Provided that, where an accused person has been convicted on his own plea, no appeal shall lie except as to the extent or legality of the sentence.

For the purposes of the Indian Limitation Act, all appeals under this Act and all applications to the High Court for the exercise of the powers given by Act No. X of 1875, section 147, shall be deemed to be appeals under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Copy of judgment to accompany petition.

90. Every petition of appeal under this Act shall be accompanied by a copy of the order appealed against.

Copies of proceedings.

91. If any person affected by a sentence or other order passed by a Court under this Act desires to have a copy of any proceeding, he shall, on applying for such copy, be furnished therewith provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court, for some special reason, sees fit to furnish it free of cost.

Procedure when appellant in jail.

92. If the party appealing be in jail, he shall be at liberty to present his petition of appeal, and the copy of the judgment or order appealed against, to the officer in charge of the jail, who shall thereupon forward the petition to the proper appellate authority.

Rejection of appeal.

93. The High Court shall fix a reasonable time within which the appellant or his counsel or authorized agent may appear, and it may reject the appeal if, on a perusal of the petition of appeal and the copy of the judgment or order appealed against, and after hearing the appellant or his Counsel or authorized agent, if he appears, it considers that there is no sufficient ground for questioning the correctness of the decision or for interfering with the sentence or order appealed against.

Before rejecting the appeal, the Court may call for and peruse all or any part of the proceedings of the Magistrate, but shall not be bound to do so.

In rejecting an appeal under this section, the High Court shall not enhance the sentence.

Notice of appeal.

94. If the High Court decide to hear the appeal, it shall cause notice to be given to the appellant and shall also give notice to the Magistrate whose judgment or order has been appealed against, who shall inform, if necessary, the public prosecutor, Government pleader, or other officer empowered by Government in that behalf, of the day on which such appeal will be heard, and in cases under section 88, where the High Court decides to hear the appeal, it shall also cause notice to be given to the respondent.

High Court may alter or reverse finding and sentence, or enhance sentence.

95. The High Court, after perusing the proceedings of the Magistrate, and after hearing the appellant, his counsel or agent, if they appear, and the public prosecutor, Government pleader or other officer empowered by Government or by the Magistrate in that behalf, if he appears, may alter or reverse the finding and sentence or order of such Court, and may, if it see reason to do so, enhance any punishment that has been awarded or order the appellant to be re-tried before any Magistrate or before the High Court.

Provided that the High Court shall not inflict a greater punishment than is prescribed for the offence by the Indian Penal Code.

Suspension of sentence pending appeal.
Release of appellant on bail.

96. In any case in which an appeal is allowed, the High Court may, pending the appeal, order that the sentence be suspended, and, if the appellant be in confinement for an offence which is bailable, may order that he be released on bail.

The period during which the sentence is suspended shall be omitted in reckoning the completion of the punishment.

High Court may make or direct further inquiry.

97. In any case in which an appeal has been allowed, the High Court, if it thinks further inquiry or additional evidence upon any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the appellant to be necessary, may either make such further inquiry and take such additional evidence itself, or may direct such inquiry to be made and additional evidence to be taken by a Magistrate.

If the High Court takes further evidence and passes judgment and sentence, no fresh right of appeal arises in respect of such sentence.

When the evidence has not been taken before itself, the result of the further inquiry and the additional evidence shall be certified to the High Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal.

Unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the appellant may be dispensed with when the further inquiry is made or evidence taken.

The provisions of this Act relating to summoning and enforcing the attendance of witnesses and their examination shall, so far as may be, apply to witnesses examined under this section.

Finding or sentence when reversible by reason of error or defect in charge or proceedings.

98. No order passed by a Magistrate shall be reversed or altered on appeal on account of any error or defect, either in the charge or in the proceedings on or before trial, or on account of the improper admission or rejection of any evidence, unless such error or defect has occasioned a failure of justice, either by affecting the due conduct of the prosecution, or by prejudicing the prisoner in his defence.

No irregularity in the proceedings up to trial is a sufficient ground for reversing any judgment, sentence or order made or passed in a trial properly held.

High Court may reduce punishment.

99. In case the accused person has been sentenced to a larger amount of punishment than could have been awarded for the offence which, in the judgment of the High Court, is proved by the evidence, the High Court may reduce the punishment within the limits prescribed by the Indian Penal Code or any law for the time being in force for such offence.

Procedure in case of conviction by Court not having jurisdiction.

100. When a Magistrate has convicted a person of an offence not triable by such Magistrate, the High Court shall annul the conviction and sentence of such Magistrate, and direct the trial of the case by a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Unless otherwise provided, no appeal to lie from order of Magistrate.

101. No appeal shall lie from any order of a Magistrate, except in the cases provided for by this Act or by any law for the time being in force.

Notice to Magistrate concerned, of intention to make application under Act X of 1875, s. 147.

102. When an application is made to the High Court for the exercise of the powers conferred by the High Courts' Criminal Procedure Act, 1875, section 147, the party making such application shall give notice to the Magistrate, to whose decision such application relates, seven days at least before such application is made, and shall at the same time furnish such Magistrate with a copy of the grounds on which such application is to be made.

Statement by Magistrate of grounds of his decision, to be considered by High Court.

103. When the decision of any Magistrate is called in question in the High Court by any process issued on an ex parte application, the Magistrate may submit with the record a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision and any facts he may consider material to the issue; and this statement the Court shall consider before determining the matter so as to overrule or set aside the decision or acts of the Magistrate to which the application relates, and notwithstanding that no Counsel appear on behalf of the Magistrate.

CHAPTER XII.

EXECUTION.

Court to send accused, with warrant for execution of sentence to officer in charge of jail.

104. In cases tried by a Magistrate, the Court passing the sentence shall forward the accused person with a warrant for the execution of the sentence, to the officer in charge of the jail of the Presidency town in which the trial was held, or where there are more such jails than one, to such of them as the Local Government from time to time directs in this behalf.

The warrant shall state the offence of which the accused person has been convicted, and the period during which he is to be imprisoned, and the nature of the imprisonment or other punishment :

Sentence of whipping.

105. Where the accused person is sentenced to whipping, the sentence may be executed at such place and time as the Court may direct.

Form and direction of warrant of commitment.

106. Every warrant for the commitment of a person to custody shall be in writing, and signed and sealed by the Magistrate who issues it, and shall be directed to the officer in charge of the jail aforesaid, and shall be in the form (C or D, as the case may be) given in the third schedule to this Act or to the like effect.

Levy of fine.

107. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Magistrate may issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, whether or not the offence be punishable with fine only, and whether or not the sentence direct that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall suffer imprisonment.

Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender without the jurisdiction of the said Magistrate, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated.

Section to what cases applicable.

This section shall not apply to cases in which any special procedure is laid down, by any special or local law in force for the time being, for the recovery of any fine, but shall apply to cases in which no such procedure is laid down, and to all fines not levied when this Act comes into force, but which might have been levied under this section if it had been in force when they were imposed.

Detention of offender until return made to distress-warrant.

When a warrant of distress is issued, the Magistrate may order the offender to be detained in custody until return can be conveniently made to such warrant, unless the offender enter into a recognizance with or without sureties, conditioned for his appearance before the Magistrate on the day appointed for such return, such day not being more than eight days from the time of taking the recognizance; but if, before issuing such warrant of distress, it appears to the Magistrate, by the admission of the offender or otherwise, that no sufficient distress can be had within the jurisdiction of such Magistrate whereon to levy such fine or penalty, he may, if he think fit, refrain from issuing such warrant of distress.

Distress not illegal nor distrainer a trespasser for defect of form in proceedings.

No distress levied by virtue of this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, warrant of distress or other proceeding relating thereto; nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser ab initio on account of any irregularity afterwards committed by him; but all persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for the special damage in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Who may issue warrant.

The warrant may be issued either by the Magistrate who passes the sentence or by his successor in office.

Payment of fine in compensation.

108. Whenever a Magistrate imposes a fine under any law in force for the time being, the Magistrate may order the whole or any part of the fine to be paid in compensation,

(a) for expenses properly incurred in the prosecution,

(b) for the offence complained of, where such offence can, in the opinion of the Magistrate, be compensated by money.

Such payment shall be made, as the Magistrate thinks fit, to or for the benefit of the complainant, or the person injured, or both.

If the fine be awarded in a case which is subject to appeal, the amount awarded shall not be paid until the period prescribed for presentation of the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal be presented, till after the decision of the appeal.

In any subsequent civil proceedings relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum which may have been awarded under this section.

Imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

109. In every case punishable under any law in force for the time being with imprisonment as well as fine, in which the offender is sentenced to a fine, whether with or without imprisonment, the Magistrate shall be guided by the provisions of sections 64 and 65 of the Indian Penal Code in awarding the period of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine :

Proviso as to cases decided by Magistrate.

Provided that, in no case decided by a Magistrate, where imprisonment has been awarded as part of the substantive sentence, shall the period of imprisonment awarded in default of payment of the fine exceed one-fourth of the period of imprisonment which he is competent to inflict as punishment for the offence, otherwise than as imprisonment in default of payment of the fine.

Where a person is sentenced to fine only, the Magistrate may award such term of imprisonment in default of payment of fine as is allowed by law, provided the amount does not exceed the Magistrate's powers under this Act.

Whipping, if awarded in addition to imprisonment, when to be inflicted.

110. When the punishment of whipping is awarded, in addition to imprisonment, in a case which is subject to appeal, the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of such sentence, or, if an appeal be made within that time, until the sentence is confirmed by the High Court: but the whipping shall be inflicted immediately on the expiry of the fifteen days, or, in case of an appeal, immediately on the receipt of the order of the High Court confirming the sentence.

111. In the case of a person of or over sixteen years of age, the punishment of whipping shall be inflicted with such instrument, in such mode, and on such part of the person, as the Local Government directs; and, in the case of a person under sixteen years of age, it shall be inflicted in the way of school-discipline with a light ratan.

Mode of inflicting punishment.

In no case, if the cat-of-nine-tails be the instrument employed, shall the punishment of whipping exceed one hundred and fifty lashes, or, if the ratan be employed, shall the punishment exceed thirty stripes.

The punishment shall be inflicted in the presence of the officer in charge of the jail.

112. No sentence of whipping shall be carried into execution unless a medical officer, if present, certifies, or, if there is not a medical officer present, unless it appears to the officer present, that the offender is in a fit state of health to undergo the punishment.

Punishment not to be inflicted if offender not in fit state of health.

If, during the execution of a sentence of whipping, a medical officer certifies, or it appears to the officer present, that the offender is not in a fit state of health to undergo the remainder of the punishment, the whipping shall be finally stopped.

Stay of execution.

No sentence of whipping shall be executed by instalments.

Not to be executed by instalments.

113. In any case in which, under section 112, a sentence of whipping is, wholly or partially, prevented from being carried into execution, the offender shall be kept in custody till the Magistrate who passed the sentence can revise it; and the said Magistrate may, at his discretion, either order the discharge of such offender, or sentence him, in lieu of whipping, or in lieu of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not carried out, to imprisonment for any period, which may be in addition to any other punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the same offence:

Procedure if punishment cannot be inflicted under section 112.

Provided that the whole period of imprisonment to which such offender is sentenced shall not exceed that to which he is liable by law, or that which the Magistrate is competent to award.

114. When a person is convicted, at one trial, of two or more offences punishable under the same or different sections of any law for the time being in force, the Magistrate may sentence him, for the offences of which he has been convicted, to the several penalties prescribed by such enactment or enactments, which such Magistrate is competent to inflict; such penalties, when consisting of imprisonment, to commence the one after the expiration of the other.

Sentence in cases of simultaneous conviction of several offences.

It shall not be necessary for the Magistrate, by reason only of the aggregate punishment for the several offences being in excess of the punishment which it is competent to inflict on conviction of a single offence, to send the offender for trial before the High Court:

Provided that the punishment shall not in the aggregate exceed twice the amount of punishment which the Magistrate is, by his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict.

115. Whoever, having been convicted of an offence punishable under chapter XII or chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, is again accused of any offence punishable under either of those chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate considers him an habitual offender, be committed to the High Court.

Trial of previously convicted persons.

116. When sentence is passed on an escaped convict, for such escape or for any other offence, the Magistrate may direct the sentence to take effect immediately, or after such convict has suffered imprisonment or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period, equal to that which remained unexpired of his former sentence at the time of his escape.

Currency of sentence on escaped convicts.

117. When sentence is passed on a person already under sentence of imprisonment or transportation, and the sentence is for imprisonment, the Magistrate shall direct that such imprisonment shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment or transportation to which such person has been previously sentenced:

Commencement of sentence on offender already sentenced for other offence.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be held to excuse such person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon such former or subsequent conviction.

Proviso.

CHAPTER XIII.

SPECIAL RULES OF EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL CASES.

118. The examination of a civil surgeon or other medical witness, taken and duly attested by a Magistrate, may be given in evidence in any criminal trial, although the person examined is not called as a witness.

Evidence of medical witness.

The Court may summon such civil surgeon or other medical witness, if it sees sufficient cause for doing so.

Court may summon medical witness.

119. Any document purporting to be a report from the chemical examiner, or assistant chemical examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analysis and report, in the course of any criminal trial, or in any preliminary inquiry relating thereto, may, if it bears his signature, be used as evidence in any criminal trial.

Report of chemical examiner.

The Court may presume that the signature of any such document is genuine, and that the person signing it held the office which he professed to hold at the time when he signed it.

Genuineness of signature may be presumed.

120. Where a previous conviction or acquittal is to be proved against an accused person, application shall be made to the officer in whose custody the records of such trial may be.

Previous conviction or acquittal how proved.

It shall not be necessary to produce the record of the conviction or acquittal of such accused person, or a copy thereof, but an extract may be produced in proof of such conviction or acquittal, if certified, under the hand of the clerk of the Court or other officer having the custody of the records of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had, or by the deputy of such clerk or officer, to be a copy of the charge, finding and sentence, as the case may be.

Record of evidence in absence of accused.

121. If an accused person abscond, and after due pursuit cannot be arrested, any Court competent to try or to commit such accused person for trial for the offence complained of may, in his absence, record the statements of the persons acquainted with the facts; and such depositions may, on the arrest of such person, be put in on his trial for such offence, if it is not practicable to procure the attendance of such witnesses.

Convictions on evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate and partly by another.

122. Whenever any Magistrate, after having heard part of the evidence in a case, ceases to exercise jurisdiction in such case, and is succeeded by another Magistrate who has and who exercises jurisdiction in such case, such last-named Magistrate may decide the case on the evidence partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by himself, or he may re-summon the witnesses and commence afresh:

Provided that the accused person may, when the second Magistrate commences his proceedings, demand that the witnesses shall be re-summoned and re-heard, in which case the trial shall be commenced afresh:

Provided also that the High Court may set aside any conviction passed on evidence not wholly recorded by the Magistrate before whom the conviction was had, if such Court is of opinion that the accused person has been materially prejudiced thereby; and may order a new trial.

Continuation of proceedings not completed by Magistrate commencing inquiry.

123. Whenever, from any cause, a Magistrate making an inquiry under this Act is unable to complete the proceedings himself, any other Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire and to commit may complete the case and proceed as if he had recorded all the evidence himself.

When personal attendance of witness may be dispensed with.

124. Whenever in the course of a trial before a Magistrate it appears that the attendance of a witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate may dispense with the personal attendance of such witness.

Issue of commission and procedure thereunder.

Such Magistrate may direct a commission to the Magistrate of the District, or to a Magistrate of the first class, in whose jurisdiction such witness may be. The Magistrate to whom the commission is directed shall proceed to take the evidence of such witness as directed in section 330 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Commission in case of witness being within jurisdiction of a High Court.

If the witness is within the local limits of the ordinary original criminal jurisdiction of any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, the Court dispensing with his personal attendance may direct a commission to any Magistrate within such limits, and such Magistrate shall have the like power to compel the attendance and examination of witnesses as he possesses for that purpose in cases pending before him.

Prosecutor and accused may examine witness.

The prosecutor and the accused person may forward interrogatories, upon which the officer to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness, or the prosecutor may appear personally before the Magistrate to whom the commission is directed, or the prosecutor or accused person may so appear by authorized agent.

After any commission issued under this section has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto, and the deposition of such witness may be used as evidence in the case and shall form part of the record.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF THE EXAMINATION OF ACCUSED PERSONS.

Examination of accused.

125. In all inquiries and trials under this Act, the Magistrate may from time to time, at any stage of the inquiry or trial and without previously warning the accused person, examine him, and put such questions to him as he considers necessary.

The accused person shall not render himself liable to punishment for refusal to answer such questions, or for giving false answers to them, but the Magistrate shall draw such inference as may to him seem just from such refusal or false answers.

EXPLANATION.—The answer given by an accused person may be put in evidence against him, not only in the case under inquiry, but also in trials for any other offences which his replies may tend to show he has committed.

Examination of accused how recorded.

126. Whenever an accused person is examined in the course of a preliminary enquiry into a case triable by the High Court, the whole of such examination, including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, and shall be shown or read to him, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers.

When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the examination shall be attested by the signature of the Magistrate, who shall certify under his own hand that it was taken in his presence and in his hearing, and contains accurately the whole of the statement made by the accused person.

No influence to be used to induce disclosures.

127. Except as is provided in section 128, no influence, by means of any promise or threat or otherwise, shall be used to the accused person to induce him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.

Magistrate may tender pardon to accomplice.

128. A Magistrate may, after recording his reason for so doing, tender a pardon to any one or more of the persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any offence specified in column seven of the second schedule hereto annexed as triable exclusively by the High Court, on condition of his or their making a full, true and fair disclosure of the whole of the circumstances, within his or their knowledge, relative to the crime committed, and every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

Any person accepting a tender of pardon under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case, under the rules applicable to the examination witnesses.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody pending the termination of the trial.

When Magistrate or High Court may direct commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

129. When a pardon has been tendered under section 128, if it appears to the Magistrate before the trial, or to the High Court, that any person who has accepted such offer of pardon has not conformed to the conditions under which the pardon was tendered, either by wilfully concealing anything essential, or by giving false evidence, such Magistrate or Court may commit, or direct the commitment of, such person, for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered.

The statement made by a person under pardon, which pardon has been withdrawn under this section, may be put in evidence against him.

CHAPTER XV.

OF SECURING THE ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

Power to summon material witness or examine person present.

130. Any Magistrate may, at any stage of any proceeding, inquiry or trial, summon, in the manner provided by chapter VI, any witness, or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, and it shall be the Magistrate's duty to do so if the evidence of such person appears essential to the just decision of the case.

When warrant of arrest may issue in first instance.

131. If a Magistrate has reason to believe that any witness whose attendance is required will not attend to give evidence without being compelled to do so, he may, instead of issuing a summons, issue a warrant of arrest in the first instance.

Procedure when warrant cannot be served.

132. If such warrant cannot be executed, and the Magistrate considers that the witness absconds or conceals himself for the purpose of avoiding the service thereof, he may issue a proclamation, requiring the attendance of such witness to give evidence at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous part of such witness' ordinary place of abode, or if he has no such abode, of the Court of the Magistrate.

If the witness does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Magistrate may order the attachment of any moveable property belonging to such witness, to such amount as seems reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of costs of attachment and of any fine to which the witness may be liable under the provisions of the following section.

Such order shall authorize the attachment of any moveable property within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it was made; and it shall authorize the attachment of any moveable property without the jurisdiction of the said Magistrate, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated.

Release of attached property of witness appearing and satisfying Magistrate.

133. If the witness appears and satisfies such Magistrate that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Magistrate shall direct that the property be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as to such Magistrate seems fit.

Sale of property of witness not appearing or not satisfying Magistrate.

If such witness does not appear, or, appearing, fails to satisfy the Magistrate that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as aforesaid, the Magistrate may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of any fine which may be imposed upon such witness under the provisions of section 172 of the Indian Penal Code.

If the witness pays to such Magistrate the costs and fine as aforesaid, his property shall be released from attachment.

Power to order prisoner in jail to be brought up for examination.

134. When any Magistrate is desirous of examining any prisoner confined in any civil or criminal jail as a witness or accused person in any case pending before him, it shall be lawful for such Magistrate to issue an order to the officer in charge of the said jail, requiring him to bring such prisoner in proper custody, at a time to be therein named, to the Police Court, for examination; and the officer in charge of the said jail, on receipt of such order, shall act in accordance therewith, and shall provide for the safe custody of the prisoner during his absence from the prison for the purpose aforesaid.

Arrest of person disobeying summons.

135. If any person summoned to give evidence neglects or refuses to appear at the time and place appointed by the summons, and no reasonable excuse is offered for such neglect or refusal, the Magistrate, upon proof of the summons having been duly served, may issue a warrant under his hand and seal to bring such person before him to testify as aforesaid.

Committal of person refusing to answer.

136. If any witness summoned or brought before a Magistrate refuses to answer such questions as are put to him, without offering any reasonable excuse for such refusal, such Magistrate may, by warrant under his hand and seal, commit him to custody for any term not exceeding seven days, unless in the meantime such person consents to be examined and to answer; after which, in the event of his persisting in his refusal, he may be dealt with according to the provisions of section 177 or 178.

Inquiries.

137. In inquiries preliminary to commitment under this Act to a High Court, the Magistrate making the inquiry shall summon the witnesses for the prosecution to appear before him, and shall take their evidence against the accused person. The Magistrate may, in his discretion, summon or examine any witness offered on behalf of the accused person to answer or disprove the evidence against him.

Procedure in inquiries preliminary to commitment.

The Magistrate may summon and examine supplementary witnesses after commitment and before the commencement of the trial, and bind them over to appear and give evidence. Such examination shall, if possible, be taken in the presence of the accused person.

Power to summon supplementary witnesses.

138. In such inquiries, when the person accused is to be committed for trial, and has given in any list of witnesses mentioned in section 73, the Magistrate may either summon the witnesses to appear before the High Court, or leave them to be summoned by the Clerk of the Crown.

Summons to witnesses when accused person is to be committed.

139. Prosecutors and witnesses for the prosecution and defence, whose attendance is necessary before the High Court, and who appear before the Magistrate, shall execute before him recognizances, in the form (F) given in the third schedule to this Act, or to the like effect, to be in attendance when called upon at the High Court, to prosecute or to give evidence, as the case may be.

Recognizances of prosecutors and witnesses.

If any prosecutor or witness refuses to attend before the High Court, or to execute the recognizance above directed, the Magistrate may detain him in custody until he executes such recognizance, or until his attendance at the High Court is required, when the Magistrate shall send him under custody to the High Court.

Detention in custody in case of refusal to attend or to execute recognizance.

Witnesses.

140. In the case of offences punishable with fine only or with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or with both, the Magistrate may summon any person who appears to him likely to give material evidence on behalf of the complainant or the accused.

In cases tried upon summons.

Ordinarily it shall be the duty of the complainant and accused to produce their own witnesses.

In such cases, it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to summon any witnesses named by the complainant or the accused; and he may require, in such cases, a deposit of the expenses of a witness before summoning him.

141. In the case of all other offences, the Magistrate shall ascertain from the complainant, or otherwise, the names of any persons who may be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case, and who are likely to give evidence for the prosecution, and shall summon such of them to give evidence before him as he thinks necessary.

In cases tried upon warrant.

The Magistrate shall also, subject to the provisions of section 137, summon any witness and examine any evidence that may be offered in behalf of the accused person, to answer or disprove the evidence against him, and may, for that purpose, at his discretion, adjourn the trial from time to time.

Of Securing Documentary Evidence.

142. Whenever a Magistrate considers that the production of any document is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation or judicial proceeding, such Magistrate may issue a summons to the party in whose keeping such document is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce such document at the time and place stated in the summons.

Procedure for obtaining production of document required as evidence.

143. If there appears reason to believe that the person to whom the summons is addressed will not produce it as directed in the summons, such Magistrate may issue a search-warrant for the document in the first instance.

When warrant for search for documents may issue.

144. Any Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, impound any document produced before him, or may, at the conclusion of the proceedings, order such document to be returned to the person who produced it.

Power to impound document produced.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF SEARCH-WARRANTS.

145. When a Magistrate considers that the production of anything is essential to the conduct of an inquiry into an offence known or suspected to have been committed, or to the discovery of the offender, or when he considers that such inquiry or discovery will be furthered by the search or inspection of any place, he may grant his search-warrant; and the officer charged with the execution of such warrant may search or inspect any place within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate.

Search-warrant when grantable.

The Magistrate issuing such warrant may, if he see fit, specify in his warrant the place or part to which only the search or inspection shall extend; and the officer charged with the execution of such warrant shall then search or inspect only the place or part so specified.

146. If any letter in the custody of the Postal Department is wanted for the purpose of any criminal proceeding, a Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, direct the postal authorities to deliver up any such letter.

Procedure as to letter in custody of Postal Department.

147. A search-warrant shall ordinarily be directed to a Police-officer; but the Magistrate issuing the warrant may, if immediate search is necessary and no Police-officer be immediately available, direct it to any other person.

Direction of search-warrant.

148. A search-warrant directed or endorsed to a Police-officer may, if he is not able to proceed in person, be executed by any other Police-officer.

Warrant to Police-officer may be executed by his subordinate.

Endorsement.

In such case the name of such Police-officer shall be endorsed upon the warrant by the officer to whom it is directed or endorsed.

Execution of search-warrant out of district in which issued.

149. When it is necessary for a search-warrant to be executed out of the Presidency town in which it was issued, any Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed shall endorse his name thereon.

Such endorsement shall be sufficient authority for the Police-officer charged with the execution of the warrant to execute the same within the said jurisdiction.

Or the search-warrant may be directed to the Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction the search is to be made; and he shall thereupon endorse his name on such warrant, and enforce its execution in the same manner as if it had been issued by himself.

Search-warrants may, in emergency, be executed without endorsement.

150. Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by obtaining the endorsement of the Magistrate in whose district the warrant is to be executed will prevent the discovery of the thing for which search is to be made, the Police-officer charged with the execution of the warrant may execute the same, in any place beyond the district in which it was issued, without the endorsement of the Magistrate in whose local jurisdiction that place is situate.

Thing found to be taken to Magistrate within whose jurisdiction it is found.

If the thing for which search is made is found in such place, it shall, when the place where the thing is found is nearer to the Magistrate having jurisdiction in such place than to the Magistrate who issued the warrant, be immediately taken before the Magistrate in whose local jurisdiction it is found; and unless there be good cause to the contrary, such Magistrate shall make an order authorizing it to be taken to the Magistrate who issued the warrant.

Order thereon.

If the thing be not found after such search, the Police-officer making the same shall, in addition to the return made to the Magistrate who issued the warrant, report the fact to the Magistrate in whose local jurisdiction the search was made.

Magistrate may issue search-warrant to be executed in place out of his jurisdiction.

151. Whenever it appears necessary, a Magistrate may, by his warrant, order search to be made in a place out of his jurisdiction, and may direct that the warrant be executed either after or without obtaining the endorsement of the Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the search is to be made.

When a Magistrate issues a warrant under this section, he shall inform the Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction the place to be searched is situate.

Magistrate may send search-warrant by post to Magistrate having jurisdiction.

152. A Magistrate issuing a search-wararnt to be executed in any place out of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, may direct the warrant to any Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction such place is situate, and may send the same by post.

Endorsement and execution by such Magistrate.

On receipt of such warrant by the Magistrate to whom it is directed, he shall endorse his name thereon, and enforce its execution in the same manner as if it had been originally issued by himself.

In such case, any property found on search made may be dealt with as provided in section 150.

Search of house suspected to contain stolen property or forged documents.

153. If the Magistrate, upon information and after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, has reason to believe that any place is used for the deposit or sale of stolen property, or of property which has been fraudulently obtained, or for the deposit or sale or manufacture of forged documents, or counterfeit Government stamps, or counterfeit coin, or instruments or materials for counterfeiting coin or for forging, or that any forged documents, or counterfeit stamps, or false seals, or counterfeit coin, or instruments or materials used for counterfeiting coin, or for forging, are kept or deposited in any place, he may by his warrant authorize any Police-officer above the rank of a constable to enter, with such assistance as may be required, and by force if necessary, any such place, and to search all such parts of the same as are specified in the warrant, and to seize and take possession of any property, documents, stamps, seals or coins therein found, which he reasonably suspects to be stolen, unlawfully obtained, forged, false or counterfeit, and also of any such instruments and materials as aforesaid.

And if upon search thereupon made, such property, documents, stamps, seals, coins, instruments or materials be found, then to convey the same before a Magistrate, or to guard the same on the spot until the offenders are taken before a Magistrate or otherwise dispose thereof in some place of safety; and moreover to take into custody and carry before the said Magistrate every person found in such place, who appears to have been privy to the deposit, sale or manufacture or keeping of any such property, documents, stamps, seals, coins, instruments or materials knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect the said property to have been stolen, or otherwise unlawfully obtained, or the said documents, stamps, seals, coins, instruments or materials to have been forged, falsified or counterfeited, or the said instruments or materials to have been or to be intended to be used for counterfeiting coin or for forging.

Magistrate may attend personally.

154. The Magistrate by whom a search-warrant is issued may attend personally for the purpose of seeing that the warrant is duly executed.

Magistrate may direct search in his presence.

The Magistrate may also direct a search to be made in his presence, of any place for the search of which he is competent to issue a search-warrant.

CHAPTER XVII.

BAIL.

When bail shall be taken.

155. When any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate accused of any bailable offence, he shall be admitted to bail.

156. When any person accused of any non-bailable offence appears or is brought before a Magistrate such person shall not be admitted to bail, if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the offence of which he is accused.

When bail not to be taken.

If the evidence given in support of the accusation is, in the opinion of the Magistrate, not such as to raise a strong presumption of the guilt of the accused person, or if such evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused person as, in the opinion of the Magistrate, weakens the presumption of his guilt, but there appears to the Magistrate, in either of such cases, to be sufficient ground for further inquiry into his guilt, the accused person shall be admitted to bail pending such inquiry.

When bail may be taken.

157. When a Magistrate admits to bail any person accused or suspected of any offence, a recognizance, in such sum of money as the Magistrate thinks sufficient, shall be entered into by the person so accused, and one or more sureties, conditioned that such person shall attend at the time and place mentioned in the recognizance, and shall continue to attend until otherwise directed by the Court, and, if required, shall appear when called upon at the High Court, to answer the charge.

Recognizance of accused and sureties.

158. If, through mistake or fraud, insufficient bail has been taken, or if the sureties become afterwards insufficient, the accused person may be ordered by the Magistrate to give sufficient bail or to find sufficient sureties, and, in default, may be committed to prison.

Power to order sufficient bail when that first taken is insufficient.

159. If the accused person cannot find sureties when called upon, he shall be admitted to bail upon finding the same at any time afterwards before conviction.

Admission to bail found after failure in first instance.

160. After the recognizances have been duly entered into, the Magistrate, in case the accused person has appeared voluntarily or is in the custody of some officer, shall thereupon release him; and in case he is in some prison or other place of confinement, shall issue a warrant of release to the jailor or other person having him in his custody, and such jailor or other person shall thereupon release him.

Discharge on bail.

161. Any one or more of the sureties for an accused person may, at any time, apply to the Magistrate to be discharged from their engagements.

Discharge of sureties.

On such an application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest, directing that such person be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the recognizances of the sureties to be discharged, and shall call upon such person to find other sureties, and, in default, may order him to be committed to prison.

162. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance of the person executing the personal recognizance, the Magistrate is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance, he shall proceed to enforce the penalty, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person, which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by accused.

Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the accused person, without the jurisdiction of the said Magistrate, when endorsed by the Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such moveable property is situated.

163. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance by the person bailed, the Magistrate is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, he shall give notice to the surety or sureties to pay the same, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by sureties.

If such penalty be not paid and if no sufficient cause for its non-payment be shown, the Magistrate shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety or sureties, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him or them which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate. Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the surety or sureties, without the jurisdiction of the said Magistrate, when endorsed by the Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such moveable property is situated.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, such surety or sureties shall be liable to confinement, by order of the Magistrate, in the civil jail, during a period not exceeding six months.

164. The powers given by sections 162 and 163 may be exercised by every Magistrate in every case in which a personal recognizance or bail has been given for the appearance of a party or witness, if default is made by the non-appearance of such party or witness before such Court, according to the conditions of such recognizance or bail:

In what cases powers given by sections 162 and 163 may be exercised.

Provided that the Magistrate may, at his discretion, remit any portion of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the party or witness, or of the surety or sureties, and enforce payment in part only.

Remission of part of penalty.

165. When any person is required by any Magistrate to give bail, such Magistrate may permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as it may fix in lieu of such bail.

Deposit instead of bail.

CHAPTER XVIII.

LUNATICS.

166. When any person charged with an offence before a Magistrate appears to such Magistrate to be of unsound mind and incapable of making a defence, the Magistrate shall institute an inquiry to ascertain the fact of such unsoundness of mind, and shall cause the accused person to be examined by the civil surgeon of the district, or some other medical officer, and thereupon shall examine such civil surgeon or other medical officer as a witness, and shall reduce the examination into writing.

Procedure in case of accused being lunatic.

If such Magistrate is of opinion that the accused person is of unsound mind, he shall stay further proceedings in the case.

167. When, from the evidence given before a Magistrate, there appears to be sufficient ground for believing that the accused person committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence triable exclusively by the High Court, and that he was at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged, or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, such accused person shall, if he appears to be sane at the time of inquiry, be sent for trial by the Magistrate before the High Court.

When accused appears to have been insane.

If an accused person appears to be insane at the time of inquiry, the Magistrate shall act in the manner provided in the last preceding section.

168. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate, if the offence of which such person is accused be bailable, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required.

Release of lunatic on security given.

If the offence be not bailable, or if the required bail be not given, the accused person shall be kept in safe custody in such place as the Local Government to which the case shall be reported shall direct.

Custody when bail not given.

169. Whenever an inquiry or trial is postponed under section 166, the Magistrate may at any time resume the inquiry or trial, and require the accused person, if detained in custody, to be brought before such Magistrate; or, if the accused person has been released on security, may require his appearance.

Resumption of inquiry or trial.

The surety of such person shall be bound, at any time, to produce him to any officer whom the Magistrate appoints to inspect him; and the certificate of such officer shall have the same effect as the certificate of an Inspector-General of Prisons or the visitors of lunatic asylums, granted under section 174.

170. If, when the accused person appears or is again brought before the Magistrate, it appears to such Magistrate that the accused person is in a fit state of mind to make his defence, the inquiry shall proceed, or the accused person shall be put on his trial, as the case may require.

Procedure on accused appearing before Magistrate.

If it appears that the accused person is still of unsound mind, and incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate shall again act according to the provisions of section 166.

171. Whenever any person is acquitted upon the ground that, at the time at which he is charged with having committed an offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged, or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the finding shall state specially whether such person committed the act or not.

Finding in case of acquittal on ground of being lunatic.

172. Whenever such finding states that the accused person committed the act charged, the Magistrate before whom the trial was held shall, if the act charged would, but for the incapacity found, have amounted to an offence, order such person to be kept in safe custody, in such place and manner as the Magistrate thinks fit, and shall report the case for the order of the Local Government.

Person found to have committed act charged to be kept in safe custody and report made to Government.

The Local Government may order such person to be kept in safe custody in a lunatic asylum or other suitable place of safe custody.

173. When any person is confined under the provisions of section 168 or 172, the Inspector General of Prisons, if such person is confined in a jail, or the visitors of the lunatic asylums, or any two of them, if he is confined in a lunatic asylum, may visit him in order to ascertain his state of mind; and he shall be visited once at least in every six months by such Inspector General or by two of such visitors as aforesaid; and such Inspector General or visitors shall make a special report to the Local Government as to the state of mind of such person.

Visiting of lunatic prisoners.

174. If such person is confined under section 168, and such Inspector General or visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making his defence, he shall be taken before the Magistrate at such time as such Magistrate appoints, and such Magistrate shall deal with such person under the provisions of section 170; and the certificate of such Inspector General or visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Procedure where lunatic prisoner reported capable of making defence.

175. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 172, and such Inspector-General or visitors as aforesaid certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon either order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public lunatic asylum, if he has not been already sent to such an asylum; and may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial officer and two medical officers, whereof the chief medical officer attached to the lunatic asylum shall be one.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 172 is declared capable of being discharged.

The said commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person, taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, who may order his discharge or detention as to it may seem fit.

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative.

176. Whenever any relative or friend of any person detained under the provisions of section 172 is desirous that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person detained shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may make an order that such person may be delivered to such relative or friend.

Whenever such person is so delivered over, it shall be upon condition that he shall be subject to the inspection of such officer as the Local Government appoints, and at such times as such Government directs.

The provisions of sections 173 and 175 shall apply to persons detained under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be dealt with as a certificate of the Inspector General of Prisons, or the visitors of lunatic asylums, under the said sections.

CHAPTER XIX.

CONTEMPTS OF COURT.

Procedure in certain cases of contempt.

177. When any such offence as is described in sections 175, 178, 179, 180 or 228 of the Indian Penal Code is committed in the view or presence of any Magistrate, the Magistrate may cause the offender to be detained in custody; and, at any time before the rising of the Magistrate on the same day, may take cognizance of the offence, and adjudge the offender to punishment by fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, by imprisonment in the civil jail for a period not exceeding one month, unless such fine be sooner paid.

In every such case, the Magistrate shall record the facts constituting the offence, with any statement the offender may make, as well as the finding and sentence.

If the offence is under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, the record must show the nature and stage of the judicial proceeding in which the Magistrate insulted or interrupted was sitting, and the nature of the interruption or insult offered.

Procedure where Court considers that accused should be imprisoned, or fined more than 200 rupees.

178. If the Magistrate in any case considers that a person accused of any such offence should be imprisoned otherwise than in default of payment of fine, or that a fine exceeding two hundred rupees should be imposed upon him, such Magistrate after recording the facts constituting the offence, and the statement of the accused person as before provided, shall forward the case to another Magistrate, and shall cause bail to be taken for the appearance of such accused person before such Magistrate, or, if sufficient bail be not tendered, shall cause such person to be forwarded under custody to such Magistrate.

Such other Magistrate shall proceed to try the accused person in the manner provided by this Act for trials before a Magistrate; and may adjudge the offender to punishment, as provided in the section of the Indian Penal Code under which he is charged.

Any person convicted under this section may appeal to the High Court.

Discharge of offender on submission or apology.

179. When any Magistrate has adjudged an offender to punishment, or forwarded him to another Magistrate for trial, for refusing or omitting to do anything which he was lawfully required to do, or for any intentional insult or interruption, the former Magistrate may discharge the offender, or remit the punishment, on his submission to the order or requisition of such Magistrate, or on apology being made to his satisfaction.

CHAPTER XX.

OF THE CHARGE.

Form of Charges.

Charge to state offence.

180. The charge shall state the offence with which the accused person is charged.

Specific name of offence, sufficient description.

If the law which creates the offence gives it any specific name, the offence may be described in the charge by that name only.

How stated where offence has no specific name.

If the law which creates the offence does not give it any specific name, so much of the definition of the offence must be stated as to give the prisoner notice of the matter with which he is charged.

The Act and section or sections of the Act against which the offence is said to have been committed must be referred to in the charge.

What implied in charges.

The fact that the charge is made shall be equivalent to a statement that every legal condition, necessary by law to constitute the offence charged, was fulfilled in the particular case.

Language of charge.

The charge shall be written in English. If English is not understood by the prisoner, the charge must be read to him in a language which he understands.

Previous conviction to be set out in charge.

If the accused person has been previously convicted of any offence, and if it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded, the fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge. If it is omitted, it may be added at any time before sentence is passed, but not afterwards.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged with the murder of B.

This is equivalent to a statement that A's act fell within the definition of murder given in sections 299 and 300 of the Indian Penal Code; that it did not fall within any of the general exceptions of the Penal Code; and that it did not fall within any of the five exceptions to section 300, or that, if it did fall within exception I, one or other of the three provisos to that exception applied to it.

(b) A is charged, under section 326 of the Indian Penal Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, by means of an instrument for shooting: this is equivalent to a statement that the case was not provided for by section 335 of the Indian Penal Code, and that the general exceptions did not apply to it.

(c) A is accused of murder, cheating, theft, extortion, adultery or criminal intimidation, or using a false property-mark The charge may state that A committed murder, or cheating, or theft, or extortion, or adultery, or criminal intimidation, or that he used a false property-mark, without reference to the definitions of those crimes contained in the Indian Penal Code; but the sections under which the offence is punishable must, in each instance, be referred to in the charge.

(d.) A is charged, under section 184 of the Indian Penal Code, with intentionally obstructing a sale of property offered for sale by the lawful authority of a public servant. The charge should be in those words.

Particulars as to time, place and person.

181. The charge shall contain such particulars as to the time and place of the alleged offence and the person against whom it was committed, as are reasonably sufficient to give notice to the accused person of the matter with which he is charged.

When manner of committing offence must be stated.

182. When the nature of the case is such that the particulars mentioned in sections 180 and 181 do not give sufficient notice to the accused person of the matter with which he is charged, the charge shall also contain such particulars of the manner in which the alleged offence was committed as will be sufficient for that purpose.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of the theft of a certain article at a certain time and place. The charge need not set out the manner in which the theft was effected.

(b.) A is accused of cheating B at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A cheated B.

(c.) A is accused of giving false evidence at a given time and place. The charge must set out that portion of the evidence given by A which is alleged to be false.

(d.) A is accused of obstructing B, a public servant, in discharge of his public functions at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A obstructed B in the discharge of his functions.

(e.) A is accused of the murder of B at a given time and place The charge need not state the manner in which A murdered B.

(f.) A is accused of disobeying a direction of the law with intent to save B from punishment. The charge must set out the disobedience charged and the law infringed.

Forms in schedule.

183. The charge may be in the form given in the third schedule to this Act or to the like effect.

Effect of errors.

184. No error, either in the way in which the offence is stated, or in the particulars required to be stated in section 182, and no omission to state the offence, or to state those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the person accused was in fact misled by such error or omission.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit;" the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge. Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material.

(b.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses, and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.

(c.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence. The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in this case, a material error.

(d.) A is charged with the murder of Khodá Baksh on the 21st January In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh and the date of the murder was the 20th January. A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled, and that the error in the charge was immaterial.

(e) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January and Khodá Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January. When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khodá Baksh. The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh The Court may infer from this that A was misled, and that the error was material.

Prisoner may apply for amendment

185. Any accused person may apply to the Magistrate for an amendment of the charge made against him; and in considering whether any error in a charge did in fact mislead the accused person, the Court shall take into account the fact that he did or did not make such an application.

Court may amend a charge.

186. The Court may, upon the application of the accused person, or of the prosecutor, or upon its own motion, amend or alter any charge at any stage of the proceedings before judgment is pronounced. Such amendment shall be read and explained to the accused person.

When trial may proceed immediately after amendment

187. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, it shall be at the discretion of the Court, after making such amendment or alteration, to proceed with the trial as if the amended charge had been the original charge.

When new trial may be directed or trial suspended.

188. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, the Court may either direct a new trial, or suspend the trial for such period as may be necessary to enable the accused person to make his defence to the amended or altered charge; and, after hearing his defence, the Court may further adjourn the trial, to admit of the appearance of any witness whose evidence the Court may consider to be material to the case, or whom the accused person may wish to be summoned in his defence.

189. In all cases of amendment or alteration of a charge, the prosecutor and accused person shall be allowed to recall and examine with reference to such amendment or alteration any witness who may have been examined.

Prosecutor and accused person may recall witnesses.

190. If the offence stated in the new charge be one for which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained; unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the new charge was based.

Previous sanction to be obtained if offence in new charge require it.

Joinder of Charges.

191. There must be a separate charge for every distinct offence of which any person is accused, and every such charge must be tried separately, except in the cases hereinafter excepted.

Separate charges for distinct offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and the causing grievous hurt.

192. When a person is accused of more offences than one of the same kind, committed within one year of each other, he may be charged and tried at the same time for any number of them not exceeding three.

More offences than one of same kind may be charged within a year of each other.

EXPLANATION.—Offences are said to be of the same kind under this section if they fall within the provisions of section 194.

193. I.—If in one series of acts, so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with and tried for every such offence at the same time.

I.—Trial of more than one offence.

II.—If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being, by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with each of the offences so committed, but he must not receive a more severe punishment than could be awarded for any of such offences.

II.—One offence falling within two definitions.

III.—If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself constitute an offence, form, when combined, a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with every offence or any of the different offences, which he may have committed, but he must not receive for such offences, collectively, a punishment more severe than that which might have been awarded for any one of such offences.

III.—Acts severally constituting more than one offence, but collectively coming within one definition.

Illustrations.

To paragraph I.

(a.) A rescues B, a person in lawful custody, and in so doing causes grievous hurt to C, a constable in whose custody B was. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 225 and 333 of the Indian Penal Code.

(b.) A has in his possession several counterfeit seals with the intention of committing several forgeries. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, the possession of each seal for a distinct forgery under section 473 of the Indian Penal Code.

(c.) A, with intent to cause injury to B, institutes proceedings against him, knowing there is no just or lawful ground for such proceedings. A also falsely charges B with having committed an offence. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, two offences under section 211 of the Indian Penal Code.

(d.) A, with intent to injure B, brings a false charge against him of having committed an offence. On the trial, A gives false evidence against B. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 211 and 194 or 195 of the Indian Penal Code.

(e.) A, knowing that B, a female minor, has been kidnapped, wrongfully confines her and detains her as a slave. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 368 (read with 367) and 370 of the Indian Penal Code.

(f.) A, with six others, commits the offences of rioting, grievous hurt, and of assaulting a public servant engaged in suppressing the riot. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 147 and 325 and 152 of the Indian Penal Code.

(g) A criminally intimidates B, C and D at the same time. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, each of the three offences under section 506 of the Indian Penal Code.

(h.) A intentionally causes the death of three persons by upsetting a boat. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, three offences under section 302 of the Indian Penal Code.

To paragraph II.

(i.) A commits mischief by cutting down a tree in a Government forest. The tree overhangs the bank of a river and falls into the stream. A commits theft by having severed the tree and by floating it down the river to his village, where he sells it. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 426 and 379 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 379 only.

(j.) A wrongfully strikes B with a cane. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 352 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 323 only.

(k.) A wrongfully kills a buffalo worth sixty rupees belonging to B, and then takes away the carcase in a manner amounting to theft. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 429 and 379 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 429 only.

(l.) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property. A and B thereupon assist each other to conceal the sacks at the bottom of a grain-pit. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 411 and 414 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries them may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted them under one of those sections only.

(m.) A uses a forged document in evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under section 167. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 471 (read with 466) and 196 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under one of those sections only.

To paragraph III.

(n.) A commits house-breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 454 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

(o.) A robs B, and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 323, 392 and 394 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 392 or 394 only.

(p.) A entices B, the wife of C, away, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 498 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed.

194. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused person may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences; and any number of such charges may be tried at once, or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to either theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust, or cheating. He may be charged separately with theft, criminal breach of trust, and cheating, or he may be charged with having committed either theft, or criminal breach of trust, or cheating.

When a person is charged with one offence, he can be convicted of another.

195. If, in the case mentioned in the last preceding section, one charge only is brought against an accused person, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence, for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods, though he was not charged with it.

When offence proved included in offence charged.

196. When a person is charged with an offence, and part of the charge is not proved, but the part which is proved amounts to a different offence, he may be convicted of the offence which he is proved to have committed, though he was not charged with it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 407 of the Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under section 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under section 406.

(b.) A is charged with murder. He may be convicted of culpable homicide, or of causing death by negligence.

What persons may be charged jointly.

197. When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged and tried together, or separately, as the Court thinks proper, and the provisions hereinbefore contained shall apply to all such charges.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(b.) A and B are accused of a robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A alone with the murder.

(c.) A and B are both charged with a theft, and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with the two other thefts.

Withdrawal of remaining charges, on conviction on one of several charges.

198. When more charges than one are preferred against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the Government pleader or other officer conducting the prosecution may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw, or the Court of its own accord may suspend, the inquiry into the remaining charge or charges.

Previous Acquittals or Convictions.

Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

199. A person who has once been tried for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence, shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 194, or for which he might have been convicted under section 195.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 193, paragraph one.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence in respect of any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that for which he was acquitted or convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was acquitted or convicted.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence in respect of any facts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with and tried for any other offence which he may have committed in respect of the same facts, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards be charged, upon the same facts, either with theft as a servant, with theft simply, or with criminal breach of trust.

(b.) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, robbery.

(c.) A is tried for an assault and convicted. The person afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d.) A is tried under section 270 of the Indian Penal Code, for malignantly doing an act likely to spread the infection of a disease dangerous to life and is acquitted. The act so done afterwards causes a person permanently to lose his eyesight. A may be charged, under section 325 of the same Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to that person.

(e.) A is charged before the High Court and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried for the murder of B on the same facts.

(f.) A is charged by a Magistrate with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three of this section.

(g.) A is charged by a Magistrate with, and convicted by him of, theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(h.) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity, on the same facts.

CHAPTER XXI.

PROSECUTIONS IN CERTAIN CASES.

Prosecutions for offences against the State.

200. A complaint of an offence punishable under chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, or punishable under section 294 A of the same Code, shall not be entertained by any Magistrate, unless the prosecution be instituted by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General of India in Council or the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council to order or authorize such prosecution, or unless instituted by the Advocate General.

Prosecution of Judges and public servants.

201. A complaint of an offence committed of which any Judge or any public servant not removeable from his office without the sanction of the Government is accused as such Judge or public servant, shall not be entertained against him except with the sanction or under the direction of the Government, or of some officer empowered by the Government, or of some Court or other authority to which such Judge or public servant is subordinate, and whose power so to sanction or direct such prosecution the Government does not think fit to limit or reserve.

No such Judge or public servant shall be prosecuted for any act purporting to be done by him in the discharge of his duty, unless with the sanction of the Government.

Sanction when to be given.

The sanction must be given before the commencement of the proceedings.

Power of Local Government as to prosecution.

The Local Government may limit the person by whom, and the manner in which, the prosecution is to be conducted, and may specify the Court before which the trial is to be held.

In this section the expression "Government" means either the Local Government or the Govern-or General in Council and the expressions 'Judge' and 'public servant' have the meaning assigned to them respectively by the Indian Penal Code.

Prosecution for contempts of the lawful authority of public servants.

202. A complaint of any offence described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, not falling within section 175, 178, 179 or 180 of that Code, shall not be entertained by any Magistrate, except with the sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned, or of his official superior.

EXPLANATION.—In cases under this chapter, the report or application of the public servant shall be deemed sufficient complaint.

Sanction to prosecution for certain offences against public justice.

203. A complaint of an offence against public justice, described in section 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211 or 228 of the Indian Penal Code, when such offence is committed before or against a civil or criminal Court, shall not be entertained by any Magistrate, except with the sanction of the Court before or against which the offence was committed, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Sanction to prosecution for certain offences relating to documents given in evidence.

204. A complaint of an offence relating to documents, described in section 463, 471, 475 or 476 of the Indian Penal Code, when the document has been given in evidence in any proceedings in any civil or criminal Court, shall not be entertained against a party to such proceedings, except with the sanction of the Court in which the document was given in evidence, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Nature of sanction necessary.

205. The sanction referred to in sections 201, 202 and 203, may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person and may be given at any time.

Such sanction may be given at any time, and a sanction under any one of the three last preceding sections shall be deemed sufficient authority for the Magistrate to amend the charge (if any) to one of an offence coming within either of the two remaining sections, if the facts disclose such offence.

EXPLANATION.—In cases under this chapter, the report or application of the public servant or Court shall be deemed sufficient complaint.

Procedure in cases mentioned in sections 201, 202 and 203.

206. When any Court, civil or criminal, is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for inquiring into any complaint mentioned in sections 201, 202 and 203, such Court, after making such preliminary inquiry as may be necessary, may either commit the case itself, or may send the case for inquiry to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused person for the offence charged.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and the Court may send the accused person in custody, or take sufficient bail for his appearance, before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial or inquiry.

Prosecution for adultery.

207. A complaint of an offence under section 497 of the Indian Penal Code shall not be instituted, except by the husband of the woman, or by any person under whose care she was living at the time when the adultery was committed.

Prosecution for enticing away married woman.

208. A complaint of an offence under section 498 of the Indian Penal Code shall not be instituted, except by the husband of the woman, or by the person having care of such woman on behalf of her husband.

CHAPTER XXII.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE.

Personal recognizance to keep the peace in cases of conviction.

209. Whenever a person accused of rioting, assault, or other breach of the peace, or with abetting the same, or with assembling armed men or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, is convicted of such offence before a Magistrate, and the Magistrate by whom such person is convicted, or the Magistrate by whom the final sentence or order in the case is passed, is of opinion that it is just and necessary to require such person to give a personal recognizance for keeping the peace, such Magistrate may, in addition to any other order passed in the case, direct that the person so convicted be required to execute a formal engagement, in a sum proportionate to his condition in life and the circumstances of the case, for keeping the peace during such period as it may appear proper to fix in each instance, not exceeding one year, with a provision that, if the same be not given, the person required to enter into the engagement shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding one year, unless within such period such person execute such formal engagement as aforesaid.

If the accused person be sentenced to imprisonment, the period for which he may be required to execute a recognizance, and the imprisonment in default of executing such recognizance, shall commence when he is released on the expiration of his sentence.

In any case where the order is not made at the time of signing, or by the Magistrate who signs, the judgment, the convict must be produced before the Magistrate who adds the order to enter into a personal recognizance to the original sentence.

Security to keep the peace.

210. Whenever it appears necessary to require security for keeping the peace, in addition to the personal recognizance of the party so convicted, the Magistrate may require security in addition thereto, and may fix the amount of the security-bond to be executed by the surety or sureties; with a provision that, if the same be not given, the party required to find the security shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding one year.

Summons to person to show cause why he should not give bond to keep peace.

211. Whenever a Magistrate receives information that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace, or to do any act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace, he may summon such person to attend at a time and place mentioned in the summons, to show cause why he should not be required to enter into a bond to keep the peace, with or without sureties, as such Magistrate thinks fit.

EXPLANATION I.—A summons calling on a person to show cause why he should not be bound over to keep the peace, may be issued on any report or other information which appears credible and which the Magistrate believes; but the Magistrate cannot bind over a person until he has adjudicated on evidence before him.

EXPLANATION II.—A Magistrate may recall a summons issued under this section if he thinks proper.

Contents of summons.

212. Such summons shall set forth the substance of the report or information on which it is issued, the amount of the bond, and the term for which it is to be in force, and, if security is called for, the number of sureties required, and the amount in which they are to be bound respectively, and the time and place at which the person summoned is required to attend.

EXPLANATION.—When the parties are present in Court no summons is necessary, but the person to whom a summons would have been issued must have an opportunity to show cause why he should not be bound.

Form and penalty of bond.

213. The bond shall be in the form (E) given in the third schedule hereto annexed or to the like effect; and its penalty shall be fixed with a due regard to the circumstances of the case and the means of the party.

The amount in which the sureties shall be bound shall not exceed the penalty named in the bond.

When warrant of arrest may issue.

214. If the person summoned does not attend at the time and place named in the summons on the day appointed, such Magistrate, if satisfied that the summons has been duly served, may issue a warrant for his arrest:

Provided that, whenever it appears to such Magistrate, upon the report of a Police-officer or upon other credible information (the substance of which report or information shall be recorded), that there is just reason to fear the commission of a breach of the peace, which may probably be prevented by the immediate arrest of any person, the Magistrate may at any time issue a warrant for his arrest.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of person informed against.

215. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of the person informed against under section 211 and may permit him to appear and enter into the required security, or show cause against such requisition, by an agent duly authorized to act in his behalf.

Discharge of person informed against.

216. If on the appearance of such person informed against, or of his agent if he is permitted to appear by agent, the Magistrate is not satisfied that there is occasion to bind such person to keep the peace, the Magistrate shall direct his discharge.

Order to give bond and consequence of non-compliance.

217. If the Magistrate is satisfied that it is necessary for the preservation of the peace to take a bond from such person with or without security, he shall make an order accordingly; and if such person fails to comply with the order, the Magistrate may order him to be kept in simple imprisonment until he furnish the same.

Time for which person may be bound to keep peace.

218. The period for which the Magistrate may bind a person to keep the peace, with or without security, shall not exceed one year.

Limit of imprisonment under section 217.

When a person is imprisoned under section 217, he shall not be detained by authority of the Magistrate beyond the term of one year, and shall be released whenever, within that term, he complies with the order.

Extension of time for which person is bound.

219. Whenever it appears to a Magistrate that it is necessary for the preservation of the peace to bind a person beyond the term of one year, he may, before the expiration of the first year, record his opinion to that effect and the grounds thereof, and may refer the case for the orders of the High Court.

Such Court, after examining the proceedings of the Magistrate, and making such further inquiry as it thinks necessary, may, if it see cause, authorize him to extend the term for a further period not exceeding one year.

If such person fails to give a bond, with security if required, for his keeping the peace for such further period as the Magistrate under the orders of the High Court, directs, he may be kept in simple imprisonment for such further period, or until, within that period, he gives such bond.

EXPLANATION.—When the subject of dispute, or ground for apprehension, is the same as that on which the first order was passed, the Magistrate must proceed under this section if the first bond is still in force, and not under section 211.

Discharge of recognizances.

220. A Magistrate may, if he see sufficient cause, discharge any recognizance and surety for keeping the peace taken by him, or by his predecessor, under the preceding sections, and may order the release of the person confined for default in entering into such recognizance or giving such security.

Discharge of sureties.

221. A surety for the peaceable conduct of another person may at any time apply to a Magistrate to be relieved from his engagement as surety.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his summons or warrant in order that the person for whom such surety is bound may appear or be brought before him.

On the appearance of the person to such warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the engagement of the surety to be cancelled, and shall call upon such person to give fresh security, and, in default thereof, shall order him to be kept in simple imprisonment.

Recovery of penalty from principal.

222. Whenever it is proved before a Magistrate that any recognizance or other bond taken under this chapter has been forfeited, he shall record the grounds of such proof, and shall call upon the person bound by such recognizance or bond to pay the penalty thereof, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

If sufficient cause be not shown and the penalty be not paid, the Magistrate shall proceed to recover the same by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of any of the moveable property belonging to the person bound by such recognizance or bond.

Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate in which it is issued; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the person bound, without the jurisdiction of the said Magistrate, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, such person shall be liable to imprisonment by order of the Magistrate in the civil jail for a period not exceeding six months.

The penalty shall not be enforced until the person bound has had an opportunity of showing cause, and until the breach of the conditions has been proved.

The commission, or attempt to commit or abetment, of any offence whatever, and wherever it may be committed, is a breach of the bond.

Proceedings under this chapter may be taken, either in the district in which the breach of the peace is apprehended, or where an offence has been committed in breach of the bond, or in any district where the person it is desired to bind may be.

Recovery of penalty from surety.

223. Whenever it is proved before a Magistrate that any bond with a surety has been forfeited, the Magistrate may at his discretion give notice to the surety to pay the penalty to which he has thereby become liable, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

If no sufficient cause is shown, and such penalty is not paid, the Magistrate may proceed to recover payment of the penalty from such surety in the same manner as from the principal party.

And in case such penalty cannot be so recovered, the surety shall be liable, by order of such Magistrate, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a period not exceeding six months.

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF SECURITY FOR GOOD BEHAVIOUR.

When Magistrate may require security for good behaviour for six months.

224. Whenever it appears to a Magistrate that any person is lurking within his jurisdiction, or that there is within his jurisdiction a person who has no ostensible means of subsistence, or who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself, the Magistrate may require such security for such person's good behaviour for a period not exceeding six months as to him may appear good and sufficient.

Binding of sentenced person.

If in any case under this or the two following sections, the person to be bound is under sentence for an offence, he must be brought up on or after the expiration of his sentence for the purpose of being bound.

When Magistrate may require security for good behaviour for one year.

225. Whenever it appears to a Magistrate from the evidence as to general character adduced before him, that any person is by repute a robber, house-breaker or thief, or a receiver of stolen property, knowing the same to have been stolen, or of notoriously bad livelihood, or is a dangerous character, such Magistrate may require similar security for the good behaviour of such person for a period not exceeding one year.

Procedure where security required for more than one year.

226. Whenever it appears to a Magistrate, from the evidence as to general character adduced before him, that any person is by habit a robber, house-breaker or thief, or a receiver of stolen property, knowing the same to have been stolen, or of a character so desperate and dangerous as to render his release without security, at the expiration of the limited period of one year, hazardous to the community, he shall record his opinion to that effect, with an order specifying the amount of security which should, in his judgment, be required from such person, as well as the number, character and class of sureties, and the period, not exceeding three years, for which the sureties should be responsible for such person's good behaviour; and if such person does not comply with the order, the Magistrate shall issue a warrant directing his detention pending the orders of the High Court.

Proceedings to be laid before High Court.

227. If a person required to furnish security under the provisions of the last preceding section does not furnish the same, or offers sureties whom the Magistrate sees fit to reject, the proceedings shall be laid, as soon as conveniently may be, before the High Court.

Such Court, after examining such proceedings and requiring any further information or evidence which it thinks necessary, may pass orders on the case, either confirming, modifying or annulling the orders of such Magistrate, as it thinks proper.

High Court may require security for period not exceeding three years.

228. If the High Court does not think it safe to direct the immediate discharge of such person, it shall fix a period for his detention, not exceeding three years, in the event of his not giving the security required from him.

Contents of order for security.

229. Whenever security for good behaviour is required by the High Court or by a Magistrate the amount, the security, the number and description of sureties, and the period of time for which the sureties are to be responsible for the good conduct of the person required to furnish security, shall be stated in the order.

Form of bond.

The security-bond shall be in the form (G) given in the third schedule hereto annexed or to the like effect.

Imprisonment in default of security.

230. In the event of any person required to give security under the provisions of this Act failing to furnish the security so required, he shall be committed to prison until he furnish the same:

Term of imprisonment.

Provided that no such person shall be kept in prison for a longer period than that for which the security has been required from him.

Imprisonment under this section may be rigorous or simple, as the Court or Magistrate in each case directs.

Release of prisoners under requisition of security.

231. The Magistrate may at any time exercise his discretion in releasing, without reference to any other authority, any prisoner confined under requisition of security for good behaviour, whether by his own order, or that of his predecessor in office, provided he is of opinion that such person can be released without hazard to the community.

Report in case of prisoner under requisition of security by order of High Court.

232. Whenever a Magistrate is of opinion that any person confined under requisition of security for good behaviour, by order of the High Court, can be safely released without such security, such Magistrate shall make an immediate report of the case for the orders of the High Court.

Discharge of surety.

233. A surety for the good behaviour of a person may at any time apply to a Magistrate to be relieved from his engagement as such surety.

On such application being made, such Magistrate shall issue his summons or warrant in order that such person may appear or be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to such summons or warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, such Magistrate shall direct the engagement of the surety to be cancelled, and shall call upon the person so appearing or surrendering to give fresh security, and, in default thereof, shall commit him to custody.

Recovery of penalty from sureties.

234. Whenever a Magistrate is of opinion that, by reason of an offence proved to have been committed by a person for whose good behaviour security has been given, subsequent to his having given such security, proceedings should be had upon the bond executed by the surety, such Magistrate shall give notice to the surety to pay the penalty, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

If such penalty be not paid and no sufficient cause for non-payment be shown, the Magistrate shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him. Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it is issued; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to such surety, without the jurisdiction of the said Magistrate, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the surety shall be liable to imprisonment by order of a Magistrate of Police in the civil jail for a period not exceeding six months.

Issue of summons and warrant of arrest.

235. The provisions of sections 212 and 214, relating to the issue of summons and warrant of arrest for securing the personal attendance of the party informed against, when such party is not in custody, shall apply to proceedings taken under this chapter against persons required to give security for their good behaviour.

Place where proceedings may be held.

Proceedings may be taken under this chapter, against persons amenable to its provisions, in any district where they may be.

Previous convictions may be proved.

Any previous conviction against the person to be bound may be proved on proceedings held under this chapter.

Sureties may be rejected for unfitness.

236. A Magistrate may refuse to accept any surety offered under this chapter, on the ground that such surety is an unfit person.

Provisions of chapter not to apply to European British subjects.

237. The provisions of this chapter do not apply to European British subjects.

CHAPTER XXIV.

POSSESSION.

Power to restore possession of immoveable property.

238. Whenever any person is convicted by a Magistrate of an offence attended with criminal force, and it appears to such Magistrate that, by such criminal force, any person has been dispossessed of any immoveable property, the Magistrate may order such person to be restored to possession.

No such order shall prejudice any right over such immoveable property which any person may be able to show in a civil suit.

CHAPTER XXV.

OF THE MAINTENANCE OF WIVES AND FAMILIES.

Order for maintenance of wives and children.

239. If any person, having sufficient means, neglects or refuses to maintain his wife, or legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain himself, a Magistrate may, upon due proof thereof by evidence, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate, not exceeding fifty rupees in the whole, as to such Magistrate seems reasonable.

Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order.

Enforcement of order.

If such person wilfully neglects to comply with this order, such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, by warrant, direct the amount due to be levied in the manner provided for levying fines; and may order such person to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding one month, for each month's allowance remaining unpaid:

Proviso.

Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and his wife refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by such wife; and may make the order allowed by this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that such person is living in adultery, or that he has habitually treated his wife with cruelty.

No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section, if she is living in adultery, or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by consent.

Alteration in allowance.

240. On the application of any person receiving or ordered to pay a monthly allowance under the provisions of section 239, and on proof of a change in the circumstances of such person, his wife, or child, the Magistrate may make such alteration in the allowance ordered as he deems fit, provided the total sum of rupees fifty a month be not exceeded.

Enforcement of order.

241. A copy of the order of maintenance shall be given to the person for whose maintenance it is made, or to the guardian of such person, and shall be enforceable by any Magistrate in any place where the person to whom the order is addressed may be, on the Magistrate being satisfied as to the identity of the parties and the non-payment of the sum claimed.

247. When a question has been so referred, the High Court shall pass such order thereon as it thinks fit. A copy of the decision of the High Court, under the seal of the Court and the signature of the Registrar, shall be transmitted to the Magistrate by whom the reference was made, who shall proceed to dispose of the case conformably to the said decision, and shall also be empowered to direct by whom the costs of the reference shall be paid.

Power to order disposal of property connected with charge, in Police-custody.

250. If any property charged to be stolen or fraudulently obtained, is in the custody of any Police-officer by virtue of any warrant of a Magistrate, or in prosecution of any charge of an offence in regard to the obtaining thereof, and the person charged with such offence is not found, or has been summarily dealt with and discharged, or has been tried and acquitted, or if such person has been tried and found guilty, but the property so in custody has not been included in the charge upon which he has been found guilty, or if any property has been seized by a Police-officer under chapter XVI, it shall be lawful for any Magistrate to make an order for the delivery of such property to the party appearing to be the rightful owner thereof; or, in case the owner cannot be ascertained, then to make such order with respect to the property as the Magistrate thinks fit:

CALCUTTA MUNICIPALITY.

THE HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG moved that the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the municipal affairs of Calcutta be further considered, in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG moved that, in the last line of Section 8, the word "fifty" be substituted for "one hundred." The object of the amendment was to meet the views of a number of persons whose opinion was entitled to considerable weight, and who were of opinion that the qualification of having paid during the previous year Rs. 100 in rates and taxes, in order to entitle a person to be a Commissioner under the new Bill, was too high, and might debar many eligible candidates from coming forward. And, therefore, to meet the objection, it was proposed to reduce the property qualification from Rs. 100 to Rs. 50.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, as Section 12 was drafted, it seemed doubtful whether the power of the Government to make rules for the election of Municipal Commissioners was not too restricted. He therefore moved that the third clause of Section 12 be omitted, and the following substituted for it :—

"Votes at all elections shall be rendered by means of voting papers.

"The Local Government may from time to time make rules, not being inconsistent with this Act, for the purpose of regulating all matters connected with such elections, and the result of all elections shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette."

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, when the Bill was drafted, it was the intention that the Government should lay down rules on all matters in any way connected with the recording of votes and the qualification for voting, and to decide in which ward persons paying rates for property situated in different wards should vote. It was proposed to lay down by legislation that the Chairman of the Commissioners should in each case, at the time of registering the title to vote, decide in which ward a voter was entitled to vote, and that the Chairman should decide, as far as possible, according to the interest of the voter in the several wards. The Chairman, at the time of registering, should decide the point in communication with the voter, and the Chairman's decision should be based on consideration of the amount of interest which the voter had in each ward, so that the voter might be allowed to vote in that ward in which he was most interested as a rate-payer. SIR STUART HOGG therefore moved that the following be added to Section 13 :—

"And shall also decide in which of the wards described in the first schedule such applicant is entitled to vote.

"Such decision shall not be subject to appeal.

"No person, whose name is not entered in such list at the time of the election, shall be qualified to vote, or to be elected as a Commissioner; and no person shall be entitled to vote in any other ward than that which has been allotted to him by the decision of the Chairman as aforesaid.

"The Chairman shall decide the allotment of a particular ward to a voter as far as possible according to the interest which such voter may have in the ward."

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said, he objected to the amendment. It tended to exclude a person having an interest in property situated in more than one ward from voting in more than one of those wards. No one is better aware than the members of this Council that in England, where the privilege of electing members of Parliament and municipal institutions had been long recognized, a person who held property in more than one town had the right of voting for the election of the members of all the towns in which his property might lie. If, for instance, a person had property in London and Birmingham, he was entitled to vote for the election of members for both those places. In the same way, if a person in Calcutta had property in two or more wards, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not see why, if he satisfied the property qualification laid down in the Bill, he should be debarred from voting for the return of members for the different wards in which he might own property.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, he failed to see on what principle the hon'ble member proposed that if a rate-payer had property in every ward of the town, he should be allowed to vote in every ward. SIR STUART HOGG thought the hon'ble member misunderstood the object of the amendment. The effect of the amendment would be that, if a person held a much larger amount of property in Chowringhee than in the northern division of the town, his interest would be greater in Chowringhee than in the northern division, and he would therefore vote in the Chowringhee ward. It was not left entirely to the discretion of the Chairman, for the allotment was directed to be made "as far as possible according to the interest which the voter had in a ward."

The HON'BLE MR. BELL suggested that the voter should have the option of selecting the ward in which he desired to vote; he thought a person holding property in different wards should have the right to select the ward in which he would vote.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL considered the suggestion of the hon'ble member better than the proposition in the amendment; he thought, however, that a person holding property in different wards ought to have a vote in each of such wards.

The consideration of the amendment was then postponed, and the Secretary was instructed to draft a clause, in consultation with the hon'ble mover of the Bill, on the principle above suggested.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said that Section 18 referred to the disqualification of members.

It provided that no person should be qualified to be, or to continue to be, a member of the Committee who was, or became at the time, or during the term of his appointment or election, a bankrupt or insolvent, or who was interested (otherwise than as a shareholder in a joint-stock company) in any contract with the Corporation; and no person who was absent from Calcutta six months consecutively, or who should be sentenced to imprisonment, should be qualified to continue to be such member. The Bill laid down the number of Commissioners to be seventy-two. It had been suggested that in the event of any member of the Corporation becoming disqualified under Section 18 during that time, any act done by the Corporation would be illegal, seeing that the number would be less than 72. To provide against that technical objection, he would move to add the following proviso to this section:—

"Provided that no act of the Commissioners or their officers, or of the Commissioners in meeting, shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only that the number of the Commissioners did not amount to seventy-two at the date of the performance of such act."

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, the various purposes for which the municipal taxes and rates might be expended by the Corporation under this Bill were specified in Section 18: they were nearly all the same as under the existing Act. But they had been extended by the third clause, which enabled the Corporation to defray "the cost of the construction and maintenance of hospitals and dispensaries." The wording of that clause had given rise to a good deal of hostile criticism, and there appeared to be an alarm lest it should be the intention of the Government to force on the Municipality considerable expenditure on account of hospitals and dispensaries now maintained by the State. As there was no intention on the part of the Government to call upon the Corporation to bear any expenditure now borne by the State—but the words were introduced to enable the Corporation to meet any extraordinary cases that might arise—he would move that the words objected to be omitted.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, the amendment he had to move in Section 23 was merely verbal. The section laid down that the local Government should, from time to time, appoint a proper person to be Chairman of the Commissioners, and that such Chairman should be "removeable" from office by the local Government, on the recommendation of the Commissioners present at a special general meeting; that was to say, it should be within the power of the local Government to remove the Chairman on the requisition of two-thirds of the Commissioners present at a general meeting. As the words "shall be removeable" were ambiguous, and might give rise to the supposition that it would be imperative on the Government to remove the Chairman on the requisition of two-thirds of the Commissioners present at a special general meeting, he proposed to remove all ambiguity by omitting the words "shall be removeable," and substituting for them the words "may be removed."

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, that by Section 25 the appointment of certain officers should be subject to the approval of the local Government. He proposed to add to the word "appointment" the words "and resolutions," and then all orders passed by the Commissioners under Section 25 would be subject to the sanction and approval of the local Government.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said, he gladly supported this amendment. Although he was on principle opposed to the extension of the powers of the Government, which would interfere with the legitimate exercise of the authority of the Commissioners, still in a matter of that kind he thought the Government ought to have a power of control. From his experience of the last twelve years he was constrained to say that the appointments in the Municipality were too frequently jobbed away by the Justices. He hoped that this power would be rightly exercised by Government so as to prevent a recurrence of the scandals of the past.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG moved that the words "shall reside within the town and" be inserted after the word "Vice-Chairman" in line 1, clause 2 of Section 25. All the chief officers of the Municipality should, he thought, by law be compelled to reside within the Mahratta Ditch, and not be permitted to reside in the Suburbs. Great inconvenience would be felt if the senior officers resided at a distance, and therefore, he thought, it should be laid down distinctly that all these officers should reside in Calcutta.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, the appointment of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman was made with the approval of the Government. In the case of the Chairman, the appointment rested with the Government, and in the case of the Vice-Chairman, the nomination rested with the Commissioners, subject to the approval of the Government. By Section 27, the Municipality had the power from time to time to fix the allowance to be made to the Chairman and Vice-Chairman. Consequently, if the Corporation and the Government were not in accord as regards the appointment, it would be in the power of the Corporation to nullify the appointment made by Government by fixing a mere nominal salary In order to guard against this very unlikely, but still possible, contingency, it was proposed that all the resolutions passed by the Commissioners under this section should be subject to the approval of the local Government, and he would therefore move that the following words be added to Section 27 :—

"All resolutions passed by the Commissioners under this section shall be subject to the approval of the local Government"

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said that the nomination to the appointment of all the officers mentioned in Section 28 rested with the Corporation, subject to the approval of the local Government; but the allowances made to these officers lay under this section exclusively in the power of the Corporation. It was proposed to make the allowances to be drawn by these officers subject to the sanction of the Government. In order to secure that object, he proposed at the end of the section to add the words:—

"All resolutions passed by the Commissioners under this section shall be subject to the approval of the local Government"

The motion was agreed to.

The Bill as settled by the Council was then ordered to be published in the Gazette.

AID BY GOVERNMENT TO THE NATIVE ASSOCIATION FOR THE CULTIVATION OF SCIENCE.

Minute by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, dated 21*st January* 1876.

For some time past an Association for the cultivation of Science has been organized by a body of native gentlemen at the instance of Dr. Mohendro Lal Sircar, a medical practitioner of considerable repute in Calcutta, and himself an example of the elevating effect of scientific culture. The Association consists of many members, and donations to a considerable amount, over Rs. 80,000, have been promised. There is an expectation that current subscriptions for the month, or for the year, will be received. The objects of the Association are to provide lectures of a very superior kind in the various branches of the physical sciences, especially general physics, chemistry, and geology, mainly for students who have already passed through school or college, or have otherwise attained some degree of proficiency in these respects. There would also be lectures for youths and students possessing a lesser degree of proficiency. One special object of the Institution is to encourage native young men of talent and education to prosecute systematically scientific studies after leaving college, so as to advance to a high stage of knowledge. The several sciences would be taught with a view to their application to practical arts and uses. Expense would have to be incurred in remunerating the lecturers; in obtaining apparatus, instruments, and books; in allowing scholarships to specially selected students; and in providing house accommodation.

2. The Association held a meeting on the 15th January last, consisting of native gentlemen of wealth, learning, and position, which meeting I myself attended, and a committee of management was formed. At that meeting it was resolved that the opening of the Institution should be considered as a memorial of the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

3. The management of the Institution would be determined by the members of the Association, under such conditions as they might settle among themselves. It is important that the members should depend on their own independent exertions for the attainment of success; they would raise and judiciously invest their funds, and would collect current subscriptions; they would determine the subjects of the lectures, and appoint the lecturers; they would allot scholarships so far as their funds might permit.

4. The Association are, I understand, desirous of knowing what assistance the Government could or would render.

Considering that the formation of this Association constitutes an important effort by the natives themselves to promote the cultivation of science; that the realization of so large an amount of donations as that promised would indicate munificence on the part of many native gentlemen for the good of their countrymen; that the Institution, if successful, would serve a considerable educational purpose, and among other things would probably supply teachers for technical schools or other scientific institutions which the Government might set up in Bengal, I think that the project merits some co-operation from the Government in token of its sympathy with the good cause which the Association has at heart.

5. I propose, therefore, to take up an eligible building, with its premises, situated at the junction of College Street and Bow Bazaar, and to make it over unfinished to the Association for occupation free of all charge for a term of years, which would be settled separately in consultation with the Committee, for the purposes as above set forth, on condition that at least Rs. 70,000 be actually obtained by donations, of which at least Rs. 50,000 must be invested by the Committee in Government securities, and that a monthly subscription of at least Rs. 100 per mensem be promised for two years. This proposal is made provisionally and conditionally upon Government being able to obtain possession of the said house and premises. In this way the Association would be spared the cost of obtaining suitable accommodation in the city of Calcutta, which is always a matter of difficulty, and would be able to devote its private resources to developing systematic instruction.

RICHARD TEMPLE.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE COOCH BEHAR STATE FOR THE YEAR 1874-75.

POLITICAL.

Calcutta, the 21st February 1876.

READ—

The Annual Administration Report of the Cooch Behar State for the year 1874-75.

Read again—

The Report of the year 1873-74, with the orders of Government passed thereon.

ON his late visit to Cooch Behar, the Lieutenant-Governor passed orders regarding those matters in the administration of the State which appeared to him to require attention, and therefore, as regards most points in the present report, it is not necessary for him to do more than to refer the Commissioner to the minute dated 6th July last, which was forwarded to him with endorsement No. 1775, dated 16th idem, by the Revenue Department of this office.

2. In this minute it was stated by the Lieutenant-Governor that the only particular defect which came to his notice was the large amount of uncollected balances of land revenue, and the necessity of prompt action being taken for the reduction of these balances, which have been for some years accumulating, was specially insisted upon. With a view to ascertaining whether proper steps have been taken to carry out these directions, the Lieutenant-Governor now requests that more detailed information may be given in future reports, than that contained in the present one, regarding the nature of these balances, the number of years for which they severally have been outstanding, the amount collected during the year, the amount which has been remitted, the amount which is expected to be irrecoverable, and so forth. Without explanations, the table given in paragraph 2 of the report is hardly intelligible. The amount of revenue paid before it became due is not stated. This might affect the figures for a single year, but it would not do so appreciably when the results of a series of years are taken together. For the six years 1869-75, the figures stand thus:—

	Rs.	Rs.
Arrear at the beginning of 1869-70... ...	3,31,943
Current demand for six years	27,14,505
		30,46,448
Collections for six years	27,54,014
Remissions for six years	2,51,099
		30,05,113
Balance ...		41,335

But the true balance is stated to be no less than Rs. 2,07,579. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that as regards no year does the balance stated to be in arrear at its close correspond with that brought forward at the commencement of the next year. This may be due to the fact, which has been more than once brought to notice, that settlements have been made with retrospective effect. Still the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to have the matter made clear. What appears to be a clerical error as regards the "arrear demand" for 1873-74 (making a discrepancy of Rs. 10,000 in the amount) should also be rectified.

3. In the report for 1873-74, it was stated that Mr. Beckett had his final report on the settlement operations in hand. From the present report it appears that these operations had not been brought to a termination in the year under report, but that it was expected that proceedings would be closed during the current year. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that this expectation will be fulfilled, and that the work of the settlement officers will be speedily put to a practical test by the realization of the rents assessed. The next report should deal with this question, and should show precisely what work, if any, remains to be done.

4. The returns of rent suits and miscellaneous cases disposed of call for no remarks. The reduction in the files of pending cases is creditable to the officers concerned, as well as the favourable result of the appeals preferred against their decisions. The large number of civil suits in which the State appears to have been involved would seem, however, to require the attention of the Commissioner, and more especially looking to the large proportion of such cases which were decided against the State.

5. Orders will be separately passed in the Revenue Department of this office on the management of the zemindarees belonging to the Raja in British territory, and no remarks on this subject are now called for.

6. The exactness with which the demands of the State have been realised in the excise department is creditable to the abkaree superintendent. The total excise revenue amounted to Rs. 40,092, or Rs. 3,395 in excess of the revenue of the previous year. This has been chiefly owing to the increased consumption of country spirits, but it has been explained that this is due to the influx of about 4,000 coolies from other parts, who were employed in the State during the year by the Public Works Department.

7. The stamp revenue is stated to have amounted to Rs. 1,04,684, giving an increase of Rs. 13,615 over the receipts of the previous year. In future reports the receipts from general and court-fee stamps should be separately shown. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with the opinion expressed by the Commissioner that, looking to the erroneous practice which appears to have been followed of requiring stamp fees on applications and petitions filed before the revenue officers in connection with the settlement operations, the financial results under the head of stamp revenue are not altogether satisfactory.

8. Notwithstanding the extraordinary expenditure which was necessary on account of the famine relief operations, the financial results of the year show an actual deficit of Rs. 89,183 only, against a deficit of Rs. 1,24,827 as estimated for; but this result, it is to be observed, was owing to the receipts having exceeded the budget estimate by Rs. 60,830, as the estimated expenditure was exceeded by Rs. 25,186. Full explanations in regard to all such differences between the estimates and the actuals in the budget should be submitted with future reports. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that Mr. Cockerell has by this time been able to satisfy himself of the regularity of the accounts of miscellaneous receipts and expenditure—a subject to which the attention of the late Commissioner was prominently drawn, but which would appear to have not as yet been sufficiently investigated. The matter should be specially noticed in next year's report.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with the Commissioner in thinking that the results of the administration of civil justice have been satisfactory. Although there was a large increase in the number of suits instituted during the year, the pending file was smaller than at the close of the previous year, and fewer decisions were appealed against. The increase in crime, however, is an unsatisfactory feature in the report, and has been attributed by the Commissioner to a great extent to a decrease in the efficiency of the police. The Lieutenant-Governor has already pointed out that this matter requires attention, and more especially with a view to the repression of the crime of dacoity. He trusts that the Commissioner has by this time taken the steps necessary to increase the police force which, it is reported, was numerically insufficient to discharge the duties thrown upon it. The general percentage of convictions to acquittals, both in cognizable and non-cognizable offences, has been good, viz. 67 and 66 per cent. respectively; but it is to be observed that in a very large proportion of the more heinous crimes the offenders were either undetected or acquitted on trial.

10. The increase in the operations of the vaccine department is satisfactory, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that operations are now being systematically carried out. In addition to the hospital for the treatment of the sick from the military and police forces, four dispensaries are maintained at the sole cost of the State, two of which were opened out during the year under report. The question of increasing the number of these useful institutions on the principle followed in British territory should engage the attention of the local officers.

11. The total expenditure on public works during the year was Rs. 1,44,589, against Rs. 70,746 in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor has already acknowledged the great improvements which have been made in the main lines of road in the State, and has suggested that cross-roads should now be taken in hand.

12. The favourable testimony again borne to the manner in which Mr. Smith, the late Deputy Commissioner, managed the affairs of the State reflects much credit on that officer. The enlightened progress thus secured is being well maintained by the present incumbent, Major Lewin, with the assistance of the able Dewan, Baboo Kaleka Dass Dutt. The Lieutenant-Governor has already, in his minute, recognised the services of subordinate officers, and in conclusion, he would now thank Mr. Cockerell for the report submitted.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. L. MANGLES,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT AND REMEMBRANCER OF LEGAL AFFAIRS FOR 1875.

JUDICIAL.

Calcutta, the 21st February 1876.

READ—

Letter No. 628A, dated the 6th November 1875, from the Board of Revenue, submitting the report of the Officiating Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the result of the civil litigation in which Government was engaged during the year 1874-75.

THE report by the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the administration of his department during the past year has, the Lieutenant-Governor observes, been very fully dealt with by the Board of Revenue. The remarks recorded on it by the Hon'ble Member have Sir Richard Temple's concurrence. As regards the further points on which information has been called for by the Board, the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad to receive a copy of the Legal Remembrancer's reply to the communication* which has been addressed to him on the subject.

* Board's letter No. 117A, dated 6th November 1875.

2. At the same time, with reference to the remarks and orders passed in paragraph 5 of the Resolution† dated 1st April 1875, the Lieutenant-Governor regrets to have again to notice the large number of instances in all parts of the province, and more especially in the Tipperah district, in which Managers of Court of Wards' Estates, Collectors, and Government Pleaders have instituted original suits and appeals without reference to, or under the advice and sanction of, the Legal Remembrancer. From paragraph 13 of the Board's letter to the Legal Remembrancer, it is observed that the Board have already instituted detailed inquiries as regards these cases. When these are completed, the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad to be furnished with a special report upon the subject, showing the action which may have been taken by the Board on the explanations submitted.

† Government order No. 1345, dated 1st April 1875.

3. The information‡ given as to the outstanding balances of unrealised decrees in favor of Wards' Estates is insufficient, and generally, it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor, that local officers seem to be under insufficient control as to business appertaining to Wards' Estates. The Lieutenant-Governor is aware that, under existing arrangements, the Legal Remembrancer cannot devote so much of his time to this branch of his business as is necessary for its proper disposal. His Honor trusts, however, that with the assistance of the Deputy Legal Remembrancer, whose appointment has now been sanctioned, the Legal Remembrancer will be able to exercise an efficient supervision over the proceedings of the local officers.

‡ Board's letter to Legal Remembrancer, paragraph 15.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor has observed with pleasure the favorable mention made of the officers mentioned in paragraphs 120§ and 121‖ of the report, and His Honor requests that his acknowledgments may be conveyed to Mr. O'Kinealy for the ability with which he has conducted the duties of his office during the time he was in charge of the office of Legal Remembrancer.

Statement showing Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops in the different Districts of Bengal, as reported to Government during the week ending the 19th February 1876.

	No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BENGAL.
		Western Districts.
BURDWAN DIVN.	1	Burdwan, Feb. 21,* '76	Nil.	Rain is much wanted. A good crop of potatoes in Culna. Cases of small-pox near Ajudhya.
	2	Bankoora, " 19, "	Nil.	Weather is somewhat warmer than last week. No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last report. Health of the district is good.
	3	Beerbhoom, " 19, "	Nil.	Weather is seasonable. Rain wanted for the winter and spring crops, and for the standing crops of indigo.
	4	Midnapore, " 19, "	Nil.	Weather is getting very hot. Rain would be beneficial, but without it the rubbee crops are fair average crops.
	5	Hooghly, " 19, "	Slight drizzling.	Weather is getting warmer. Sky overcast on the night of the 18th and morning of the 19th, with slight drizzling on the former date. Sowings of sugarcane, onions, and jali dhan, are going on. Want of rain retards indigo and sessamum sowings. Transplantation of boro dhan is going on. Pattal, cucumbers, and water-melons, are doing well still, but stand in immediate need of rain to ensure a full harvest. Ploughings of rice lands obstructed for want of rain. Very late amun on swampy lands is still being gathered. The rubbee harvest is over in some places; in others some of the crops, wheat and barley, have not ripened as yet. A 12 anna crop is expected. Pressing of sugarcane is going on still. Potatoes being dug. Other vegetables falling off. Tanks are very low. Water much in demand both for irrigation and drinking purposes.
		Howrah, " 19, "	1·27	Weather—A fall of rain occurred on Friday afternoon and the following night. The rain has done good to such crops as are on the ground.
		Central Districts.
PRESIDENCY DIVN.	6	24-Pergunnahs, Feb. 21,† '76	2·70	Weather—Colder than last week since the 19th. Harvesting of amun is over, and the cutting of winter crops continues. Health of the district is generally good.
	7	Nuddea, " 19, "	0·01	Weather—A few drops of rain fell on the night of the 18th, and the weather, which had become very warm, is rather cooler. Indigo is doing pretty well. The harvest is going on, the crops are generally poor, but as there has been no loss from insects or blight, the result will not be greatly below average. General health of the district is good.
	8	Jessore, " 19, "	Nil.	Weather—Bright and clear. There was a slight shower on the morning of the 19th instant. Peas and mustard continue to be gathered. Spring rice seedlings promise well. Rain is generally much wanted.
	9	Moorshedabad " 19, "	Nil.	Weather is getting warmer. Crops are fair. Rubbee being reaped. Indigo and mulberry plants thriving. Sugarcane is being pressed. Mustard and linseed are being harvested. Public health is good. Two cases of cholera reported from thana Bhurutpore.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	10	Dinagepore, " 18, "	Nil.	Weather is generally fine and getting very warm. High winds are frequent. It drizzled a little on the morning of the 18th instant, but the rain drops were scarcely perceptible on the ground. The prospects of the winter crops are on the whole fair. Mustard is being reaped in places, and the outturn will be about 8 annas. Ground is being prepared for the bhadoi rice, but it will suffer a good deal if rain does not fall in time.
	11	Maldah, " 19, "	Nil.	Weather—High winds have been prevailing during the last few days. The transplanting of boro dhan is still being carried on. The dry weather has caused a decrease of 3 annas in the outturn expected from the rubbee in thana Sahibgunge. Indigo is doing favorably. If no rain falls, the heat, which is now daily increasing, will cause damage to the rubbee crops, which are now beginning to ripen in some parts of the district. One death from cholera is reported to have occurred during the week.
	12	Rajshahye, " 19, "	Nil.	Weather—No rain since last report, and at present no appearance of it. The cold weather crops have suffered considerably from the drought—mustard and mushooree dal perhaps more than others. Boro dhan is still doing pretty well. There is no sickness reported beyond a very few cases of small-pox about Manda.

† Report of the 21st February, received on the same day, shows rainfall during the seven days immediately preceding.

RAJSHAHYE DIVN.—(Contd.)	13	Rungpore, Feb. 18, '76	Nil.	Weather—Warmer. Rain is much wanted for the wheat crop. At the time of writing there appears a probability of a fall shortly. The other crops are doing fairly well.
	14	Bogra, „ 19, „	Nil.	Weather—Fast becoming hot. Very cloudy, and rain threatening. There are very small crops on the ground. Sugarcane and the late rubbee crops seem healthy.
	15	Pubna, „ 19, „	Nil.	Weather—Foggy mornings, but the days are warm. No rain. The millet seedlings are above the ground, but rain is much wanted. The choitalli crops are nearly ripe. Two fresh cases of cholera reported; otherwise the general health of the district is good.
COOCH BEHAR DIVN.	16	Darjeeling, „ 19, „	Nil.	Weather is growing warmer. Sunshine during the week, with high wind. Scarcely any crops of importance on the ground now. What there are, are doing well. Land is being prepared for sowing.
	17	Julpigoree, „ 19, „	Nil.	During the early part of the week there were strong westerly winds, which were unusually hot for the time of the year. On Thursday a drop or two of rain (not enough to measure) fell. After this it became much colder, and continues so. Rain is greatly needed. The tea gardens in the Dooars are suffering much from the long drought. Young plants are dying off. Tobacco crop will be very far under mark this year owing to want of rain.
		Cooch Behar, „ 17, „	Nil.	Weather has become somewhat hotter. Wind is rising, but no signs of rain as yet. The prospects of the crop continue to be unfavorable from want of rain. General health is good.
		Eastern Districts.

	21	Mymensingh, „ 18, „	Nil.	Weather has become very much warmer. Some days the sky was much over-clouded, but the desired rain has not fallen. The boro rice crop will be a small one, owing to the great want of rain. The mustard crop is also deficient for the same reason.
	22	Tipperah, „ 18, „	Nil.	Weather—Moist and warm, with southerly wind, cloudy sky. Rain is much wanted for the spring rice. The cold weather crops are in fair condition.

	28	Shahabad, „ 19, „	Nil.	Weather—Hot in the first part of the week. It is now cold, with high west wind. Rubbee harvest is in progress. Prospects of the crops remain unchanged. A fair crop is expected, especially where the Soane irrigation was extended.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 17. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table, "Prof. papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahr. for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Serenity.—This column gives the average proportion of unclouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 10, and one completely overcast by 0.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which shall show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain-gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

From—The Secretary of State for India,
To—The Government of India.

H. J. REYNOLDS,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

[First Publication.]

The 29th February 1876.—The Lieutenant-Governor has been pleased to approve of the following rules and instructions, prepared by the Board of Revenue, for the appointment and guidance of Patwarees in Orissa:—

IN future settlements one or more putwaree shall be appointed, under the provisions of Regulation XII of 1817, in all estates or groups of contiguous estates the Government revenue of which exceeds Rs. 300, or in which it shall seem fit to the Board of Revenue to appoint them.

2. The putwaree shall, at the time of the settlement, be appointed by the Collector on the nomination of the zemindar or other person with whom the direct engagement for payment of revenue to Government rests.

3. If the zemindar or other such person fail to nominate a putwaree in such estate or village in which it is provided that one should be maintained, the Collector may of his own accord select and appoint a putwaree.

4. When a vacancy in the office of putwaree is to be filled up, the preference should in general be given to the members of the late putwaree's family, but only on condition that any of them be found duly qualified to fill the office.

5. Whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of putwaree, owing to the failure of competent heirs to succeed the late putwaree or otherwise, the persons engaging for the settlement shall be held responsible for the nomination of a person to fill the vacancy; and if the Collector approve of the nomination, he shall confer the appointment; if he consider the person nominated not qualified, he shall pass such orders as may appear to him just and necessary.

6. A putwaree may be removed from his office by the Collector, on sufficient cause shewn therefor to the satisfaction of the Collector, by the persons engaging for the settlement of the estate, or by the ryots, or under-tenants thereof.

7. A register of putwarees shall be kept in the Collector's office, in which the names of all persons appointed as putwarees, as well as all punishments inflicted on such putwarees, shall be entered. One of the ministerial officers, and in Orissa the sudder canoongo, shall have charge of the register, and shall be held responsible for its being correctly kept.

8. Persons engaging for the settlement, who may fail to nominate a putwaree on a vacancy occurring, or may remove a putwaree from office without the authority of the Collector, shall be liable to the penalties respectively prescribed in sections 11 and 13 of Regulation XII of 1817.

9. The duties of a putwaree are detailed in section 16 of the above Regulation. In accordance with that section, the Board of Revenue now declares that the papers of the villages in his circle to be required from a putwaree are the following:—

1st. The current account of collections of rent in each village.
2nd. The annual balance-sheet of ditto.
3rd. Register shewing the details of thanee ryots—first part.
4th. The same of chandna-holders—second part.
5th. The same of pahee ryots—third part.
6th. Register of lakhirajdars—first part.
7th. The same of jagirdars—second part.

The above papers shall be prepared in the forms herewith annexed.

10. These papers are to be drawn out by the putwaree and submitted to the district or sub-divisional collectorate office, as may be ordered, on the 1st of Cheyt each year, or on such dates as the Collector may consider most convenient with reference to the revenue arrangements, crops, &c., of the district.

11. Whenever summoned by the Collector or other authorized officer on any matter connected with the duties of his office, the putwaree shall attend at the time and place appointed, and shall produce all accounts relating to the lands, produce, rents, collections, and charges of the village which he may be called upon to produce.

12. Every attempt should be made to secure the consent of the ryots and the person to whom their rent is paid to an arrangement whereby the putwaree may be present at the annual or biennial auditing of the accounts, or at least to the attestation by him of receipts given on payment of rent; and it shall be the duty of the putwaree, before attesting any receipt, to see that it is full, clear, and correct, and to note the amount of the payment in his accounts.

13. It shall be the duty of the putwaree to carry out any orders issued to him by the Collector or other authorized officer with reference to the collection of statistical information in the village or villages to which he is appointed, or to the survey and measurement of lands by order of a competent court or officer, or to other duties connected with his office.

14. Failure on the part of a putwaree to obey any order issued to him in writing by an authorized officer of Government, which does not in the opinion of the Collector necessitate his immediate removal from office, or which requires severer punishment than mere removal, may be dealt with as laid down in the 23rd to 27th sections of Regulation XII of 1817, or under the Penal Code.

15. At the time of settlement provision should be made for the remuneration of the necessary number of putwarees to be maintained in the estate. The scale of remuneration should be as follows:—

For estates of which the Government revenue has been—

From Rs.	300 to	600	Rs.	2-8.
" "	600 to	1,000	"	3.

If the remuneration be made in the shape of grants of rent-free lands, the quantity and quality of the lands granted should be such as to yield to him equivalents to the sums above stated. An engagement shall be taken from the zemindar of every estate in which a putwaree has been appointed to deposit the putwaree's salary in the collectorate along with the Government revenue, so that the putwaree shall receive his salary from the Collector or the Sub-Divisional Officer, as the case may be.

16. In the settlement of all estates for which it may seem inexpedient to arrange for the appointment and maintenance of a putwaree, an engagement shall be taken from the zemindar or other person entering into direct engagement with the Government to submit to the Collector or Sub-Divisional Officer the several registers and papers mentioned in paragraph 9 of these rules, and such other accounts or statements as the Collector may direct, and such zemindar or other person shall be subject to the various rules framed for putwarees under Regulation XII of 1817, in accordance with the provisions of section 33 of that Regulation.

17. All orders passed by the Collector shall be appealable to the Commissioner, and the orders of the Commissioner shall be subject to the revision of the Board.

Instructions subsidiary to the foregoing rules issued by the Commissioner with the approval of the Board of Revenue.

1. In all estates where putwarees exist they will be called on to conform strictly to the rules.

2. Where estates in which a putwaree was originally provided for at the settlement have been divided into two or more separate estates, the putwaree will perform his duty separately for all the shares into which the estate may have been divided.

3. Where no putwarees exist, all zemindars paying revenue to Government are liable to perform the putwarees' duties as defined in these rules and to keep and submit the necessary registers.

4. The register prescribed by rule 7 should be at once prepared, if not already existing. This register will contain the names of all putwarees duly appointed.

5. Where duly appointed putwarees are remunerated in land, Collector will register the amount of their land as extracted from the settlement papers, and Collector will ascertain that they are in full possession and enjoyment of their lands.

6. Where duly appointed putwarees are, under the settlement, paid in cash directly by the zemindar, who has received a set off for such payments, Collector will require the zemindar by formal notice to pay the putwaree's allowance into his office with his revenue kist, and Collector will see that the putwaree is duly and periodically paid.

7. Where no putwaree has been appointed, Collector will require the zemindar of the estate either to give in a formal agreement to undertake the duties prescribed by Regulation XII of 1817 himself, or, if he prefer it, to nominate a putwaree, paying his salary on the scale laid down in rule 15, together with the Government revenue, into Collector's office. Every new putwaree so appointed will be registered under rule 7. If a zemindar paying revenue of less than Rs. 300 per year desires to appoint a putwaree in lieu of doing the work himself, he will pay at the lowest scale laid down in rule 15.

8. Every zemindar of every estate paying revenue to Government in which a putwaree is not specially appointed will be required to submit the papers required by rule 9.

9. Surburakars of Khoordha, in Pooree, and Noanund, in Balasore, will be required to keep the necessary accounts and to file them, and to perform the duties of putwaree.

10. Similarly in peshkush, or permanently-settled estates, where no putwarees exist, or in which no provision was made at the settlement for putwarees, the zemindars must be required to execute the necessary agreement to perform putwarees' duties, or to nominate and pay a putwaree as directed in paragraph 7. If the estates are large and the zemindars undertake to perform the putwarees' duties themselves, they may be allowed to make their own arrangements therefor; but if they agree to nominate putwarees for the work, they must name as many as the Collector may deem necessary for each estate.

11. In the case of wards' estates provision should be made for putwarees. The putwarees' work should not be done through the wards' establishment, as it is an object to keep the collecting agency separate from the putwaree.

12. The rules and instructions apply to all estates paying revenue to Government; but will not apply to lakirajdars and proprietors of estates not paying Government revenue, who are exempt from the operation of the rules. Subordinate tenure-holders paying their revenue through their superior zemindars cannot be brought under the rules. In such cases Government look to the zemindar, who is amenable to the rules.

13. Revised forms of putwarees' registers, as per Board's latest instructions, are herewith forwarded. The revised rules, forms of account and instructions, will be published in the local gazette, and spare copies forwarded for issue to zemindars and putwarees.

14. Collectors should now proceed to complete their register of putwarees, and to see that the registers are properly kept and submitted both by zemindars and putwarees, and that the rules and instructions are strictly acted up to.

MOFUSSIL MUNICIPALITIES.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER moved that the Bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to Municipalities be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of its clauses.

The motion was agreed to.

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General said it would be fair that he should point out at the outset his principal objection to the Bill. He agreed in the main provisions of the Bill, but his principal objection related to the definition of the word "holding," and the use of that word in the Bill. He thought it expedient that all the rate-payers should know clearly and distinctly on what principle they were to be taxed; and it was also necessary that the officers of Governnent, who had to impose the tax, should have their duties clearly defined; so that no irritation, annoyance, or hardship should arise, and no injury result to the rate-payers. He therefore objected to the definition of the term "holding" as given in the Bill; and if that definition were maintained in its present shape, his objection would apply to several sections of the Bill. The assessment in Calcutta was made on houses, lands, buildings, premises, &c., on the annual value of which a tax was imposed. The assessments in the Mofussil, under the Acts proposed to be abolished, were made in a somewhat arbitrary manner, which left to the Commissioners a very wide discretion; and very grave questions had arisen whether such discretion did or not produce hardship to persons concerned, by the splitting up of premises into a great number of holdings. The term "holding" was not defined in the present Acts, but from the general scope of the Acts the Commissioners were entitled to determine what was to be a holding according to the circumstances in each case. The Act gave the Commissioners power to do that by implication, and he thought such a power undesirable. A holding was defined in this Bill to include any parcel of land, house, tank, or other immoveable property which had been separately valued for assessment, or in respect of which any person had been separately assessed, or which, in the opinion of the Commissioners, should be separately assessed, or in respect of which, in the opinion of the Commissioners, any person should be separately assessed. That was objectionable. It left it to the Commissioners to say what was a holding for the purpose of assessment. Take the case where a man possessed ten buildings comprised in and constituting one manufactory; he might then be rated on ten holdings, and a rate might be assessed on each; or he might possess a large piece of land, and the Commissioners might divide it into so many holdings. The Advocate-General ventured to submit that the term "holding" should be omitted from the Bill,—a term the meaning of which it was very difficult to define; and that the assessment should be made, as in the Calcutta Municipal Act, on houses, buildings, and lands. The hon'ble member on his right (Mr. Bell) would bear him out that many questions had arisen from this uncertainty in the law, and many complaints had been made of the injustice inflicted under the operation of the existing law.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bell said that to obviate the difficulty that arose from the use of the term "holding," he had suggested an amendment which stood on the paper in his name. The difficulty, he thought, would hardly be met in the way the learned Advocate-General suggested; for this reason that two rates were contemplated by the Bill—first, a rate on the annual value of houses and lands; and secondly, a tax on persons according to their property and circumstances. It was only in this latter case that the difficulty arose. When an assessment was made on a person according to his circumstances and property, the rate was limited to Rs. 7 a month, and you could not assess it at a higher rate. But Rs. 7 a month might be a very inadequate assessment for large manufactories consisting of a number of separate buildings. Under the existing law, one holding comprised one set of premises, and it would be a case of extreme hardship if the Magistrate should assess each building in the premises separately. To obviate the difficulty in cases of this sort, he proposed an amendment after Section 80 which would allow the Magistrate in such cases, instead of assessing the owner of the manufactory personally, according to his circumstances, to assess the property according to its rateable value. If the Council approved of that suggestion, we should be able to give a much more correct definition of the term "holding." One holding ought to comprise the whole of the houses and buildings in one premises; and if the consideration of the question was allowed to stand over, we might be able, in conjunction with the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill, to frame a more correct definition.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said that as regards one of the taxes which this Bill authorised, it seemed to him immaterial whether you defined a block of buildings as one holding or as separate holdings—he meant for the purpose of the rate according to the letting value. Such rate was to be paid by the owner of the holding, and to him it would be immaterial whether the property were entered in the assessment books as one item or as several items. It was for convenience only that MR. DAMPIER had added the last clause to the definition of "holding" to prevent any dispute with the Commissioners as to the mode in which they wished to enter the holding in their books for such purpose.

Then there was the other tax on the occupant, not on the property; and in regard to that he admitted that the difficulty existed. It had not been yet met; and if a definition which would meet the difficulty could be drafted, he would be glad to accept it. As regards premises occupied for the purpose of a manufactory, in which there was a block of houses used for the purpose of the manufactory, the amendment proposed by the hon'ble member who had last spoken met the difficulty in the same way as MR. DAMPIER had endeavoured to meet it in the Bill in the case of Government buildings. In a town in which the assessment on occupants according to their circumstances and property was in force, even in such a town, he had provided that Government holdings might be rated according to their value, and not according to the circumstances of the occupants. In the same way, his hon'ble friend's amendment proposed that blocks of buildings in such towns, used for warehouses and manufactories, should be rated according to their value, and not that the occupant should be assessed according to his circumstances and property. There might, however, be other cases which were not met by the proposed amendment, and he hoped that by the next meeting some definition of "holding" might be hit upon which would provide for such cases. He himself could not see his way to any satisfactory definition. To make the assessment, as the learned Advocate-General proposed, merely on the land and buildings, left the whole thing untouched. The difficulty was as to dividing land and buildings occupied by one person into different holdings for the purposes of assessment.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said he merely threw this out as a difficulty arising from the way the sections were drafted to meet the purpose of taxation, and the difficulty he felt had reference to the use of the word "holding." Where the Government was the occupier, and the tax was to be paid by the Government, that system of leaving a discretion was guarded against. If that were so, if in the case of the Government it was fair to take the assessment on the letting or annual value of the property, it was equally fair, he thought, that in the case of a manufactory the same should be done.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said he understood the hon'ble mover of the Bill to say that it was not a question of assessing a whole property, but merely a question of sub-dividing it for the purposes of assessment.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said, if a person had three holdings, which were previously assessed separately, he might be assessed at the rate of Rs. 7 a month for each holding. Then, if he bought a parcel of land, and he included it in a manufactory, and added it to the old holdings, the old holdings would be rated as before. But if he bought a little plot of land and included it in a manufactory, the Magistrate might divide it into twenty holdings, and make him pay twenty times Rs. 7 if he chose.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said he believed it was not intended by this Bill to raise the limit of taxation. The hon'ble mover, in introducing the Bill, had observed that the primary object of the Bill was a consolidation of the several Municipal Acts. But if a discretion were given to the Municipal Commissioners to raise the property tax, if he might so call it, from a maximum of Rs. 7 to say Rs. 50, he would not be surprised that in many places the maximum would be imposed and great oppression would result. He need hardly remind the Council that there were many families which had been in a prosperous condition before, but which were now in decadence; but which nevertheless dwelt in large houses, their ancestral homes, for which they had a natural partiality; and if these houses were assessed at the maximum rate proposed, they would be grievously oppressed. He thought that the suggestion made by the learned Advocate-General would meet the cases he had described.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he did not distinctly see the force of the suggestion made. The difficulty appeared to him to be this. To put an extreme case, take the case of a millionaire, whose circumstances and property in the municipality were very large. Suppose the municipality was one in which the tax according to the circumstances and property of persons, and not according to the letting value of buildings, was in force. How was the limit of Rs. 84 a year as the maximum tax on each holding to be applied in such a case? Was the entire area of land covered with buildings which the millionaire occupied in the municipality (perhaps in more than one block), to be treated as one holding only, subject to a maximum tax of Rs. 84 a year? or was it to be left optional with the Commissioners to divide it into an unlimited number of holdings, for the occupation of each of which he might be assessed up to Rs. 84 a year? At present he believed that the mode of procedure was vague, and depended upon the discretion of the local authorities; any occupant might be assessed in respect of his occupation of each separate building, if that was the view taken by the local authorities.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL considered that the remarks made by the hon'ble mover did not dispose of the question. As the tax was levied on the millionaire as the occupier of a holding, we must have a clear conception of what a holding was to be. If the intention was that the millionaire must be taxed at a very high rate, then a tax of Rs. 7 on his occupation would be too small. That being so, we were called upon to give such a vague definition to the word "holding" that the Commissioners might tax the millionaire at as high a rate as they thought proper. He thought such a power capricious and arbitrary. A millionaire, like any other person, should be taxed on some fixed principle and according to rule. It appeared to him that the definition of "holding" was objectionable; and as the objection seemed to apply to several portions of the Bill, he thought it right to take an early opportunity of letting the hon'ble mover know his views upon the subject. He was not prepared at present to suggest an amendment of the definition of "holding" or other suitable remedy, which would protect a rate-payer against an arbitrary assessment, which might be made if the present definition of "holding" be retained.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the scheme of this tax was none of his own. The Bill merely continued the rough mode of assessment which was in force throughout the length and breadth of the land, and had been so for the last score of years. At the same time he admitted that this tax, if you came to look at it through a microscope, and to test it critically, was absolutely indefensible; it was a rough and crude mode of taxation, which on the whole was well adapted to the circumstances of the country; but he should be glad to improve upon it if it could be done.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said, then the object of his objection had wholly succeeded. He wanted to point out that the mode of assessment was wholly indefensible. The existing law had led to much inconvenience, and as we were now altering the law, why should we not improve it?

The HON'BLE MR. BELL said, he thought that separate buildings which constituted one house should be assessed as one property. He believed that was the principle which generally prevailed in the mofussil wherever this tax on circumstances was in force. He could bear testimony to what fell from the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Kristodas Pal) with regard to large family houses being occupied by persons in very reduced circumstances. He had observed this particularly at Santipore, which was a very old town, and contained many very large buildings. It struck him that the town had been grievously under-assessed, and, as Magistrate of the district, he instituted a very careful inquiry into the subject. In company with the Commissioner of the division he went through the town street after street, and found many very large houses had been assessed at only one or two rupees a month, and the reason of that was that the owners of those houses were in reduced circumstances, and not able to pay more. He should be sorry to do anything which would enable the Magistrate to raise assessments to Rs. 50. He thought that manufactories, and places used bonâ fide for purposes of trade, should be assessed according to their letting value, and that the Council should come to the determination that one holding should include all the buildings occupied as one premises.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said that if it was the determination of the Council altogether to get rid of this old mode of taxation as too rough and unscientific, the Bill must be entirely changed; otherwise, as the word "holding" was used throughout the Bill merely as representing one item of taxation, whatever that item might be decided to be, he did not think it was necessary to postpone the consideration of the clauses until after the word "holding" had been precisely defined.

After some further discussion it was determined to postpone the consideration of the question, with the view of considering the objection raised to the use of the word "holding."

Section 6 provided that in existing municipalities the taxes now imposed should continue to be levied until the Commissioners, with the sanction of the Government, should otherwise direct.

The HON'BLE BABOO JUGGUDANUND MOOKERJEE thought that the order of the Commissioners under this section should be made by the Commissioners "at a meeting," and he accordingly moved an amendment to that effect, which was agreed to.

Section 7 provided that the extension of certain provisions of the Act should be made by notification in the Calcutta Gazette. On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER the words "and in the manner prescribed in Section 348," which was the section providing for the publication of notices and orders, were inserted after the words "Calcutta Gazette."

Section 8 provided that the notification above referred to should define the limits of the municipality, and whether the same should be a first or a second class municipality.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the insertion of the following proviso at the end of the section:—

"Provided that no village having a population of less than 1,000 souls shall be included in a first class municipality, and no village having a population of less than 500 souls shall be included in a second class municipality."

The reason of the amendment he had stated when he spoke on this Bill at the time it was read in Council. Hon'ble members were doubtless aware that great complaint prevailed in the mofussil in consequence of the inclusion of villages in municipal unions which were not able to bear the burden of municipal taxation. There were also outlying villages incorporated with municipalities which did not receive any adequate return for the taxes they paid, and the inhabitants of which were therefore sufferers by the extension of the Act to them. When he proposed that no outlying village having a population of less than 1,000 souls should be included in a first class municipality, and no village having a population of less than 500 souls should be included in a second class municipality, he meant that such villages were not in a position to bear municipal burdens. Bengal consisted chiefly of rural villages; its wants in sanitary matters were few: but the machinery for municipal administration required a large expenditure of money which many of these villages were not in a position to meet. Considering these circumstances, he submitted that the limitation proposed in a subsequent section would not obviate the objection he had taken, and he therefore hoped the amendment would be agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the Select Committee had, in manipulating what stood as Section 13 of the Bill, very much restricted the powers of the local Government as to uniting places adjoining the central town which formed the nucleus of a municipality for the purpose of forming a municipality. They had provided that no place should be so united which lay at a greater distance than one mile from some part of the nucleus, such nucleus being a tract which contained at least the minimum number of inhabitants, and at least the minimum pressure of population on area which the Act prescribed. Further, it was provided that when any outlying place not being situated more than one mile distant was united with the nucleus, the intervening tract of country should be within the municipal union for all purposes excepting that of taxation; that was to say, if there lay half a mile of maidan with a few agricultural houses, between the nucleus and the place united to it, those agricultural houses were not to be liable to taxation; but it would be possible for the municipality to expend money for making a road between the united place and the nucleus through that maidan, by which the inhabitants of the scattered agricultural houses would benefit. He did not think there was any necessity for the amendment. The amendment was that no place should be united with a first or second class municipality which had not 1,000 and 500 souls respectively. But suppose the case of a little row of shops a quarter of a mile outside the town which was the nucleus; supposing there were only 25 of these shops; they took their things into the town and supplied the town, and derived their subsistence from the town,—why should not they be included in the municipality because there were only a few houses?

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said he understood that it was agreed that the word "town" and not the expression "tract of country" should be used in the Bill. He understood that a particular town was to be taken as the nucleus of a municipality, and then, that all outlying villages might be included with it. In the original Bill the limit of distance for the inclusion of such villages was a quarter of a mile. In Committee he agreed to extend the limit to one mile, if the hon'ble mover would adopt the suggestion that some town, and not a tract of country, should be taken as the central point, with which might be included all villages within one mile distance of the town. That idea was not, he observed, carried out in the Bill as it now stood.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he did not understand that the discussion in Select Committee was as to the substitution of the word "town" for the expression "tract of country." The definition of "tract of country" was that the area must contain the average pressure of 3,000 inhabitants to the square mile and not less than 15,000 inhabitants for a first class municipality, and an average pressure of 1,000 inhabitants to the square mile and not less than 3,000 inhabitants in all for a second class municipality, whether you call such a place a town or by any other name. Those were the conditions which the Bill required, and it was immaterial by what name you called a place which fulfilled those conditions: the limitations were the two conditions as to the pressure of population to the square mile and the number of inhabitants in the place.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said the Bill as it now stood was extremely indefinite. Every officer who had mofussil experience knew that injustice might be done at present by including a number of outlying villages in a municipality. He felt strongly in this matter, because he feared that in some cases injustice was sometimes done by levying high taxation from a large number of villages for whose benefit but little was ever expended. The provisions of the Bill appeared not to meet the objections he had urged in Committee, but rather to increase the evils to which he objected. He understood the hon'ble member was ready to concede the suggestions which SIR STUART HOGG had made in Committee, and on that understanding he on his part had proposed to extend the limit of a quarter of a mile to one mile.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said, as the Bill originally stood, all places which might be situated within a quarter of a mile of some other place included in a union might be included in a municipality, and we might thus have had a long string of villages situated a quarter of a mile from each other in one municipality. That the hon'ble member did not approve of; and it was agreed that no place should be brought within the limits of a union which was more than one mile from the limits of the nucleus of the municipality, and this was provided in the Bill as it now stood.

The HON'BLE THE ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL said it appeared to him that what the hon'ble member opposite (Sir Stuart Hogg) meant was this. Suppose you took a district that might be thickly populated in one place and thinly populated in another. By taking the whole tract of country you got the average of population required by the Bill. The hon'ble member would have no objection if that tract of country were a town, or what was known as a town. In that case, if you took a mile from the limits of the town, you would obtain a limit beyond which you could not go. But he objected to taking the limit of a mile from a "tract of country," because that tract might be composed of one town with a large number of outlying villages making up the number of inhabitants and average number of population required.

His Honor the President thought that what the hon'ble member wished was to substitute the word "town" for "tract of country." What the hon'ble mover of the Bill meant was that a tract of country which fulfilled certain conditions was a town; that was to say, a tract of country which contained 15,000 or 3,000 inhabitants, and had an average of population to the square mile of 1,000 or 500, was a town which it would be proper to constitute a municipality of the first or second class respectively. There would, however, be this difficulty, that some whole districts and parts of others fulfilled those conditions as regards density of population.

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General observed that the definition would be very good if it stood by itself. But the difficulty was that by this Bill you were enabled to add something to the tract of country which would greatly enlarge its area.

The further consideration of the section was then postponed.

Sections 9 to 11 were agreed to.

Section 12 provided that no tract of country should be declared a municipality unless "a majority" of the adult male population were "chiefly" employed in pursuits other than agricultural; and Section 13 provided that no place "a majority" of whose adult male residents were not "chiefly" engaged in pursuits other than agricultural, should be united with a tract of country for the purpose of forming a municipality.

The Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal moved the substitution in these sections of the words "three-fourths" for "a majority," and the omission of the word "chiefly." He thought it was very desirable that provision should be made in the Bill that unless three-fourths of the population of a place should be engaged in agricultural pursuits, it should not be included in a municipal union. The word "chiefly" limited the sense in which the provision was intended to be understood. Now, it was well known that the people in rural villages in that period of the year in which there was no agricultural work going on, occasionally engaged their time in artizan's work; and having regard to that fact, the Magistrate might come to the conclusion that these were not agricultural villages, because the people sometimes engaged themselves in other occupations; and such villages, which properly speaking were agricultural villages, might be included in municipal unions.

Then, with regard to Section 13, he would move the insertion of the following words at the end of the first paragraph: "Provided that no such place shall be so united which is separated by a navigable channel from the limits of a municipality." Cases had been brought to notice in which villages, or places separated by a river, had been included in a municipal union. If two places separated by a navigable channel were fit to receive the benefits of municipal government, he thought they ought to be treated separately, and a separate municipal organization ought to be provided for each.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier explained that, as had been said before, this part of the Bill was a reproduction of Act III of 1864 and Act VI of 1868 of this Council. Act III of 1864, the District Municipal Improvement Act, contained no limitations as to the number and class of population; the Lieutenant-Governor could extend the Act to any place he chose. Section 4 of Act VI of 1868, the District Towns Act, insisted that at least one-half must be non-agricultural. The proposal before the Council was to alter the existing law, which provided a minimum of one-half, and extend the limitation to three-fourths.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bell did not think the hon'ble member had shown any sufficient reason for the amendments he proposed, and he should therefore vote against them.

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General observed that the existing law was a kind of rough enactment: as we were now amending and consolidating the law, we must be more precise in our legislation. The hon'ble member opposite (Sir Stuart Hogg) had shown that the inclusion of these outlying places in municipal unions might not always be to their advantage. Seeing that the outside villages might have to bear the burden of taxation without deriving any benefit in return, he thought the hon'ble mover of the amendment was perfectly right in proposing to enlarge the limit of the non-agricultural element in places which might be united for the purpose of forming municipal unions. He did not see that there was any further reason required.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL, in reply to what had fallen from the hon'ble member opposite (Mr. Bell), had only to say that the admissions made in the Council that day sufficiently justified the amendments he had proposed. It was admitted that the municipal law had worked most unjustly, and it was therefore both necessary and meet to relieve the agricultural population of the burden of municipal taxation particularly when their wants could be sufficiently met by a few simple sanitary measures, which could, he thought, be provided for from the funds raised under the Chowkeedaree Act. All officers acquainted with the practical administration of municipal matters in mofussil towns and villages were well aware that great complaints prevailed among the people of the agricultural villages on this subject; and that, he thought, was a sufficient reason that the numerical limit as to classes of population to be brought under municipal regulations should be extended, and not kept as it stood in the existing law.

The motion to substitute "three-fourths" for "a majority" was then agreed to.

The motion to omit the word "chiefly" was by leave withdrawn.

With regard to the motion that no place should be united which was separated by a navigable channel from the limits of a municipality, HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT observed that the hon'ble member must know that in many parts of Bengal khals were just as numerous as canals were in Venice; the khal was the street and the town was the ghât.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said that the effect of the amendment might be to give a separate municipal organization to a place which might conveniently be united to a municipality on the other side of a khal or narrow stream, and the cost to the place so constituted into a separate municipality would be greater than if it were united to a municipality across the stream. Where places were separated by a large navigable river, such as Howrah and Calcutta were, they would never be placed under one municipality.

The motion was then put and negatived.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said this was a long Bill, and required a good deal of study; and he should be sorry if hon'ble members were entrapped into anything of which the effect was not clearly understood by them. When it was proposed that three-fourths of the population must be, so to say, non-agricultural, before a place could be declared to be a municipality, his reason for not more strenuously opposing the amendment was this, that the section referred entirely to places which were hereafter to be made municipalities, in which neither Act III of 1864 nor Act VI of 1868 were now in force. By Section 3 it was declared that every place which was now a municipality under Act III of 1864, should, until otherwise directed, be a first class municipality, and every place which was now a town under Act VI of 1868 should be a second class municipality; therefore the minimum of three-fourths which the Council had imposed would not affect such places as were now under municipal government; it would only be applied when a question came up of bringing a place under municipal government, which was not so already. Had it been otherwise, he must have advised the Government to refuse to accept the amendment, at any rate until it was ascertained how existing municipalities might be affected by it. Possibly it might turn out that many places now enjoying municipal government would be thrown back, and lose the benefits of it, if the amendment just passed were applied to them.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL must thank the hon'ble member for pointing out the section which provided for existing municipalities. When he moved the amendment in Section 12 his object was to include also existing municipalities.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL thought that the constitution of existing municipalities should not be interfered with; if there were any municipalities which did not fulfil the conditions of the hon'ble member's amendment, they must remain as they were.

Section 14 was agreed to.

Section 15 provided, amongst other things, that not more than "one-third" of the Commissioners should be persons in the service of the Government.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the substitution of "one-fourth" for "one-third." He thought it would be sufficient for the purposes of Government control if one-fourth of the Commissioners were composed of officials, particularly as by the Bill the Government, through the Divisional Commissioners, would possess sufficient control over the proceedings of the Municipal Commissioners.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the Bill already made a concession from the existing law. There was nothing in the existing law to restrict the Government from appointing any number of official Commissioners it might think fit. He must speak plainly here. He had given the proportion of one-third with the object of giving the Government a potential influence in cases in which it was necessary to exercise it. The object of this Act was to take bantlings by the hand, and gradually to bring them up even till they reached to that perfection of municipal government which was before them in Calcutta. He could not see that it would be safe for the Government in every place to which the Act would be applied to deprive itself of the power of putting official pressure on the Commissioners in so teaching them how things might be done. At any rate in some of the least advanced towns there must be reserved to Government at present a power of despotic interference with the Commissioners; therefore the proportion of one-third official Commissioners was, he thought, a fair number to allow in such municipalities.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said he must thank the hon'ble mover for the frankness with which he had expressed his opinion; and he also thought the Government should teach the people, where they were not strong enough, to exercise the independent powers of municipal government. But the rule under comment would be of universal application; and places, such as the suburbs of Calcutta and Howrah, or Burdwan, or Kishnagur, and other towns and places, the people of which were sufficiently advanced in education and ideas of self-government—he said that in these places, if the Government so wished, it might, to use the words of the hon'ble mover, put on "official pressure" too much by swamping the non-official members of the Commission. He would therefore suggest that, if necessary, a line of distinction might be drawn between first and second class municipalities. In first class municipalities it might be generally taken for granted that the people were intelligent and advanced, and able to perform the duties assigned to them; but in second class municipalities the people might require the assistance of the Government in learning the art of municipal government. In making this distinction between first and second class municipalities the Government might reserve the right of nominating one-third of the Commissioners for second class municipalities and one-fourth for municipalities of the first class. He thought such a distinction would be fair and legitimate, and if it would meet the views of the hon'ble member, he would be prepared to move an amendment to that effect.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER accepted the proposal.

The motion was then agreed to.

Section 16 provided for the election of Commissioners.

The HON'BLE MR. BELL moved the introduction of the following words at the end of the section:—

"But the elective system shall not be introduced into any Municipality unless the Magistrate certifies that at least one-third of the resident rate-payers have signed a petition praying for its introduction."

He thought that the Council would agree that it was not desirable to extend the elective system to any town where the inhabitants were opposed to it, or were not in its favor. And the object of the amendment was that in every case, before the elective system was extended to a town, the Government might know what the wishes of the inhabitants were. The Council would bear in mind that the clauses regarding election applied both to first and second class municipalities; and many of these second class municipalities would be remote places, where it would be impossible to know what the sentiments of the people were, except through the report of the Magistrate. It was not unlikely to suppose that a zealous and ardent-minded Magistrate might desire to signalise his term of office by asking the Government to confer the elective franchise on the town. The Government would then be on the horns of a dilemma. If the Government rejected the application, as they would probably do in most cases, on the ground that they were not satisfied that the rate-payers desired an elective municipality, the Government would lay themselves open to the reproach that in reality they were opposed to the elective system altogether; or if they acceded to the Magistrate's request, they would be forcing the elective system on the town in opposition to the wishes of the people. He thought it very reasonable to provide that if the people desired the extension of the elective system in any place, they should take the trouble of making their sentiments known: if a thing was worth having it was worth asking for. On these grounds he asked the Council to support the amendment.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he had no objection to the amendment; it was a mere check on the Magistrate.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said he rather thought, in reference to what fell from the hon'ble mover of the amendment, that if there was a serious desire on the part of the inhabitants for the extension of the elective system to their municipality, one-third of the inhabitants would make an application for its extension.

The motion was then agreed to.

Sections 17 to 20 were agreed to.

Section 21 provided as follows:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor may, on the recommendations, of the Commissioners, remove any Commissioner appointed or elected under this Act, if such Commissioner shall have been guilty of misconduct in the discharge of his duties, or of any disgraceful conduct."

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the omission of the words "shall have been guilty of misconduct in the discharge of his duties, or of any disgraceful conduct," and the substitution of the following:—

"becomes a bankrupt or insolvent, or is interested otherwise than as a shareholder in a Joint-Stock Company in any contract with the Corporation, or shall be sentenced to imprisonment."

The section, as it now stood, was very indefinite. It simply provided that when a Municipal Commissioner should be guilty of any misconduct in the discharge of his duties, or of any disgraceful conduct, he might be removed. What was the meaning of "misconduct" he did not understand. "Disgraceful conduct" was also indefinite. He thought that when a person was sentenced to imprisonment he was not worthy of a seat in the Corporation; but to give power to Government to remove a person on the supposition that he was guilty of some "misconduct" not definitely described, or of "disgraceful conduct" equally indefinite, at the discretion of possibly the Magistrate or Commissioner, seemed to him a most arbitrary stretch of authority.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said, in the existing sections of the two Acts there was an absolute power of removal without assigning any reason; while the Bill restricted the cases in which the Government should be able to remove a Commissioner. Objection was made to the power of removing a Commissioner on the ground that he was guilty of "disgraceful conduct." He was not personally inclined to withdraw this power from the Government, looking to the circumstances. Suppose a Commissioner was perpetually in a state which incapacitated him from taking a part in the proceedings of the Commissioners, and his conduct became a notorious scandal, surely in such cases there ought to be a power of removal.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said he was in favor of retaining the words of the section as they stood. It should certainly be left to the Lieutenant-Governor to remove a Commissioner who was guilty of "disgraceful conduct."

The HON'BLE MR. BELL said he should prefer to leave the words as they stood in the existing Acts, both of which gave an absolute discretion to the Government as to the removal of a Commissioner. What was "disgraceful conduct?" It was wholly indefinite. Besides, a certain stigma would be attached to a man who was removed for disgraceful conduct. He thought it would be better therefore to retain the wording of the existing law.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL thought that the term "disgraceful conduct" was not in any way vague or indefinite. It was very difficult in one word to define what was disgraceful conduct; it was conduct unbecoming the position of a Commissioner. The hon'ble member who had just spoken put his suggestion on the ground that it would be a stigma on a man who was removed for disgraceful conduct, but how much more would it be a stigma on a man who was removed, it might be, for nothing: if a man were removed for conduct which was known to be disgraceful, he had only himself to blame for it.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said he would mention one case which occurred not long ago in which a Magistrate actually suspended a Municipal Commissioner because he had some difference with the District Superintendent of Police in a procession, and though an appeal was made to the Government, no satisfaction was given to him. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL submitted that persons with any degree of self-respect would hesitate to accept the office of Municipal Commissioner if they were liable to be turned out at the discretion or caprice of the Magistrate; for the Government would necessarily be influenced by the opinion of the Magistrate. He admitted that if the Municipal Commissioners at a meeting were empowered to consider the conduct of a brother Commissioner and make a report, it would obviate the objection he had taken. Then a Commissioner whose conduct might be deemed worthy of censure would be tried by his peers as it were, and the Government would have ample grounds for exercising the authority vested in it by this section; and if the section were so amended, he would be willing to withdraw his amendment; for when the Commissioners at a meeting condemned the conduct of one of their own body there ought to be no ground of complaint.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he was entirely against relieving the Government of the responsibility of keeping a person who was unfit to be a Commissioner; he would make the Lieutenant-Governor himself answerable that no person who was not a proper person to be a Commissioner should be continued in the office.

The motion was then negatived.

The HON'BLE BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE observed that the section provided that the removal of a Commissioner was to be on the recommendation of the Commissioners. That meant that the Government might remove a Commissioner on the simple recommendation of the Chairman, who, under the Bill, was empowered to exercise all the powers of the Commissioners except those expressly declared to be exercised by the Commissioners "at a meeting." If a Commissioner committed anything like disgraceful conduct, he ought to be judged by his brother Commissioners; he thought therefore that there could be no objection to the insertion of the words "at a meeting" after the word "Commissioners," and he would move an amendment to that effect.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he was unable to accept the amendment. He thought the actions of a Commissioner should not be brought under discussion by his fellow Commissioners; and the proposal would impose an invidious task on the persons who were Commissioners.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT observed that it was not a proper function to be put before the Commissioners in meeting to say that one of their own body should be removed; it was most invidious to give such a power to a corporate body.

The motion was then by leave withdrawn, and the section as it stood was agreed to.

In Section 22, on the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, the words "sentenced to imprisonment" were substituted for the words "convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment."

Sections 23 to 29 were agreed to.

Section 30 provided that the "Commissioners" should elect their own Vice-Chairman. On the motion of the HON'BLE BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE an amendment was carried restricting the power to the "Commissioners at a meeting."

Clause 5 of Section 30 provided as follows:—

"Provided also that the present salaried Vice-Chairman of any municipality, who has been appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the provisions of any enactment hereby repealed, shall continue to hold the office until he resigns or is removed with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor."

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the substitution of the words "as aforesaid" for the words "with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor" at the end of the clause. He wished to be informed whether a resolution of the Commissioners for the removal of such an officer would take effect if the Lieutenant-Governor withheld his sanction. In the early part of the section it was provided that the Vice-Chairman might be removed if the Commissioners at a meeting voted for his removal. He thought they ought to have the power to remove any Vice-Chairman from office in case of misconduct.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said this section was introduced to protect vested rights. In one or two cases officers had been appointed as Vice-Chairmen on the understanding that they would be removeable by the Government only and not by the municipal body. He believed there were only three such cases in Bengal; and it was not intended that such officers should be liable to dismissal at the discretion of the Commissioners in the same manner as other officers of municipalities might be.

The motion was then negatived, and the section agreed to.

Sections 31 and 32 were agreed to.

Section 33 vested in the Commissioners all roads, bridges, embankments, tanks, &c., within the municipality.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the insertion of the words "and not being maintained by Government or at the public expense" after the word "property" in line 4. This section, he said, would necessarily impose heavy obligations on the municipality if all roads, bridges, and embankments now maintained by the Government, or at the public expense, were made over to the municipality. He would suggest that works so maintained should not be vested in the municipality. It was very desirable that the burden on the municipal fund should be limited as far as possible, otherwise the primary wants of the town could not be met: the funds would be in most cases very small.

The motion was agreed to.

Sections 34 to 39 were agreed to.

Section 40 declared the mode of executing contracts.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the insertion of the words "sanctioned by the Commissioners at a meeting, and shall be" before the words "shall be in writing" in the 9th line of the 2nd paragraph. He thought it was necessary that contracts above a certain amount should be sanctioned by the Commissioners at a meeting.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER was disposed to agree that the execution of contracts above a certain amount should be made subject to the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting, but he could not consent to the limits as they stood in the section. He did not think that the Bill would work in practice if the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting were required for every contract of so low an amount as Rs. 300 and Rs. 100, respectively. He thought the limit must be placed at a very much higher amount. As the section stood, it required the consent of the Chairman and of at least one other Commissioner to the execution of such contracts. He thought that would be sufficient in such cases. If the hon'ble member proposed the introduction of another section requiring such sanction to contracts of a larger amount, MR. DAMPIER would endeavour to meet his views.

On the motion of the HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL, the minimum values of contracts referred to in the section was raised from Rs. 300 for a first class municipality, and Rs. 100 in a second class municipality, to Rs. 500 and 300 respectively.

Sections 41 to 48 were agreed to.

Section 49 related to the appointment of overseers, clerks, and subordinate officers.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the addition of the following proviso to the section :—

"Provided that no person shall be appointed to or dismissed from an office the salary of which is more than fifty rupees per mensem without the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting."

The amendment which he now moved was consistent with the principle adopted in the Calcutta Municipal Bill, in which it was provided that no officer receiving a salary of more than Rs. 200 a month could be appointed or dismissed without the sanction of the Justices at a meeting. On the same principle he thought that no municipal officer whose salary was above Rs. 50 should be appointed or dismissed in the mofussil without the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting. Officers whose salaries were below that amount might be appointed or dismissed by the Chairman of the Commissioners.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said, he was not prepared to give the Commissioners any authority over the subordinate establishment of the municipality. The Commissioners were a consultative body only, who were to advise the Magistrate in the administration of the municipality; and the Magistrate, who was the Chairman, should have the whole executive control of the affairs of the municipality, and it was absolutely necessary that the establishment should be exclusively under his orders.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he entirely agreed with the remarks which had fallen from the hon'ble member who had just spoken.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said he was rather surprised that the hon'ble member, who was the Chairman of the Calcutta Municipality, should object to the amendment when the principle on which it was based was affirmed in the Calcutta Municipal Act. He could well understand his wish to give the Chairmen of mofussil municipalities absolute power over the municipal establishments. But he demurred to the statement that the Municipal Commissioners were a consultative body, and that they were to have no control over the establishments in their pay. He submitted that if the Commissioners were to be a mere consultative body, their duty being simply to advise the Magistrate, and that the Magistrate alone was to administer all executive matters without the control of the Commissioners, then the municipal commission would be a farce. When he proposed to fix the limit of salary at Rs. 50, he considered that such a salary in the mofussil would correspond with a salary of Rs. 200 in Calcutta. If the Chairman of the Calcutta Municipality did not find himself hampered in his actions when the Justices exercised control over the establishment in so far that no officer whose salary was above Rs. 200 could be removed or appointed without the sanction of the Justices at a meeting, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not see why the executive of the mofussil municipalities should feel otherwise. He strongly urged the adoption of this proviso, as it would give the Commissioners an active interest in the affairs of the Municipality.

The motion was then agreed to.

Sections 50 to 57 were agreed to.

Section 58 provided a penalty on Commissioners and others being interested in contracts with the Municipality, except with the consent of the Commissioners at a meeting; and Section 59 declared the questions on which a Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee was disqualified to vote.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved the omission of Section 58; the introduction of the following words after the word "shall" in line 2 of Section 59—"be interested directly or indirectly in any contract made with the Commissioners"; and of the following proviso at the end of the section :—

"Provided that no person shall, by reason of being a shareholder in, or a member of, any incorporated or registered company, be deemed interested in any contract entered into between such company and the Commissioners.

But no such shareholder or member shall act as a Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee in a matter relating to any contract entered into between such company and the Commissioners."

He objected to any Commissioner taking a contract from the Municipality of which he was a member. He thought Section 58 would open a wide loop-hole to abuse, which perhaps it would be difficult for the Government to control, and might prove demoralising to the Commissioners themselves. He was not aware of there being any such power under the existing law, and he was surprised at its being introduced in this Bill. So far as it concerned the making of contracts with a joint-stock company of which a Commissioner might be a shareholder, he did not object; and in his amendment on Section 59 he had provided for such cases. But he was strongly opposed to any power being reserved to the Commissioners for permitting a brother Commissioner to enter into a contract with the Municipality.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the provision objected to was not in the old laws, but the idea was not his own. It was taken out of what was called the lost Municipal Bill,—the Bill passed in 1872, but not assented to by the Governor-General. The question was whether under no circumstances should a Municipal Commissioner, under special sanctions and restrictions, take a contract. It seemed to him that cases might occur in which it would be very advantageous to permit a Commissioner to take a contract. There might, for instance, be an iron foundry established within a municipality, of which the proprietor was a Municipal Commissioner; the municipality might wish to get a certain work done; and if Section 58 were not passed, they would not be able to take advantage of the foundry which was in their vicinity, but would have to get their work done at a distance at a considerable increase of expenditure. The restriction imposed, he thought, was such as to ensure a fair amount of publicity which would prevent any abuse of the law.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL observed that what the natives called "eye-shame" was so prevalent in this country, that serious abuses and corruption would result if the Commissioners were allowed to be mixed up with contracts. Such legislation would be demoralizing.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said it might often occur in outlying stations that there might be one person who only could carry out a contract, and it would give rise to considerable inconvenience if that person, because he was a Commissioner, could not take the contract. For that reason only was the provision introduced. The contract would have to be approved by the Commissioners at a meeting, without whose sanction a Commissioner would not be able to take a contract.

After some further conversation the motion was agreed to.

Sections 60, 61, and 62, were agreed to.

Section 63 provided that, with the consent of "a majority" of the Commissioners, and the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, contributions might be made by one municipality to another.

The HON'BLE BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE observed that this question was considered in Select Committee, and he believed it was considered necessary that the consent of "two-thirds" of the Commissioners should be obtained before any contribution under this section could be made. On an important subject like this he thought that the consent of two-thirds of the Commissioners should be required, and he therefore moved the substitution of the word "two-thirds" for "a majority."

The motion was agreed to.

Section 64 to 69 were agreed to.

Section 70 provided for the making of rules by the Government for regulating the powers of municipalities in respect to the expenditure of money.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said it had been suggested to him, with reference to the difficulty of obtaining professional skill in the mofussil except from the officers of the Government, that there should be a power of control and supervision reserved to the Government over large engineering works undertaken by municipalities. He would give notice of an amendment for this purpose at the next meeting of the Council.

Sections 71 to 73 were agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS said he had an amendment to move after Section 73. In the Bill as it stood when it went before the Select Committee, there was a section numbered 59, permitting the Lieutenant-Governor to direct that the cost of maintaining clerks in the offices of the Magistrate of the district and Commissioner of the division for the audit of accounts, and the necessary correspondence relating to municipalities, should be paid rateably by the several municipalities in the district or division. He saw, on referring to the report of the Select Committee, that in accordance with the opinion of the majority of the Committee, that section had been omitted. But as the section was a very important one, and as he gathered that the Committee were not unanimous, he desired to move that the section should be restored in this part of the Bill. In the existing Act Section 13 declared that the sums leviable under the Act, after providing for various matters on which the municipal fund might be expended, should also be applied otherwise in giving effect to the purposes of the Act. That was a kind of general section, and it seemed reasonable to lay down that the cost of maintaining establishments under the Magistrate of the district and the Commissioner of the division was also a legitimate object of municipal expenditure. He thought the fairness of so applying the funds would be admitted by the Council, and he therefore proposed to restore Section 59 of the original Bill as Section 73A :—

"73A. The Lieutenant-Governor may direct that the cost of maintaining clerks or other establishments in the offices of the Magistrate of the district and of the Commissioner of the division, for the audit of accounts and the requisite correspondence connected with the purposes of this Act, shall be paid in rateable proportion from the funds of the several municipalities which may be constituted under this Act in such district or division.

"And the Commissioners of every municipality shall pay to the Magistrate of the district the sum which they may be required to pay for the purposes of this section and the last preceding section."

The HON'BLE THE STUART HOGG said this question was fully considered by the Select Committee, and the omission of the section was carried by a majority. The hon'ble mover of the amendment wished to place on the same footing establishments maintained by a municipality for its own purposes, with those maintained by the Magistrate of the district and the Commissioner of the division for supervising purposes. The majority of the Select Committee were of opinion that all establishments required for the municipality of any place should be maintained and paid for from the municipal fund of that place; but they objected to the supervising establishments at the head-quarters of the Magistrate and the Commissioner, which had no direct connection with the executive works of municipalities, being paid for from funds raised for municipal purposes.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL observed that he understood that an extra clerk was kept in each Magistrate and Commissioner's office for the express purpose of supervising the work of municipalities, and if these officers had not municipal work to supervise, they would not require the services of this extra clerk; he thought therefore that there was no injustice in requiring municipalities to bear rateably the expenditure on this account.

The HON'BLE MR. BELL said that the present practice was for each municipality to contribute a certain proportion of the cost of a municipal clerk in the Magistrate's office. As a Magistrate he had himself charge of three municipalities, and a very small sum from each municipality, Rs. 5 or Rs. 6 a month, sufficed to pay for the services of the clerk who was employed in his office exclusively for municipal work.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said he had objected to this provision at the time the Bill was introduced, and he still held that it was not right in principle. If the principle were acknowledged in reference to municipalities, then there were other branches of the administration which ought similarly to be charged for the expense of supervision—the Registration Department for instance. The registration of assurances was conducted under a separate law, and the receipts from registration formed a distinct branch of revenue. The Registration Department was supervised by the Government; consequently the time of the establishment of the Bengal Secretariat was taken up for the work. But we were not told that the Registration Department was to contribute to the maintenance of the establishment of the Secretariat. But if municipalities were to be made to contribute to the maintenance of the establishments in the offices of the Magistrate of the district and Commissioner of the division, then why not in the Bengal Secretariat? and why should not by and bye a Municipal Secretary be appointed? He took it for granted that the Government existed for the due supervision of the different departments of internal administration; and as the Commissioner formed a part of the Government machinery, it was his duty to supervise the municipal administration of the districts under his control. The Government provided a general establishment for the discharge of work in the Commissioner's office, and that establishment ought to attend to the work of supervising the municipal administration. To authorize the Government to levy a sort of cess as it were from municipalities for the maintenance of an establishment in the Commissioner's office, would be indirectly throwing the burden of the general administration on the municipal fund. If it be admitted to-day that the establishment in the Commissioner's office should be paid for out of municipal funds, what was there to prevent its being declared that the cost of establishment of the Bengal Secretariat should be met by municipal funds for the supervision of municipal work. On these grounds he objected to the proposed section.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT observed that any reference to public departments not mentioned in the Bill seemed to be slightly beyond the question. The question merely was regarding the payment of certain clerks in the Magistrate's and Commissioner's offices. Surely the maintenance of these clerks for the work of municipalities was a fair charge on the municipal funds, and if this charge were disallowed, the principle would apply equally to all charges of the municipality being thrown on the general revenues.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER observed that the line practically was drawn where the existence of an office depended mainly upon the local requirements; in such cases the pay of the incumbent of the office should be paid by the local fund.

The section was then agreed to.

Sections 74 and 75 were agreed to.

The further consideration of the Bill was then postponed.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 26th instant.

CALCUTTA MUNICIPALITY.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG said it would be in the recollection of the Council that when the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the municipal affairs of Calcutta had almost been passed through the Council with exception of the sections which gave Government a general control over the management of the municipality, His Honor the President of the Council was pleased to declare, at the sitting of the Council on the 27th of November 1875, his general opinion upon the system which should be adopted in providing a municipal constitution for the city. His Honor declared that he was prepared to concede an elective system to Calcutta as it had already been conceded to Bombay and other large towns in India. His Honor, however, in his speech, on referring to the powers which might be exercised by the Municipal Commissioners, said:—

"Well, though I am, as I have already said, in favour of giving the Corporation as much power of self-government as may be safely possible, yet I certainly think that there are points in which the Government must retain the final authority. These points are the ordering of particular works of public utility to be executed, the levying or limiting of taxes, and the fixing of the strength of the police establishment. So, I submit, it will be necessary either to pass some general power compelling the Commissioners to obey any order they may receive from the Government, or, if that were thought to be too general—and I do not think that so wide a power need be insisted upon - then it would be sufficient to take certain particular points, such as those I have mentioned, the great works of public utility, the taxes, and the police, which may be specified as the points upon which the Municipal Commissioners must obey the orders they may receive from Government. I should suppose that such occasions would be extremely rare when Government would thus interpose."

Following therefore the lines distinctly laid down by His Honor when the Bill was re-committed with the view of reconsidering the constitutional sections in the Municipal Bill, the Select Committee, while providing for an elective system for Calcutta, provided for the control, as foreshadowed by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, which should be exercised by Government. Since these sections had been published, the Council had received memorials from several bodies. All these memorials seemed to appreciate an elective system provided it was not subject to Government control. He thought therefore it would be desirable if the memorials which they had received were referred back to the Select Committee, not with the view of re-opening the Bill as settled by the Council, but simply with the view of considering whether the sections which gave to Government the power of control could not be so modified as in a measure to meet the objections raised against them in the memorials. He had no doubt that if the Bill was re-committed the Select Committee would be quite prepared to hear delegates from the various bodies who had memorialized the Government; and if the Justices of the Peace for Calcutta desired to be heard and represented by Counsel before the Select Committee, probably there would be no objection raised to that. He would now move that the Bill be referred back to the Select Committee for the purpose of considering the memorials which had been received, with the view only to reporting if Sections 21, 22, and 58, which provided for the general control of the Government, could be modified, having regard to the memorials which had been received.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said he desired to express his satisfaction at the course proposed by the hon'ble mover of the Bill. It had been announced at the last meeting of the Council that the Bill would be passed into law that day, but the hon'ble mover of the Bill had since thought fit to propose a re-commitment of the Bill to the Select Committee, and this proceeding, he was sure, would be gratifying to the rate-payers, who were so vitally interested in it. In describing to the Council the history of the constitutional clauses of the Bill, the hon'ble member had not, he was sorry to say, given all the facts connected with it. It was true that His Honor the President had announced on a certain day his readiness to concede an elective system to the people of Calcutta; but as the Council were aware, no discussion whatever had ensued in the Council upon the statement which was then laid before it. The members of this Council had, therefore, had no opportunity to express their opinion upon the principle upon which the elective system was to be conceded to Calcutta. The Bill, or rather the statement of His Honor the President, had then, at a subsequent meeting, after the business of the Council was over, been referred to the Select Committee for consideration. There was thus no opportunity given to the Council to discuss the principle upon which the system was to be based. In Select Committee there had been considerable difference of opinion. He and his hon'ble friend opposite (Mr. Brookes) considered it their duty to record a dissent, but his hon'ble friend, the mover of the Bill, had not been pleased to refer to it even. He said that the report of the Select Committee on the amended Bill had been presented to the Council, as if the report were an unanimous one. They, the minority, had done their best to impress upon the majority their opinion that the proposed elective system, with the reservation of full power in the hands of Government, would be no boon; and he considered it his duty to state that he still adhered to that opinion.

The three memorials referred to by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill, it was true, did not object to the principle of the elective system as a principle; but they did object to the powers reserved to the Government—powers which, in the opinion of many, would completely neutralize the spirit of the proposed constitution. The rate-payers of Calcutta could not but be grateful to His Honor the President for the liberal concession he had made in announcing that he was willing to give them the privilege of self-government; but they wanted a reality, and the question was whether the Bill, as framed by the majority of the Select Committee, gave a reality. With one voice the rate-payers had declared that it was not a reality; that it could not be a reality so long as the main spring would be in the hands of Government, and that it could not therefore be looked upon as a boon or a blessing. He fully appreciated the position in which the Government was placed in relation to the administration of municipal matters in the city. It was a foreign Government, and it must keep considerable power in its hands for the government of the capital of the empire. From its position it must be despotic to a great extent. But the question was whether elective institutions and despotism could run in parallel lines with each other. If the Government, assuming a despotic position, could not give full and complete powers to the rate-payers, the question was whether it was worth their while to accept the little measure that was proposed. He did not say that the people of Calcutta were not capable of governing themselves. Perhaps no other city in India possessed such a loyal population as this. It was true that the population was divided into sections and classes; but on the whole there was such harmony amongst them, there was such a spirit of mutual co-operation, and there was such a spirit of obedience to the law amongst them all, that he might say, if the Government had full confidence in them and reposed in them the solemn trust of administering the municipal affairs of the town, it would not be abused. But of that the Government was the best judge. The existing system, though not representative in theory, had been to a great extent representative in fact. The Government had hitherto selected such members of the different sections of the community to be representatives in the Corporation as were considered qualified, by their intelligence, position, character, and public spirit to take a part in the administration of the affairs of the town; and the history of that body, whatever its shortcomings in other respects, showed that its members had not been wanting in intelligence or loyalty in the discharge of their duties.

He had said that the Council had no opportunity of discussing the principle of the constitutional clauses of the Bill. He might remark that they had the strange spectacle of seeing the Bill in the hands of an hon'ble member who was himself opposed to its principle. Of course, from his position, it was his duty to take charge of the Bill; but that showed that there was at any rate no "community of sentiment and feeling" between His Honor the President and the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill in respect of its principle. He could not say what the opinion of the other official members of this Council on the Bill was; but, as a Government measure, he believed that they considered it their duty to support it. Such being the case, he might frankly and humbly say that he had not considered it his duty to move amendments at the last sitting of the Council, when the Bill was brought up again for consideration. He acknowledged with gratitude the patience, courtesy, and attention with which the opinions of the non-official members had been listened to both by His Honor the President and the official members of the Council. But their position was anomalous. They were a standing minority in the Council, two-thirds of the members being paid officers of Government; and considering that the present Bill was a Government measure, it could not be expected that the opinions of the non-official members would carry sufficient weight to influence the votes of the official members. These being the facts of the case, the non-official members gave it up as hopeless to persist in the amendments which they had thought it their duty to put before the Council at the previous sitting.

His hon'ble friend the mover of the Bill had announced that the Select Committee would be asked to consider some of those amendments, the principle of the Bill remaining of course as it was. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL submitted that if these sections of the Bill were modified in the spirit in which the principle of self-government had been conceded, the outside public would not have much to complain of. But he did hope that that move was not intended for a mere tinkering of the Bill—that it was not intended for slight modifications here and there, whilst the spirit of the Bill remained as it was. The public had cried out for the substance, and he hoped that a mere shadow would not be held out to them.

He had said that the rate-payers ought to feel grateful to the Government for conceding the principle of election. But the question really was not a question of election or no election, but such a management of the municipal affairs of the town as would promote the best interests of the rate-payers, consistently with their sentiments, feelings, wishes, and requirements. If that object could be secured by election, by all means give it; if by selection, by all means have it. But let that primary object be kept in view, and the Council would not go wrong. If they had before them that cardinal consideration that the good of the town was the object of the Bill, the Council could surely find the way to attain that object.

Much had been said outside of the importance of the elective system as proposed in the Bill. Now the very essence of a representativt system was that the representatives of the people should have sufficiene power over the executive, but this Bill started with the principle that the executive should be appointed by the Government. The Chairman of the Commissioners should be the nominee and servant of the Corporation, and not in any way the representative of the Government. It was not necessary for him to say whether, under the existing circumstances of the town, the appointment of Chairman should be left to the Commissioners. But he did say that the elective system proposed was a very mitigated thing after all, when, in the appointment and dismissal of their chief executive officer, the representatives of the people would have no voice whatever. The hon'ble mover of the Bill took care at the last sitting of the Council to fetter still more the controlling power of the Commissioners as to the removal of the Chairman; for, though two-thirds of the Commissioners might vote for his removal, it would still be in the discretion of the Lieutenant-Governor whether the Chairman should be removed or not. Thus, the chief executive officer, who should be the spokesman of the Commissioners, being appointed without the sanction of the Commissioners, and being subject to the control only of the Government as to his removal, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL was of opinion that there, at any rate, the essence of the elective system could not be sufficiently preserved.

Then, the Government had taken power to appoint one-third of the Municipal Commissioners. He did not question the wisdom or the propriety of taking this power; but what he thought was this, that the Government was not going to concede to the town a thorough and complete elective system. It might be said that the Government kept this power lest the Corporation be swamped by Hindoos, as was urged by the hon'ble mover of the Bill at a previous stage of the Bill. But BABOO KRISTODAS PAL had already said that the Hindoos would not understand their own interests if they did so. But supposing that the rate-payers did so, the conclusion drawn from that would be that, divided as the community of Calcutta was, there was not room for a pure elective system: that the city was not ripe for one. But as he had said before, it was not likely that the Hindoo rate-payers would so far forget their interests as to swamp the Corporation with representatives of their own community; he could not too often repeat that single-handed they could not work successfully, but that united they could do a great deal.

The primary object of keeping so much power in the hands of the Government, was stated to be that the Government had an enormous financial interest in the municipality of Calcutta; that it was the largest creditor of the town; and that, if the Government did not keep power in its own hands for the payment of interest and the repayment of the loan, its interests might seriously suffer. He had pointed out before, and he maintained still, that the law was sufficiently strong for the protection of the Government interests and those of the debenture-holders generally. If the Commissioners did not make due provision for the payment of interest and contribution to the sinking fund, the Government might at any time move the High Court to compel the Commissioners to make such provision. But even if that were not sufficient, he would not object if the Government took power to itself to order the Municipal Commissioners to lay aside a sufficient sum on this account, and even to draw from the Bank of Bengal, on behalf of the Commissioners, a sufficient sum for the payment of interest on the loans and the formation of a sinking fund. If, however, he might appeal to his own experience in connection with the administration of the municipality in regard to the financial interests of the Government, he might mention one fact, that for the two years of 1873 and 1874 he believed the Government had not drawn a single pice for the sinking fund and the interest, and the Justices had had to pay up for the two years together, because the Government was not sufficiently mindful of its own interests: so that the Justices took more care of the interests of the Government than the Government itself.

The same remarks applied to the payment on account of the police. The police should certainly be maintained, and the police expenditure must be met anyhow. If the present Bill was not sufficiently stringent on that point, the power of the Government might be increased and strengthened as much as necessary for the due maintenance of the police. But he submitted that the law was quite sufficient for that purpose, and he might add that the Justices never made a default in the payment of police charges. With the exception of these two subjects, he did not see a single point in respect of which the Government should have greater power than it possessed under the existing law.

Another question was the reclamation of bustees, in regard to which it was said the lives and health of hundreds and thousands of the inhabitants were at stake; and in respect of that the Council were aware that the Government had taken special power. That being the case, where was the necessity for the Government to ask for more power? Where was the necessity for the Government to desire greater power of control than it did possess over the Justices at present? The great questions of drainage and water-supply had already been settled, and the Justices, or the Commissioners, had only to carry out the details. The principles in regard to those works were not open to discussion. The question, if it ever arose, simply would be whether the Justices or the Commissioners should expend five or ten lakhs of rupees a year on drainage, or two lakhs or ten lakhs on the water-supply, and so on. But the great principles of these works, he had already said, had been settled, and could not be re-opened. Were not the Commissioners fit to be entrusted with the settlement of details such as these? He knew that sometimes differences had arisen between the Chairman and the Justices in respect of these details, and on them hung the question of taxation. If you spent five or ten lakhs of rupees at once on the drainage or the water-supply works, you must raise the house-rate to 8 or perhaps 10 per cent. and the water-rate likewise, and the Chairman, as the executive; naturally wished that the works should be pushed on as rapidly as possible, whereas the Justices, seeing that the works, if hurried on, could not be done satisfactorily, made what they considered reasonable allotments for these purposes. He questioned whether it was necessary that the Government should have a voice in these matters of detail, considering that the history of the last twelve years showed that it was not necessary in the interests of the town that the Government should have the power of interfering with details.

But even as regards questions of principle, had the Government no power to interfere? He appealed to the records of the municipality for an answer. Did not Lord Lawrence, when Governor-General of India, interfere when the great question of drainage was under discussion? Did not Sir Cecil Beadon interfere when the question of water-supply was under discussion? Did not Lord Mayo and Sir George Campbell interfere in burdening the town with a tramway? He appealed to the Council with these facts, and asked them to consider whether the Government under the existing system had sufficient power of interference or not? And there was nothing in the present Bill which altered the position of the Government in that respect from what it was under the existing law. The Government, as the chief controlling authority of the country, had always a right of interfering where the good of the people was at stake, and in that respect the power of the Government could never be curtailed by local legislation.

In reference to the question of representative government for the town, there was one point of great importance. It might be said that the natives were not sufficiently advanced to be trusted with full and complete power. But it should be borne in mind that the natives were not the only residents of the town. There was also a large, important, and influential section of the European community here. The capital of the empire attracted to itself representatives of the most civilized countries of Europe for the purposes of trade and commerce. It was true that many of them came there as birds of passage, and went away after a few years, as soon as they had feathered their nests. But there were many who had an abiding interest in the town, and even those who fled away after a few years' residence felt an interest in the municipal administration of the town as long as they dwelt there. He asked hon'ble members, who were better acquainted with the European character than he was, whether they, who had tasted the sweets of self-government in their own countries, would consent to take part in a scheme of self-government in which the power of the Government would be held in terrorem over them in everything they did or wished to do. He asked whether they would consent to be members of a Corporation in which the Chairman or the Government might treat them as puppets; in which, if they wished to prove useful, they could not find any scope for independence, and in which probably they would consider that they could not work without destroying their own feelings of self-respect. It then came to this, that representatives of the great European communities in Calcutta were not likely to act as a part of this machinery of self-government, and then the question arose of what use would it be to the town? He could not too strongly impress upon the Council that the Natives of the country had much to learn from the Europeans in the art of government and self-government; that if the people of Calcutta had made any progress in the appreciation of the mode of self-government, it was because they had been long associated with the representatives of the advanced civilization of the West in their own town. Education had been diffused widely enough through towns in the mofussil; but why was it that the people of Calcutta alone were more advanced than other civilized towns in this country? It was simply because there was a large European population residing in it, between whom and the Natives there was frequent interchange of ideas. It was, therefore, of the utmost importance that this Bill should be so framed as to induce the representatives of the European community to join the Town Corporation, and there to act as the teachers of the people, as well as the protectors of their own interests. If, then, the Government thought that it was not prepared to give such a Bill as would place full power in the hands of the representatives of the people, whether European or Native, he would say to them, "Do not go backward; if you cannot progress forward, do not make a retrograde step."

He would conclude by saying that if the Select Committee would consider the provisions of the Bill to which objections had been taken in the several memorials in the spirit in which the principle of the elective system as a principle had been conceded, they would do their work to the satisfaction of the public.

One word more and he had done. The hon'ble mover of the Bill had announced that the Select Committee would be glad to receive delegates from the public bodies from whom memorials had been received, and that if the Justices wished to be represented by Counsel, the Select Committee would be prepared to hear them. He would make only one suggestion with reference to that point. Usually the proceedings of Select Committees were not open to the public, but as representatives of the various public bodies were to be admitted as delegates, and as Counsel were to be heard on behalf of the Justices, he hoped that Reporters of the Press would also be admitted. The public were deeply interested in the proceedings of the Council in reference to this Bill; and if the sittings of the Select Committee were thrown open to the public who were interested in the matter, it would give greater satisfaction than if the proceedings of the Committee were held with closed doors. He would therefore propose as an amendment or, if he was not in order, he would move a substantive motion, that the meetings of the Select Committee in reference to this Bill, should be thrown open to the public and the Reporters of the Press.

The HON'BLE SIR STUART HOGG observed that that was a question which should be left entirely for the Select Committee to determine. He himself had no objection to the proposal.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL remarked that, as had just been said by the hon'ble mover of the Bill, delegates from public bodies would be admitted to the sitting of the Select Committee. But he should not personally object to the admission of Reporters of the Press.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said he thought that matter could not be made the subject of a substantive motion in the Council. He quite agreed with the hon'ble mover of the Bill in thinking that the question of the admission of the public to the sittings of the Select Committee should be left to the decision of the Committee.

The HON'BLE MR. BELL said that, before the question was put from the Chair, he should like to make one or two observations on what he conceived to be the present position of this Bill. He had listened with great attention, as he always listened with very great attention, to what had fallen from the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Kristodas Pal), and he was sure that the Council would agree with him that they derived great advantage from the hon'ble member's opinion on all questions which were brought before them for discussion. But, though he had listened to the hon'ble member to-day with much attention, he could not very clearly make out whether the hon'ble member was in favor of the elective system or not. He understood, however, that he was in favor of an elective system, provided no restrictions were placed on the actions of the representatives of the public—at least, no such restrictions as would cause independent men to refuse to accept office. Now, he thought that it would be as well that they should consider for a moment what these supposed restrictions were. There existed, as it appeared to him, a good deal of misapprehension on the subject. When the matter came to be examined, it would be found that the control of the Government would be extremely limited. First of all, there was the municipal debt; and no one, he thought, would deny that before this debt was transferred to a new body, it was the duty of the Council to see that some means were provided for securing the payment of the interest and sinking fund of the debt. This debt was held partly by Government, and partly by debenture holders. It must be remembered that, when Government had advanced this money to the municipality, the municipality consisted of members appointed by itself. No security was taken from the municipality when the money was advanced, and no terms were imposed in regard to the re-payment of the loan. He spoke under correction of the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Kristodas Pal) if he was wrong. The hon'ble member had stated upon a previous occasion that the loans were a first charge upon the municipal fund. It might be so, but MR. BELL had not been able to find the section which provided for it. At any rate, debenture holders, to judge from the form of the debentures given at the end of the Bill, had only a promise that the money should be made payable to bearer. Now, both the Government and the debenture holders might have been very ready to lend their money upon these terms when all the members of the municipality were appointed by the Government; but, certainly, it did not follow that they would have been ready to part with their money to a body who were not appointed by the Government, but by the rate-payers themselves. Therefore, he thought that the first point to be considered was with reference to the debt, and he was convinced that the unanimous opinion of the Council would be that, before they handed over this debt to a new body, they were bound to provide some guarantee for the payment of the interest and the sinking fund of the debt. The hon'ble member had suggested that this might be done by a mandamus. Well, that was a point which the hon'ble member would be able to urge in Select Committee, and MR. BELL was quite sure that the Select Committee would give the hon'ble member's suggestion their best attention. The suggestion, at any rate, admitted that, in respect of the debt, it was necessary to place the new body of Commissioners under some sort of control.

There was another point on which he held a strong opinion, and which was not provided for in the Bill as drafted in Committee, and that was in regard to the drainage works. They all knew that a large amount of money had been spent upon the drainage works, and they also knew that there was a considerable body of people who were opposed to those works. Now, he thought the Council ought to make it obligatory upon the new body to carry out to completion these drainage works, upon which so much money had been expended. He did not propose that the Government should have an arbitrary power to force the Commissioners to spend so much this year, and so much the next year, in carrying out these works; all that was necessary was that it should be made obligatory on the Commissioners to spend a certain sum every year for this purpose, and it was for the Select Committee to consider how this end could be best attained.

The third point was with regard to the police. The hon'ble member, whilst acknowledging that it ought to be obligatory on the new body to provide funds for defraying the expenditure on account of police, stated, if MR. BELL understood him rightly, that he would not object to give the Government power to impose a rate on the city to defray the expenditure of the police, if the Municipal Commissioners themselves refused to impose the police rate. Now, if the hon'ble member was prepared to give the Government this power, MR. BELL conceived that it was all that the Government could require.

There merely now remained the question of the conservancy of the town, and he was very pleased to hear the hon'ble member opposite say that that he thought the Government had a right to interfere in this respect in the interests of the public, and for the prevention of disease. It would be necessary, therefore, to provide in the Bill, in case the new body should not carry out satisfactory conservancy arrangements, some means for compelling them to do so, and he was quite sure the Council would agree with him that in a city like Calcutta it was of the most vital importance that we should have proper and suitable conservancy arrangements. If conservancy arrangements were necessary in a country like England, surely they must be doubly necessary in a town like Calcutta, where the spread of disease was so rapid and its results so fatal. He would also mention that this power of interference for the abatement of sickness and disease was a power which was constantly exercised by the Government at home. He had only that morning received a letter by the mail which gave an account of the manner in which his native town had been completely overhauled by Government engineers, who had been sent down to inspect it. There had been a great deal of sickness in the town, and the local officers had failed to carry out proper conservancy arrangements, and the Government sent down one of the engineers of the Government Board of Health, and compelled the local authorities to carry out such works as were necessary to place the town in a proper state of sanitation.

He had now gone through all the points upon which it was proposed that some control should be exercised over the new body of Commissioners; and, as far as he could see, the hon'ble member opposite agreed with him on nearly every point. The hon'ble member admitted that they must have some power of enforcing the payment of the interest and sinking fund of the debt. He also agreed that it was equally incumbent on the Commissioners to provide funds for the police, and he was willing to allow the Government to impose a police rate, if the Commissioners refused to impose it. He also agreed, if MR. BELL understood him rightly, that they should provide some means for ensuring the completion of the drainage works throughout the town. The only question, therefore, that remained was the manner and extent to which the Government were to interfere, in case the new body neglected to carry out proper conservancy arrangements in the town. This would be a question for the Select Committee to consider. He was quite sure, as far as he was individually concerned, that he should approach these matters in Select Committee with the single and simple desire to promote the good of the town. He, for one, should be sorry to see any system of municipal government forced on the town, to which honorable and independent men could reasonably object to belong. He was sure that it would be the wish of every member of the Council, while giving effect to the measure which had been proposed by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, merely to provide such safeguards and guarantees as should ensure that the new body of elected Commissioners should faithfully discharge the obligations which the law imposed upon them.

THE HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said that as this matter was about to be referred to the Select Committee, he did not think it necessary to take up the time of the Council by making many remarks on the subject under discussion; he would merely point out that the 'objectionable clauses as they were called, might be divided into two classes. In those cases in which a sum certain was required to be expended, he thought giving control to the Government in the manner proposed, namely, to compel the Municipal Commissioners to spend that sum certain was after all reserving to the Government no very serious control, because he assumed that every honorable body would be prepared to raise a particular amount of money which had been assigned or devoted by it to a particular purpose. He therefore ventured to assert that as far as the control related to that class of cases in which a sum certain had been arrived at for the purpose of maintaining or accomplishing a particular object, the result would be the same whether these clauses did or did not exist.

The other class of cases comprised those in which there might possibly arise a difference of opinion between the Chairman and those who were supposed to represent the Government on the one side and the elected Municipal Commissioners on the other. These were cases in which he thought that the control which was intended to be imposed might be deemed objectionable. These cases, as far as he could make out looking into the Bill itself, referred to matters of conservancy and drainage, and he could not help thinking that when these subjects came to be considered by the Select Committee, it would be possible to bring some of the cases ranging under the second class under the first. For instance, if a sum certain was agreed to be expended for drainage, or if it was provided that the municipality should be obliged to spend not less than a certain sum of money on drainage, he apprehended thatthe particular case referred to would fall under the first class, and the control of the Government would not be a very serious matter. Therefore, looking at the matter carefully and not merely glancing at the surface, it would seem that the apparent force of the objections which had been made was either lost or partly incorrectly directed. With reference to the residuum of cases, namely, in those few cases in which there might be a possible conflict of opinion between the Chairman and the Commissioners, the matter might be left to the Select Committee to which this Bill was about to be referred. He would not anticipate what might be done, as it had been agreed that the matter should be fully gone into, and all suggestions duly considered by a Select Committee. He could not for one single moment believe that the Government desired to arm itself with arbitrary powers, and he felt certain that even if such powers were given to the Government, they would be used in a reasonable, prudent, and honorable manner. But if the public at large desired that they should not rest satisfied with mere assurances, and believed it to be expedient that certain restrictions should be placed upon the alleged arbitrary power of the Government, he thought that the Government would be prepared to accept the imposition of fair and proper restrictions. If any restrictions could be fairly proposed, one would assume that the Select Committee would give due weight to such proposals.

It was announced by the Hon'ble President in introducing this measure, that it was not intended to adopt an elective system which would be an entirely independent one, because it was believed that at the commencement of an elective system such a course was not desirable. It was therefore necessary to begin with a system subject to some control. That proposition was clearly enunciated by the President, and to that extent THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL thought His Honor was pledged by the announcement which he had made.

His Honor had moreover shown an anxious and sincere desire that the objections which had been made to the Bill should be carefully considered, and so far as the Government could modify that which appeared objectionable, that modification should be made. But neither His Honor nor the Select Committee could hold out the hope that these clauses should be altogether expunged, because that would be altogether resiling from the proposition under which the elective system had originated. Even if the Government could promise to give up all control, it was very doubtful whether, having regard to the mixed classes of persons or inhabitants, consisting of various sections of society and various races, it would be possible in giving up that control, to reconcile the different views of the various sections of the community. There were sections belonging to the Western side of the world who might have very different ideas as to what was the proper form of drainage, and as to what were proper conservancy measures, from those who always lived in this country. Having regard then to the diversity of the population to which the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Kristodas Pal) had referred—and to which he had referred in that kindly spirit in which he always did when he had occasion to refer to various members of the community,—THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL thought that the resigning of all control by the Government in municipal affairs would be unfair to the community at large taken as a whole. Moreover, he thought it would be surrendering that primary duty which the hon'ble member opposite was obliged to admit rested with the Local Government. He took it as a primary duty of the Government to see to the health, comfort, and safety of the inhabitants of the town. That primary duty was in the first instance assigned to three Municipal Commissioners; then when those duties became more onerous, the number was extended, and the Calcutta Justices were appointed. Now another scheme had been formed involving the introduction of an element of a different and novel character into the municipality, namely, the election of representatives to a certain extent by the rate-payers in lieu of the nominees of Government. He stated that the fact of the assignment of certain duties by the Government to a corporate body did not of itself relieve the Government of the responsibility of requiring that such duties should be properly performed, and it was only in that spirit and in that sense that the Government desired to have a proper control, and in order that it might not resile from the performance of duties in which the public at large were interested. He believed that if the question under consideration were looked at in a frank and calm manner—in the manner in which it should be approached—it would be found absolutely necessary in a town like this, composed as it was, to have some control vested in the Government; but whether that control should be given in an apparently arbitrary form or should be limited, was a question which might well be considered by the Select Committee.

The hon'ble member seemed to admit that the Government had an inherent power of supervising and controlling the affairs of the municipality. If that were so, he did not see what possible objection could be made to expressing and affirming in precise terms the inherent powers which were supposed to exist. He was about to be nominated a member of the Select Committee, and he should certainly endeavor, in conjunction with the gentlemen who would be associated with him, to do his best to assist in modifying the sections objected to. Of course it was not necessary that he should anticipate all the arguments that might be brought forward. But it had been said that the point to be reached, the object to be attained by these two sections, could be effected by means of a writ of mandamus. He thought that those who reflected upon this subject would find that a mandamus in this country might be a very protracted and expensive proceeding. A mandamus in England was a much shorter remedy. Here the proceeding by mandamus commenced with a plaint to which a written statement by way of defence might be put in, and thereupon issues would have to be raised, and the case decided by a single judge, from whose decision an appeal lay to a Division Bench, from which, if the matter were of a certain value or certain importance, an appeal would lie to the Privy Council. He therefore thought that those who put forward the remedy by mandamus would do well to consider whether the circumstances of the two countries were similar, and whether there was any analogy between them.

The object that would be secured by a mandamus would be that the judgment of an independent mind would be brought to bear upon disputed facts between particular sections of the Corporation. It might be said that the decision of the Government would not be that of an independent mind. He thought, however, that the sections might be framed so as to establish some mode of enquiry which would secure some degree of independence of action. His principal object in addressing the Council was to show that the clauses objected to might clearly be split up into two classes,—one comprised cases in which it was obligatory to pay a sum certain, such as the money fixed for the police budget, and whether those clauses existed or not it would make no difference in the manner in which the municipality would be managed with reference to the obligation to pay a certain sum of money. He believed that every hon'ble body of gentlemen on agreeing to pay a certain sum of money for a particular purpose, would proceed to raise that sum. The other of course was a more difficult question. Questions of opinion were always more difficult, and men of every description were naturally impatient of having their opinions controverted; and when they had done their best to form a good opinion on any subject, it was very painful and galling to them to have that opinion controverted in what might be considered an unfair manner. If, then, there was some modification of these sections which might remove from the minds of those who took office under the new system, the possibility of the opinions arrived at by the body of the Municipal Commissioners being controverted in an arbitrary manner, he thought all persons would be satisfied to give the Government some power of control in lieu of the protracted, dilatory, and expensive procedure by mandamus. The Local Government should have some means of remedying evils which might arise, and he thought that it would be almost hopeless to expect the Government to give up or surrender their powers of control, which, he submitted, was one of the primary duties cast upon the Government of the country.

His Honor the President said,—"Before putting the motion, I have one or two remarks to make. But after what has fallen from the hon'ble mover of the Bill, as well as from the hon'ble members on the right (Mr. Bell and the Advocate-General), I need say very little except to express my entire concurrence with the remarks which have fallen from the hon'ble members mentioned. It is perfectly true, as has been stated by all those three hon'ble members, that I never promised to give the Calcutta community an elective system without Government control, and on the 27th November last, I promised an elective system, on condition of a certain limited Government control. The words which fell from me are on record. They were once quoted by me, and they have been quoted again to-day, and I need not repeat them.

The hon'ble member on the left (Baboo Kristodas Pal) probably did not intend to imply that he, and those who thought with him, had had no opportunity of fully stating their views in respect to Government control in this Council. But still it might possibly be so understood, from some of his remarks, that he, and those who thought with him, had not had that full opportunity. I need only remind the Council that on the 25th of January the Select Committee made a somewhat elaborate report, to which was appended an equally elaborate dissent by the hon'ble member, and another hon'ble member who held the same opinions with him. That dissent was fully laid before the Council, and amongst other things it specially referred to the subject of Government control. Well, four days afterwards, on the 29th January, the whole subject of the Bill, including the details of the proposed elective system, and especially the Government control, was amongst many other things greatly debated in this Council; and on referring to the record of the debates on that occasion, I find at least two speeches by the hon'ble member on this very subject—one speech in particular on the manner in which orders were to be conveyed from the Government to the Municipality; and a second speech on the manner in which funds were to be compulsorily raised in the carrying out of those orders. So I think the whole Council were witnesses to the fact that full opportunity was afforded in this Council for a full hearing by the Council of the views of any hon'ble member who dissented from the principle of Government control. Again the subject of the Bill was brought up for debate on the 19th February, and I presume there was nothing to prevent any hon'ble member to make any general observations on the subject of the elective system and the Government control, if he thought fit. And I might add that when the proposals of the 27th November were referred to the Select Committee, it was done by a vote of the whole Council, and I think there was nothing to prevent any member from making general observations on that subject on that occasion if he chose. But be that as it may, I hope we shall be permitted to understand that in the somewhat elaborate speech which the hon'ble member delivered to-day, he has stated his views fully to the Council on this important subject, namely the elective system and the subject of Government control.

There is one remark I must, perhaps, make in reference to the speech delivered by the hon'ble member to-day, which is that he states that the principal subjects of future municipal improvement had been already settled and decided in such a manner that they cannot be altered executively by the conduct of any corporation that may be appointed. I cannot share his opinion on that subject. I think that without Government control it is very conceivable that these matters might be very considerably altered. But supposing he is right—and I hope he is right—and these matters have been settled, then I would remark that these are the very matters to which the Government control refers. And if they are settled so that they are not likely to be disturbed, then what real objection can he have to power being vested in the Government to prevent the chance of their being disturbed.

Lastly, I am anxious to mention one particular circumstance which may not be entirely known. From remarks which are sometimes made within the walls of the Council, it may be supposed that these controlling clauses were invented for this particular occasion. Now, would hon'ble members be surprised to hear that they are taken verbatim from the Acts which have been passed for Madras and Bombay? It might possibly be thought that the circumstances of Madras differ considerably from those of Calcutta, and that the Madras analogy would not apply to Calcutta. But how about Bombay? Now Bombay is at least as large as Calcutta; its population is I believe greater than that of Calcutta, and is at least as public-spirited and as well educated, and at least as well suited for self-government. And yet it is a fact that a recent law has been passed by the local legislature in that Presidency, which allows an elective system under Government control quite as strict as, if not stricter than that which is proposed in this Bill, and that enactment having recently received the assent of the Governor-General, and passed into law, is now in full working order in that Presidency.

With these remarks, then, I desire only to add my cordial concurrence in the motion proposed by the hon'ble mover, to the effect that three particular sections of the Bill—Sections 21, 22, and 58—be again referred to the Select Committee for report. I have particular satisfaction in voting for that motion, because, after considering the memorials which have been presented to us on this subject, and particularly after having had the advantage of hearing verbally what has been stated to me by two influential deputations from different sections of the community who have been good enough to meet me, I say that I for one do believe that these three sections do admit of very considerable improvement. And I say that, if the matter shall be again considered by the Select Committee, such improvements may be effected for the consideration of the Council. But beyond that, I desire to express my entire concurrence with what has fallen from the learned Advocate-General, to the effect that though it may be possible to modify the provisions for Government control, and in some degree to meet the wishes of the memorialists and the objectors, it is impossible to abandon Government control altogether, if there is to be an elective system at all."

THE HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL observed that the three memorials referred to stated objections to other sections of the Bill, and enquired whether it would be competent to the Select Committee to take those sections also into consideration.

After some conversation—

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT stated that the deliberations of the Select Committee would be confined to the three sections of the Bill which were specifically mentioned in the motion of reference.

The motion was then put and agreed to, and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, the Hon'ble Mr. Dampier, and the Hon'ble Mr. Bell were added to the Select Committee.

SETTLEMENT OF RENT DISPUTES.

ON the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, the Hon'ble Mr. Bell, the Hon'ble Baboo Ramshunker Sen, and the Hon'ble Meer Mahomed Ali were added to the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the settlement of disputes regarding rent, and to prevent agrarian disturbances.

RAI DHUNPUT SINGH BAHADOOR'S OFFER TO CONSTRUCT A LIGHT BRANCH RAILWAY FROM RANAGHAT TO BHUGWANGOLAH.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, BENGAL.—RAILWAY.

Calcutta, the 28th February 1876.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

A letter from the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, No 4P.-G. dated 9th February 1876, regarding proposals for the construction of light lines of railways in his division.

THE proposal of a branch railway line, commencing at the Station of Ranaghat on the Eastern Bengal Railway opposite Santipore, thence running northwards to Kishnaghur, Berhampore, and Moorshedabad, and passing on to Bhugwangolah on the Ganges, has for a long time been under consideration. At Moorshedabad the line would be connected by a ferry across the Bhagiruthee with the Nulhatee Branch, which joins the East Indian line. At Bhugwangolah it would touch the Ganges nearly opposite to the confluence of the Mahanuddy, which would bring down traffic from North Bengal. The line would be in accordance with the ordinary current of traffic to and from Calcutta.

The Lieutenant-Governor is now glad to be able to say that one of the most wealthy bankers and traders of the Moorshedabad district, a gentleman who has distinguished himself by his enterprise on other occasions, and by his liberality during the late famine, Rai Dhunput Singh, Bahadoor, has come forward with an offer to construct this railway at his own expense. Without deciding at this moment whether the offer could be accepted, the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the fact of such an offer being made is highly creditable to the Rai Bahadoor, and worthy of the high position which he deservedly holds. It is very desirable that native capitalists should be encouraged to come forward, whether singly or in unison, to aid in the construction of light branch railways in Bengal.

The Commissioner is requested to convey to Rai Dhunput Singh, Bahadoor, an expression of the Lieutenant-Governor's approbation of the public-spirited conduct above described, and to submit, in communication with Captain Rathborne, who is now on special duty in connection with the extension of State Branch Railways, a detailed scheme for giving effect to the arrangements contemplated.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. E. T. NICOLLS, Colonel, R. E.,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal,

BURDWAN DIVN.	5	Hooghly, „ 26, „	·11 on the 19th Feb.	Weather—Seasonable. Sowings of sugarcane and jali dhan are still going on; potols, water-melons, and such like plants, are in flower. Want of rain is very much felt. Rubbee crops are being cut, and pressing of sugarcane is going on. Potatoes being dug up. Vegetables are falling off.
BURDWAN DIVN.		Howrah, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Fine. No change in the state and prospects of the crops.
		Central Districts.
PRESIDENCY DIVN.	6	24-Pergunnahs, Feb. 28,† '76	Nil.	Weather—Seasonable. Reaping of winter crops, which are good, is continued. Public health is fair.
PRESIDENCY DIVN.	7	Nuddea, „ 26, „	0·09	Weather—Slight showers are reported from nearly all the sub-divisions. The weather has changed again, and become cooler, though the sun is gaining power. The harvest is progressing, and the outturn will be a little below average. The health of the people is good.
PRESIDENCY DIVN.	8	Jessore, „ 26, „	0·38	Weather—Variable. There was a shower on the night of the 24th instant. The spring rice seedlings promise well. The ground for the early rice is being ploughed, but the cultivators want more rain.
PRESIDENCY DIVN.	9	Moorshedabad „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Getting warmer. Crops are fair. Transplantation of boro dhan is over. Lands are being prepared for the aous dhan. Arhur and mustard are being reaped. Prospects of sugarcane, mulberry, and indigo are fair. A few cases of cholera are reported from Moorshedabad and Bhurutpore.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	10	Dinagepore, „ 25, „	Nil.	Weather—Fine. Getting warm. No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last week.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	11	Maldah, „ 23, „	Nil.	Weather—Bright, with exception of Thursday morning, which was cloudy. No rain, however, fell. Two annas of the rubbee crops in thana Kaliachak and one anna in thana Khurbah have been destroyed by the dry weather. The prospects of the boro crops are good. One death from cholera occurred during the week.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	12	Rajshahye, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—There has been no rain during the week. No change in the state of the crops since last report. Rain is very much required. Public health is good.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	13	Rungpore, „ 25, „	Nil.	Weather—Cooler, probably from effect of rain falling elsewhere. No rain in this district. Some of the rubbee crops have been damaged from continued drought.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	14	Bogra, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Fair. Gradually getting warm. State and prospects of the crops are good.
RAJSHAHYE DIVN.	15	Pubna, „ 26, „	0·01	Weather—Mornings foggy. Days clear and fine. Rain is much wanted for the spring crops, the prospects of which are now not good.
COOCH BEHAR DIVN.	16	Darjeeling, „ 25, „	Nil.	Weather—Mild. Sunshine during the week. No crops of importance are on the ground. Land is being prepared for sowing.
COOCH BEHAR DIVN.	17	Julpigoree, „ 26, „	Nil.	The weather has been cool and pleasant. Rain is greatly needed. Sowing of kowni now commences, and unless rain falls the crop must be a failure. This crop is a valuable one, as the lower classes in the south of the district greatly support themselves on it for the two or three months before the bhadoi crop ripens. A rather sharp outbreak of cholera is reported north of the stations, and between Titalya and Silligoree; twenty-three deaths are said to have occurred. The prolonged drought is said by the oldest inhabitants to be quite exceptional.
COOCH BEHAR DIVN.		Cooch Behar, „ 24, „	Nil.	Weather—During the week an unpleasant west wind blew nearly every day. The weather has become less warm. There were also a few drops of rain on the 18th. The prospects of the tobacco crop have not improved owing to want of rain. Fields are being ploughed for bidree (a species of aous dhan) sowing. The prospects of cheena and kaon (millet) are also unfavorable.

* Telegram of the 28th February, received on the same day, shows rainfall during the seven days immediately preceding.

		Eastern Districts.
DACCA DIVN.	18	Dacca, Feb. 28,* '76	0·82	Heavy rain on Wednesday all over the district; heaviest to east. Crops are very favorable.
	19	Fureedpore, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Cool and cloudy. Drizzling rain on the evening of Wednesday. State of the rubbee crops is the same as reported last week. Health of the district is fair.
	20	Backergunge, „ 24, „	0·74	All is well.
	21	Mymensingh, „ 25, „	Nil.	Weather—There were a few drops of rain on the 18th and 24th. On the 24th there was a strong easterly wind. The weather was considerably colder than last week.. Rain is much wanted for the preparation of aous lands, and also to save the boro rice now on the ground.
	23	Tipperah, „ 25, „	·73	Weather—Slightly warmer than last week. A few showers of rain. The spring rice will be much benefitted by the late rain.
CHITTAGONG DIVN.	23	Chittagong ...	......	Return not received.
	24	Noakholly, „ 25, „	0·21	Weather—Unsettled. The first three days of the week were cloudy, but the next three days were fair and cool. There was slight rain on the night of the 23rd. Wind is variable, but generally north-west. Pulses, chillies, linseed, and sessamum are progressing favorably. Strong cases of cholera reported from Nalchera.
	25	Chittagong Hill Tracts, „ 22, „	Nil.	Weather—Very cold at night during the latter part of the week. Jungle is being cleared for jooming.
		Hill Tipperah, „ 23, „	0·68	Weather—Cloudy and unsettled. The rain on the night of Friday (19th) cooled the air for a day or two, but a strong and hot north-west wind has now set in, which looks like the beginning of the hot weather. Rain is much needed for ploughing operations.
BEHAR.
PATNA DIVN.	26	Patna, Feb. 28,* '76	Nil.	No rain as yet, though there now appears to be a chance of some. If it comes, the Collector is afraid it would be too late to do much good, and would do considerable damage to the spring crops now being harvested. A good deal of small-pox in the Barh sub-division, and sporadic cases of cholera throughout the district.
	27	Gya, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Seasonable; rather cooler than last week. Westerly winds as before. State and prospects of the crops are much the same as before. Rubbee crops are very fair on the whole, but the poppy is said to have suffered somewhat from the extremely dry winds. Public health is excellent.
	28	Shahabad, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Cold, with strong westerly wind. Rubbee crops still promise well. Peas and moosoor pulses are being harvested. Opium is being collected.
	29	Durbhunga, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Wind changeable, with great variation of temperature. No signs of rain. Prospects of crops as previously reported. The rubbee, wherever it has germinated, does not appear to have suffered much from want of moisture. The mustard crop is being cut, and other crops will follow Importations of grain to Mudhoobunnee continue; the price of rice in that sub-division has risen slightly, while that of Indian-corn has fallen.
	30	Mozufferpore „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather is getting warm. West wind still prevails. In Hazeepore sub-division tobacco and rubbee crops are being cut in some places. In Mozufferpore sub-division prospects are unchanged. In Sitamarhee sub-division there is nothing new to report, except that the price of maize has somewhat risen, and tanks in some places have been dry.
	31	Sarun, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Cold and dry. Sky clear, with strong west wind. Prospects of the crops remain unchanged. The rubbee crops are being harvested; a fair out-turn is expected. Indigo is being sown, but the prospect is indifferent. The steady west wind is fast drying up the moisture of the ground. Poppy is flowering, and in places the pods are being tapped. General health is good.
	32	Chumparun, „ 25, „	Nil.	Weather—Strong west wind blowing. Night cool, and middle of the day rather hot. The condition of the rubbee crops is the same as reported in the last week.

* Telegrams of the 28th February, received on the same day, show rainfall during the seven days immediately preceding.

	No.	District, and date of return.	Rainfall at Sudder Station in inches.	Character of the weather, state and prospects of the crops, and state of health at date.
BEHAR.—(Contd.)
Bhagulpore Divn.	33	Monghyr, Feb. 26, '76	Nil.	Weather—Fair, with occasional high west winds. Five months have now passed without rain, but the crops on the low lands are fair. On the high lands they are scanty. On the whole a somewhat short rubbee crop will be cut.
	34	Bhagulpore, „ 28,* „	Nil.	There was no rain except a few drops at head-quarters on the 28th February. Wind from the east and rain is expected. Collector at Dugmura reports that grain is cheap, rice is selling at 24 seers 12 chittacks per rupee. All rubbee crops close to villages and irrigated appear very good. General condition of the people is good, though there are many of the very poor badly off. Many will find employment in cutting rubbee crops before long. Rain just now would do more harm than good to wheat and mangoes.
	35	Purneah, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Strong west winds for the greater portion of the week. The state and prospects of the rubbee crops are the same as last week. Rain is much wanted.
	36	Sonthal Perghs „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Cold nights and mornings. Extremely dry and hot in the day time. Frequent strong gales from the west and south-west. A few drops of rain fell in the north of the district on the 20th instant. No change in the state and prospects of the crops. The boro dhan is looking healthy, and mohooas and mangoes will do well.
ORISSA.
Orissa Divn.	37	Cuttack, „ 19, „	Nil.	Weather—Dry and somewhat hot. Cloudy since last night. Sugarcane and cotton in want of water. Prices are low, and exportation getting brisk. Winter crops all harvested. Public health is good.
	38	Pooree, „ 24, „	Nil.	Weather—Generally clear. Days becoming warmer. The dalua paddy crop is progressing well, but requires a shower of rain. There appears to be a good crop of mangoes this year. Other crops are progressing. Cholera has again made its appearance in parts of Khoordah.
	39	Balasore, „ 25, „	0·5	Weather—A single shower fell during the week. Rain is wanted for tillage and on account of the pasturage which is very scanty. Cholera and small-pox are still lingering in the district.
CHOTA NAGPORE.
		South-Western Frontier Agency.
	40	Hazareebagh, Feb. 25, '76	Nil.	Weather—Temperature very variable; strong cold cutting west winds prevail. No change to report regarding the state and prospects of the crops. Foot and mouth diseases are prevalent among cattle in different parts of the district. Fever is also prevalent, owing to great and rapid changes of the temperature.
	41	Lohardugga, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Cloudy off and on, but no rain. No change to report regarding the state and prospects of the crops. The rain still keeps off. General health is good.
	42	Singbhoom, „ 25, „	Nil.	Weather—Same as last week. There are no crops to report about. Cholera in southern Kolhan is abating.
	43	Manbhoom, „ 26, „	Nil.	Weather—Too dry. The crops on the ground are reported as doing well. Sugarcane has been stored. The absence of rain is likely to prove disadvantageous.

* Telegram of the 28th February, received on the same day, shows rainfall during the seven days immediately preceding.
